J. P. BRISSOT.

DEPUTY

O F

EURE AND LOIRE,

TO HIS

CONSTITUENTS,

ON THE SITUATION OF THE NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

ON THE INFLUENCE OF THE ANARCHISTS, AND THE EVILS IT HAS CAUSED;

AND ON THE NECESSITY OF ANNIHILATING THAT INFLUENCE IN ORDER TO SAVE THE REPUBLIC.

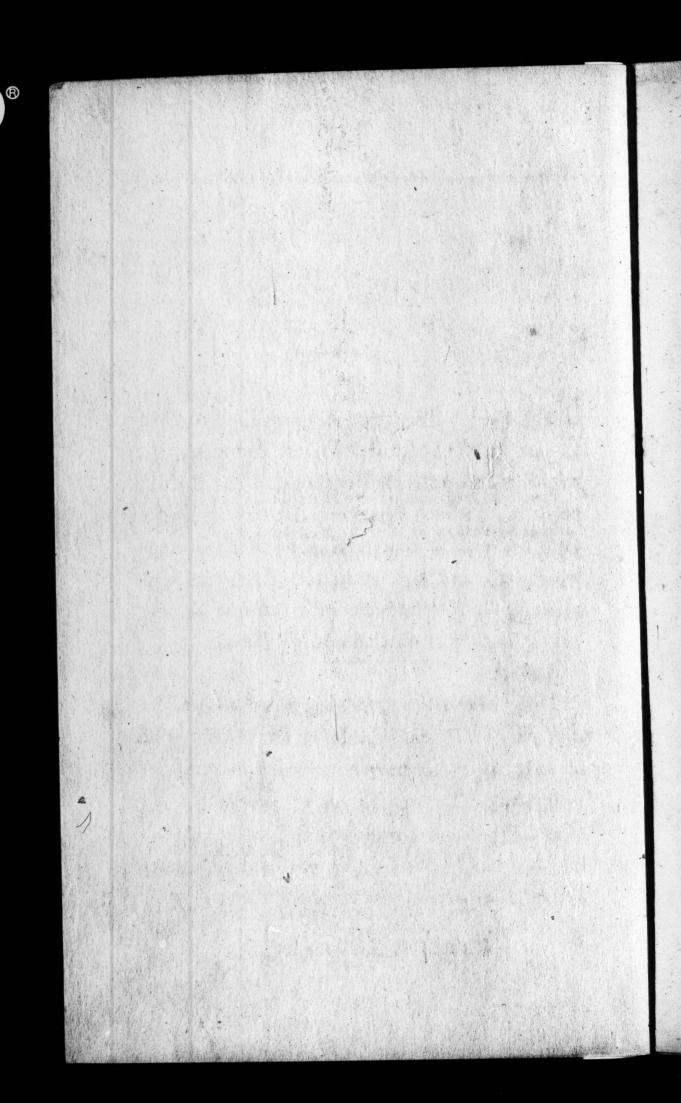

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

LONDON

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE, Piccadilly,

[PRICE TWO SHILLINGS AND SIEPERCE.]

Entered at Stationers Hall

Translator's Preface,

ries, then would be allemed by the cold neutrality

terion torio le tral and I - egen Inivanena de to cautast and their abborrence of a revolution, not less tared to liberty than to gonorituality fray not-

THE French Revolution has been the subject of various speculations, and various histories. As might be expected, the Royalists and the Republicans have differed a good deal in their accounts of the principles of that revolution, of the springs which have set it in motion, and of the true character of those who have been, or still are the principal actors on that assonishing scene.

They who are inclined to think favourably of that event, will undoubtedly object to every state of facts which comes only from the authority of a Royalist. Thus much must be allowed by those who are the most sirmly attached to the cause of religion, law, and order (for of such, and not of friends to despotism, the royal party is composed) that their very affection to this generous and manly cause, and their abhorrence of a revolution, not less fatal to liberty than to government, may posfibly lead them in some particulars to a more harsh representation of the proceedings of their adversaries, than would be allowed by the cold neutrality of an impartial judge. This fort of error arises from a fource highly laudable; but the exactness of truth may fuffer even from the feelings of virtue. History will do justice to the intentions of worthy men; but it will be on its guard against their infirmities: it will examine with great strictness of scrunity, whatever appears from a writer in favour of his own cause. On the other hand, whatever efcapes him, and makes against that cause, comes with the greatest weight.

In this important controversy, the translator of the following work brings forward to the English tribunal of opinion, the testimony of a witness beyond all exception. His competence is undoubted. He knows every thing which concerns this revolution to the bottom. He is a chief actor in all the scenes which he presents. No man can object to him him as a royalist: the royal party, and the Christian religion, never had a more determined enemy. In a word, it is BRISSOT.—It is Brissot the Republican, the Jacobin, and the Philosopher, who is brought to give an account of Jacobinism, and of Republicanism, and of Philosophy.

de l'il camp au ai a di chilles) inches un flore

It is worthy of observation, that this his account of the genius of Jacobinism, and its effects, is not confined to the period in which that faction came to be divided within itself. In several, and those very important particulars, Brissot's observations apply to the whole of the preceding period. before the great schism, and whilst the Jacobins acted as one body: infomuch, that the far greater part of the proceedings of the ruling powers, fince the commencement of the revolution in France, so strikingly painted, so strongly and so justly reprobated by Brissot, were the acts of Briffot himself and his affociates. All the members of the Girondin subdivision were as deeply concerned as any of the Mountain could possibly be, and fome of them much more deeply, in those horrid transactions which have filled all the thinking part of Europe with the greatest detestation, and with the most serious apprehensions for the common liberty and safety.

44.55

at without their thesis the enter the contract of the selection in

A question will very naturally be asked, what could induce Brissot to draw such a picture? He must have been sensible it was his own. The answer is—the inducement was the same with that which led him to partake in the perpetration of all the crimes, the calamitous effects of which he describes with the pen of a master,—Ambition. His faction having obtained their stupendous and unnatural power, by rooting out of the minds of his unhappy countrymen every principle of religion, morality, loyalty, sidelity, and honour, discovered, that when authority came into their hands, it would be a matter of no small difficulty for them to carry on government on the principles by which they had destroyed it.

The rights of men, and the new principles of liberty and equality, were very unhandy instruments for those who withed to establish a system of tranquillity and order. They who were taught to find nothing to respect in the title and in the virtues of Louis the Sixteenth, a prince fucceeding to the throne by the fundamental laws, in the line of a fuccession of monarchs continued for fourteen hundred years, found nothing which could bind them to an implicit fidelity, and dutiful allegiance to Mess. Brissot, Vergniaux, Condorcet, Anacharfis Cloots, and Thomas Paine,

11/34/19

In this difficulty, they did as well as they could. To govern the people, they must incline the people to obey. The work was difficult, but it was necessary. They were to accomplish it by fuch materials and by fuch instruments as they had in their hands. They were to accomplish the purposes of order, morality, and submiffion to the laws, from the principles of atheilm, profligacy, and fedition. Ill as the difguife became them, they began to assume the mask of an austere and rigid virtue; they exhausted all the stores of their eloquence (which in some of them were not inconsiderable) in declamations, against tumult and confusion; they made daily harangues on the bleffings of order, discipline, quiet, and obedience to authority; they they even shewed some fort of disposition to protect such property as had not been consistent. They, who on every occasion had discovered a sort of surious thirst of blood, and a greedy appetite for slaughter, who avowed and gloried in the murders and massacres of the 14th of July, of the 5th and 6th of October, and of the 10th of August, now began to be squeamish and fastidious with regard to those of the 2d of September.

Malamet +

In their pretended scruples on the sequel of the standard of the noth of August, they imposed upon no living creature, and they obtained not the smallest credit for humanity. They endeavoured to establish a distinction, by the belief of which they hoped to keep the spirit of murder fasely bottled up, and sealed for their own purposes, without endangering themselves by the summer of the posson which they prepared for their enemies.

Roland was the chief and the most accredited of the faction:—His morals had furnished little matter of exception against him;—old, domestic, and uxorious, he led a private life sufficiently blameless.

blameless. He was therefore set up as the Cato of the republican party, which did not abound in such characters.

This man, like most of the chiefs, was the manager of a newspaper, in which he promoted the interest of his party. He was a satal present made by the revolutionists to the unhappy king, as one of his ministers under the new constitution. Amongst his colleagues were Claviere and Servan. All the three have since that time, either lost their heads by the axe of their associates in rebellion, or to evade their own revolutionary justice, have fallen by their own hands.

d

d

d

x.

1-

of

er

1-ne

ir

ed

le

c, ly

fs.

These ministers were regarded by the king as in a conspiracy to dethrone him. Nobody who considers the circumstances which preceded the deposition of Louis the sixteenth; nobody who attends to the subsequent conduct of those ministers, can hesitate about the reality of such a conspiracy. The king certainly had no doubt of it; he found himself obliged to remove them; and the necessity which first obliged him to choose such regicide ministers, constrained him to replace others of little efficiency, though of a better discription.

mained in in Wester stress elevated,

A little before this removal, and evidently as a part of the conspiracy, Roland put into the king's hands as a memorial, the most insolent, seditious, and atrocious libel, that has probably ever been penned. This paper Roland a sew days after delivered to the National Assembly,* who instantly published and dispersed it over all France; and in order to give it the stronger operation, they declared, that he and his brother ministers had carried with them the regret of the nation. None of the writings which have instanted the Jacobin spirit to a savage fury, ever worked up a fiercer ferment through the whole mass of the republicans in every part of France.

Under the thin veil of prediction, he strongly recommends all the abominable practices which afterwards followed. In particular he inflamed the minds of the populace against the respectable

deputy in the second protection of the production

^{*} Translator.] Presented to the king June 13, delivered to him the preceding Monday.

and conscientious clergy, who became the chief objects of the maffacre, and who were to him the chief objects of a malignity and rancour that one could hardly think to exist in an human heart.

ic

1-

as

ne

li-

er

y.s

11-

e ;

n,

ers

on.

he

o a

he

gly

ich ned

ble

ered

and

Lantac berofe tracel towns over and satural We have the reliques of his fanatical persecution here. We are in a condition to judge of the merits of the persecutors and of the persecuted-I do not say the accusers and accused; because in all the furious declamations of the atheistick faction against these men, not one specific charge has been made upon any one person of those who fuffered in their massacre, or by their decree of exile.

The king had declared that he would fooner perish under their axe, (he too well saw what was preparing for him) than give his fanction to the iniquitous act of proscription, under which those innocent people were to be transported.

On this profcription of the clergy, a principal part of the oftenfible quarrel between the king and those ministers, had turned. From the time of the authorised publication of this libel, some Danton.

b 2

of the manœuvres long and uniformly purfued for the king's deposition, became more and more evident and declared a strong through the declared

most manufactus it his a out of a very spirit

The tenth of August came on, and in the manner in which Roland had predicted : it was followed by the same consequences-The king was deposed, after cruel massacres, in the courts and the apartments of his palace, and in almost all parts of the city. In reward of his treason to his old master, Roland was by his new masters named minister of the home department.

The maffacres of the fecond of September were begotten by the massacres of the tenth of August. They were univerfally foreseen and hourly ex-During the short interval between the two murderous fcenes, the furies, male and female, cried out havock as loudly and as fiercely as ever. The ordinary jails were all filled with prepared victims; and when they overflowed, churches were turned into jails. At this time the relentless Roland had the care of the general police; he had for his colleague the bloody

Danton,

OF

re

he

as ng

rts

flo

to

ers

ere ıst.

ex-

the

and ely

rith

red.

the

eral ody

ton,

Danton, who was ministerof justice: The infidious Petion was mayor of Paris The treacherous Manuel was procurator of the Common-hall. The magistrates (some or all of them) were evidently the authors of this massacre. Lest the national guards should, by their very name, be reminded of their duty in preferving the lives of their fellow citizens, the common council of Paris, pretending that it was in vain to think of refifting the murde ers, (although in truth neither their numbers nor their arms were at all formidable) obliged those guards to draw the charges from their musquets, and took away their bayonets. One of their journalists, and according to their fashion, one of their leading statesmen Gorlas, mentions this fact in his newspaper, which he formerly called the Galley Journal. The title was well fuited to the paper and its author. For fome felonies he had been fentenced to the gallies; but by the benignity of the late king, this felon (to be one day advanced to the rank of a regicide) had been pardoned and released at the intercession of the ambassadors of Tippoo Sultan. His gratitude was fuch as might naturally have been expected.

It

44

66

44

46

- 66

pr

26

66

fu

ve

pu

It will be asked, how the minister of the home department was employed at this crifis? The day after the massacré had commenced Roland appeared, but not with the powerful apparatus of a protecting magistrate, to rescue those who had furvived the flaughter of the first day :- Nothing of this. On the third of September, (that is the day after the commencement of the maffacre)* he writes a long, elaborate, verbose epistle to the Affembly, in which, after magnifying, according to the bon ton of the revolution, his own integrity; humanity, courage, and patriotism, he first dis rectly justifies all the bloody proceedings of the tenth of August. He considers the slaughter of that day as a necessary measure for defeating a conspiracy, which (with a full knowledge of the falsehood of his affertion) he afferts to have been formed for a massacre of the people of Paris, and which he more than infinuates, was the work of his late unhappy mafter, who was univerfally known to carry his dread of shedding the blood of his most guilty subjects to an excess.

Letter to the National Assembly signed—The Minister of the interior ROLAND, dated Paris, Sept. 3d, 4th year of Liberty.

Without

Without the day of the tenth," fays he, " it is evident that we should have been lost. The court, prepared for a long time, waited for the " hour which was to accumulate all treafons, " to display over Paris the standard of death, and to reign there by terror. The fenfe of the " people, (le fentiment) always just and ready when their opinion is not corrupted, foreface the epoch marked for their destruction, and " rendered it fatal to the conspirators." He then proceeds, in the cant which has been applied to palliate all their atrocities from the fourteenth of July, 1789, to the present time; "It is in the nature of things," continues he, stand in that " of the human heart, that victory should bring with it some excess. The fea, agitated by a violent florm, roars long after the tempest; but every thing has bounds, which ought at length to be observed." more that som an daidy is late unhappy mailer, who was uhivertally

In this memorable epiftle, he confiders fuch excesses as fatalities arising from the very nature of things, and consequently not to be punished. He allows a space of time for the duration duration of these agitations; and lest he should be thought rigid and too scanty in his measure, he thinks it may be long. But he would have things to cease at length. But when, and where?—When they may approach his own person.

"Testerday," says he, the MINISTERS were denounced: vaguely indeed as to the matter, be"cause subjects of reproach were wanting; but with that warmth and force of assertion, which strike the imagination and seduce it for a moment, and which missead and destroy considered, without which no man should remain in place in a free government. Testerday, again, in an assembly of the presidents of all the sections, convoked by the ministers, with the view of conciliating all minds, and of mutual explanation, I perceived that distrust which suspects, interrogates, and fetters operations."

In this manner, (that is, in mutual fuspicions and interrogatories) this virtuous minister of the home department, and all the magistracy of Paris, spent

A to winter the able to a consider the trade was the

fper has It d mai met

his cage

fere of

tend

" n

" d

" b

H myfi fhou

s, that

e

S

· e.

-

it

h

a 1-

in

Y,

11 th

of

ust

a-nis

he

ris,

ent

fpent the first day of the massacre, whose atrocity has spread horror and alarm throughout Europe. It does not appear that the putting a stop to the massacre, had any part in the object of their meeting, or in their confultations when they were met. Here was a minister tremblingly alive to his own fafety, dead to that of his fellow citizens, eager to preserve his place, and worse than indifferent about its most important duties. Speaking of the people, he fays, "that their hidden " enemies may make use of this agitation," (the tender appellation which he gives to horrid massacre) " to hurt their best friends, and their " most able defenders. Already the example be-" gins; let it restrain and arrest a just rage. In-" dignation carried to its height commences " proscriptions which fall only on the guilty, " but in which error and particular passion's may " fhortly involve the honest man."

He saw that the able artificers in the trade and mystery of murder, did not chuse that their skill should be unemployed after their sirst work; and that they were full as ready to cut off their rivals.

as their enemies. This gave him one alarm, that was serious. This letter of Roland in every part of it lets out the fecret of all the parties in this Plena rimarum est bac, atque illac revolution. perfluit. We see that none of them condemn the occasional practice of murder; provided it is properly applied; provided it is kept within the bounds, which each of those parties think proper to prescribe. In this case Roland feared, that if what was occasionally useful, should become habitual, the practice might go further than was convenient. It might involve the best friends of the last revolution, as it had done the heroes of the first revolution: he feared that it would not be confined to the La Fayettes and Clement-Tonnerres, the Duponts, and Barnaves, but that it might extend to the Brissots and Vergniauxs', to the Condorcets, the Petions, and to himself. Under this apprehension there is no doubt that his humane feelings were altogether unaffected. 100 agreement de climaniste de Ale

His observations on the massacre of the preceding day are such as cannot be passed over:— "Yesterday," said he, "was a day upon the events

63

66

66

66

66

66

66

46

66

44

66

66

66

110

wa

at

and

He

wh

fro

66

at rt

is ac

he 0-

he

ak

ar-

ıld

er

est

he

it

nd

es,

er-

to

no

her

rc-

the

nts

events of which it is perhaps necessary to leave " a veil; -I know that the people with their " vengeance mingled a fort of justice; they did " not take for victims all who prefented them-" felves to their fury; they directed it to them " who had for a long time been spared by the " fword of the law, and who they believed, from " the peril of circumstances, should be facrificed " without delay. But I know that it is easy to " villains and traitors to misrepresent this effer-" vescence, and that it must be checked; I know " that we owe to all France the declaration, that " the executive power could not foresee or pre-" vent this excess. I know, that it is due to the " constituted authorities to place a limit to it, or " confider themselves as abolished."

In the midst of this carnage he thinks of was nothing but throwing a veil over it; (which) at once to cover the guilty from punishment, and to extinguish all compassion for the sufferers. He apologises for it; in fact, he justifies it. He who (as the reader has just seen in what is quoted from this letter) feels so much indignation at "vague denunciations" when made against bim-

h.Xvi

fac

fu

th

as

fu

lea

im

po

ve

tei

for

th

fta

of

be bl

CO

to

po

hi

mi

he

no

th

than the subversion of his power, is not ashamed to consider the charge of a conspiracy to massacre the Parisians brought against his master upon denunciations as vague as possible, or rather upon no denunciations, as a perfect justification of the monstrous proceedings against him. He is not ashamed to call the murder of the unhappy priests in the Carmes, who were under no criminal denunciation whatsoever, "a vengeance mingled with a sort of justice;" he observes that "they had been a long time spared by the sword of the law," and calls by anticipation all those who should represent this "effervescence" in other colours, villains and traitors.

It is very remarkable that he takes upon himfelf to know the motives of the affaffins, their policy, and even what they "believed." How could this be if he had no connection with them? He praifes the murderers for no not having taken as yet all all the lives of those who had, as he calls it, "presented themselves as victims to their fury." He paints the miserable prisoners who had been forcibly piled upon one another in the church of the Carmelites, by his faction

6

d

C

-

11

0 ot

ts

e-

h ad

e-il-

be

meir

wo

ith

no

ofe

as

ble

one

his

ion

faction, as presenting themselves as victims to their fury; as if death was their choice; or, (allowing the idiom of his language to make this equivocal) as if they were by some accident presented to the fury of their affaffins: whereas he knew, that the leaders of the murderers fought these pure and innocent victims in the places where they had deposited them, and were sure to find them. The very selection, which he praises as a fort of justice tempering their fury, proves beyond a doubt, the forefight, deliberation, and method with which this massacre was made. He knew that circumstance on the very day of the commencement of the maffacres, when, in all probability, he had begun this letter, for he presented it to the Assembly on the very next.

Whilst, however, he defends these acts, he is conscious that they will appear in another light to the world. He therefore acquits the executive power, that is, he acquits himself (but only by his own affertion) of those acts "of vengeance mixed with a sort of justice," as "an excess which he could neither foresee nor prevent." He could not, he says, foresee these acts; when he tells us, the people of Paris had sagacity so well to soresee

in

af

60

W

en

ha

gr

m

m aff

W

da

m fc

ot

gr

pr

no

W

lar

Vis

to

the defigns of the court on the 10th of August; to foresee them so well, as to mark the precise epoch, on which they were to be executed, and to contrive to anticipate them on the very day: he could not foresee these events, though he declares in this very letter that victory must bring with it fome excess; - " that the sea roars long after the tempest." So far as to his forelight. As to his disposition to prevent, if he had foreseen the masfacres of that day; this will be judged by his care in putting a stop to the massacre then going on, This was no matter of forefight. He was in the very midst of it. He does not so much as pretend, that he had used any force to put a stop to it. But if he had used any, the fanction given under his hand, to a fort of justice in the murderers, was enough to difarm the protecting force.

That approbation of what they had already done, had its natural effect on the executive affaffins, then in the paroxism of their fury, as well as on their employers, then in the midst of the execution of their deliberate cold-blooded system of murder. He did not at all differ from either of them in the principle of those executions, but only

tò

1,

1-10 cs

it

30

is ſ-

re

n.

he

e-

to en

11-cę.

dy

15,

on ·u-

of

of nly

in

in the time of their duration; and that only as it affected himfelf. This, though to him a great confideration, was none to his confederates, who were at the same, time his rivals. They were encouraged to accomplish the work they had in They did accomplish it; and whilst this grave moral epiftle from a grave minister, recommending a ceffation of their work of "vengeance mingled with a fort of justice" was before a grave affembly, the authors of the massacres proceeded without interruption in their business for four days together; that is, until the 7th of that month, and until all the victims of the first proscription in Paris and at Versailles, and several other places, were immolated at the shrine of the grim Moloch of liberty and equality.—All the priests, all the royalists, all the first essayists and novices of revolution in 1789, that could be found, were promiseuously put to death.

Through the whole of this long letter of Roland, it is curious to remark how the nerve and vigour of his style, which had spoken so potently to his sovereign, is relaxed, when he addresses himself to, I usef

Rol

Bril

mer

fign

the

hol

wh

the

jobl

the

figi

a g

Na

Af

bui

and

the

fal

B

lot

himself to the sans-culottes; how that strength, and dexterity of arm, with which he parries and beats down the scepter, is enseabled and lost, when he comes to fence with the poignard! When he speaks to the populace he can no longer be direct. The whole compass of the language is tried to find synonimes and circumlocutions for massacra and murder. Things are never called by their common names. Massacre is sometimes agit ation, fometimes effervescence, sometimes excess; sometimes too continued an exercise of a revolutionary powering in massacra and exercise of a revolutionary.

However, after what had passed had been praised, or excused, or pardoned, he declares loudly against such proceedings in survey. Crimes had pioneered and made smooth the way for the march of the virtues; and from that time, order and justice, and a sacred regard for personal property, were to become the rules for the new democracy. Here Roland and the Brissoins leagued for their own preservation, by endeavouring to preserve peace. This short story will render many of the parts of Brissoi's pamphlet, in which Roland's

Roland's views and intentions are fo often alluded to the more intelligible in themselves, and the more useful in their application by the English reader.

the.

nd

en

he

đ.

to

ore o

eir

na

ers.

Total

50 ddo

en

res.

es

he era

950 le i

ed

to.

NX.

ch

d's

e comes to fence, with the poignard hie When he Under the cover of these artifices. Roland. Briffer, and their party hoped to gain the bankers, merchants, substantial tradefinen, hoarders of affiguats, and purchasers of the confiscated lands of the clergy and gentry, to join with their party, as holding out fome fort of fecurity to the effects which they possessed, whether these effects were the acquisitions of fair commerce, or the gains of jobbing in the misfortunes of their country, and the plunder of their fellow citizens. In this defight the party of Roland and Briffot Tucceeded in a great degree." They obtained a majority in the National Convention. Composed however as that Assembly is, their majority was far from steady! but, whilst they appeared to gain the Convention, and many of the outlying departments, they loft the city of Paris entirely and irrecoverably; it was fallen into the hands of Marat, Robertpierre, and Danton. Their infframents were the Sans culottes, or rabble, who domineered in that capital, Roland and endlaries, and received other daily pays of the people of property were of no confequence, and trembled before Marat and his janiflaries has that great than had not obtained the below of the thete, it was not yet come to his rum to act the part of Briflot and his friends, in the affection of subordination and regular government. But Kober pierre has survived both these rival chiefs, and is now the great patron of Jacobin orders of the daily.

Which threatened to leave nothing to the Marie the Marie outney!!

adtiv fenta riging Clare depa latio pality fron again die mai plea thou ven In b and: wide ther hou

letie

(IO)

HI

HOP

thele

6 à 11

3

H

i

re

b

E

77

ÍS

9-

d

h

1

Ċ,

le

6

让

d

ab

di

6

thefe places. Jave Bourdands on account of the addiving pand teleducate tof forme a doubt a representation fentatives withis diperiority was the unoffedit ringuished in This orlast, city is seed on the Gardine or Gironde; and being the center of a departments named from that biver, wther appellation of Girondifts was given to the whole painty Bahefel and fome other towns declared frongly hagainst the principles of anarchy and against the desposition of Paris in Numerous ade drelles were fent to the Convention, promising to maintain its authority, which the addressers work pleased to consider as legal and constitutional though chosen, not to compose an executive governments but to form a plan for a confliction. In the Convention measures were taken to obtain an armed force from the feveral departments to maintain the freedom of that body, land to prowide for the personal safety of the members; heithen of which, from the 14th of July 1789 to this hour, have been really enjoyed by their affern dies fitting under any denomination population deather dialine and in the characters of the cha This scheme, which was well conceived, had nor the defired success. Paris, from which the

d 2

Convention

be m

or go hose

veral

In dec

distinct ation

[mall myste

n'aW

egles

d Idia

herfar

or he more

he re

mofter

Anoth

heign

nfilmer

e bell

rrespe

Conve

hemin

sd!

dared to thew their faces in that affembly balling coths at least of the Jacobia Clubs throughout France, adhered to the great patriarchal Jacobipiere of Paris, to which they were (to tule their own term) affiliated. No authority of magistracy. judicial or executive had the least weight, whom ever these clubs chose to interfere; and they chose to interfere in every thing, and on every occasion. All hope of gaining them to the support of property, or to the acknowledgement of any law but their own will, was evidently vain, and hopeless. Nothing but an armed infurrection against their anarchical authority, could answer the pura pose of the Girondins -- Anarchy was to be cured by rebellion, as is had been caused by it is not said in creatical theoreforhad edencii e ill epublically the his and the commons of Paris, which it was beped would be supported by all the remaining property of France. It becametable utely needlately prepare a manifesto, laying before the public, the whole policy, genius, characters and doubted of the partifance fully land deadly and to make the partifance fully land deadly and to make the partifance fully land deadly is an in the beautiful as fully land deadly is an interest to be

4

t

k:

2

.

t

ŀ

1

14.0

Ĕ,

d i

be made, it was of the fame unavoidable necessity to go through a feries of transactions, in which all choice concerned in this revolution, were at the ferently periods of their activity, deeply involved to confequence of this design, and under these difficulties. Briffet prepared the following declaration of his party, which he executed with no small ability, and in this manner, the whole mystery of the French Revolution was laid open in all its parts.

It is almost needless to mention to the reader the face of the design to which this pamphlet was the face of the design to which this pamphlet was the face of the design to which this pamphlet was the face distributed to refer to what La Payette calls the most face due fould duries, that of insurection. Another zera of holy insurection, commenced the gulbrof last Mayo As the first fruits of that 1793 insurection grafted on insurection and of that references of the members of the convention was laughed to seconds. They had been selves shewere in their proceedings against the late King, how little the most fixed principles the to be relied upon, in their revolutionary constitution. The members of the Girondin party in the Convention, were seized upon or obliged to fave themselves by slight. The unhappy author of this piece, with twenty of his associates, suffered together on the scassold, after a trial, the impurity of which puts all description to designed together but the scassold.

the

neutrolershind and took liver berion was less open

The English reader will draw from this work of Briffot, and from the refult of the last struggles whis party, fome useful lestons, of He will the enabled to judge of the information of those. who have undertaken to guide and enlighten us; and who for reasons best known to themselves. bave thosen to paint the French Revolution and its confequences in brilliant and flattering colours They will know how to appreciate the liberty of France, which has been for much magnified in England They will do justice to the wisdom. and goodness of their Sovereign and his Parliament, who have put them into a frate of defence, in the war, audaciously made upon us, in favour of that kind of liberty --- When we foo (as here 930

her rad will a ft. of und of und to u publichate affair fecularies in the faithful fen fen fecularies in the faithful fen fen fecularies in the faithful fen fecularies in the faithful fen fecularies in the faithful fen fen fecularies in the faithful fen fecularies in the faithful fen fen fecularies in the faithful f incic

here we must see) in their true colours the character and policy of our enemies, our gratitude will become an active principle. It will produce a strong and zealous co-operation with the efforts of our government, in favour of a constitution under which we enjoy advantages, the full value of which, the querulous weakness of human nature requires sometimes the opportunity of a comparison, to understand and to relish.

There are a south wants the second south and a second

C

h

94

b.

19

of da

g,

3-

e:

in

as

re

Our confidence in those who watch for the public will not be leffened. We thall be feitible that to alarm us in the late circumstances of our affairs, was not for our moleftation, but for our fecunity will We shall be fensible that this alarm was not ill timed and that it ought to have been given, as it was giveny before the enemy had time fully to mature and accomplish their plans, for reducing us to the condition of France, as that condition is faithfully and without exaggeration described in the following work. We now have our arms in our hands: we have the means of oppoling the fense, the courage, and the resources of England, to the deeped, the most craftily devised, the oning best best combined, and the most extensive design, that ever was carried on fince the beginning of the world, against all property, all order, all religion, all law, and all real freedom. montadorige mon to 0

T

e

0

d

d

*

ai

d

935

Irs

e e

18

101

Pa

co

9%

110

fig

fpl

श्मित

the

thi

dislike of those proceedings, till Dumouner was The reader is requested to attend to the part of this pamphlet which relates to the conduct of the Jacobins, with regard to the Austrian Netherlands, which they call Belgia, or Belgium. It is from page 72 to page 84 of this translation. Here their views and defigns upon all their neighbours are fully displayed. Here the whole mystery of their ferocious politics is laid open with the utmost clearness. Here the manner in which they would treat every nation into which they could introduce their doctrines and influence is diffinitly marked. We see that no nation was out of danger, and we fee what the danger was with which revery nation was threatened. The writer of this pamphlet throws the blame of feveral of the most violent of the proceeding ton the other parryn He and his friends, at the time alluded to. had a majerity in the National Affembly bolde lan admits that neither he nor they ever publicly opposed factions

jak

he

船

70

lib

nBf

the

ds,

om

lere

aurs

y of nost

ould

tro-

igly

5.00

with yriger

ralopf

other

ed 10,

boHe.

blicky

opposed these measures; but he attributes their lilence, to a fear of rendering themselves suspected. It is most certain, that whether from fear, or from approbation, they never discovered any diflike of those proceedings, till Dumourier was driven from the Netherlands. But whatever their motive was, it is plain that the most violent is, and fince the revolution has always been, the pre-Relgia, or Belgium party. pager a carol page cline, dudhia atrimbatilon challere

If Europe could not be faved without our interpolition, and certainly it could not I am fure there is not an Englishman, who would not bronk to be left out of the general effort hade in favour of the general fafety. But we are not lecouldn'y parties in this war; we are principals in The danger, and ought to be principals in the exertion. If any Englishman asks whether the defigirs of the French affaffins are confined to the spore of Europe which they actually delblate, the citizen Baffor, the author of this book, and the author of the declaration of war against England, will give him his arriver. The will find in this book, that the republicans are divided into posed ologge ad an dam & 2 factions.

m

M

W

W

41

in fic

66,

46

376

26

fai

Ph

.0

m

ve

th

eff.

an

I

of

th,

0

factions, full of the most furious and destructive animolity against each other; but he will find also that there is one point in which they perfectly agree—that they are all encloses, and the government of all other nations, and other pagating their tenets, and extending their complice by conquest.

In a cause like this, and in a time like the present, there is no neutrality. They who are not actively, and with decision and energy, against Jacobinism, are its partisans. They who do not dread it, love it. It cannot be viewed with indifference. It is a thing, made to produce a powerful impression on the seelings. Such is the nature of Jacobinism, such is the nature of man, that this system must be regarded either with enthusiastic admiration, or with the highest degree of detestation, resentment, and horror.

It is true, that in this present work, which the hoverholim field time of oldered for an appeal to for a reign nations and posterity, he has dressed up his philosophy in as decent a garb as he could to make

*

ind

er-

nito

h

No.

olte

A S

199 ore-

not

Ja-

not dif-

rful

e of this

aftic

efta

SIL

the

for

his

d to

nake

make het appearance in public; but if the reader wishes to see her in all her naked deformity, I would further refer him to a private letter of Briffor written towards the end of the last year, quoted in d date very able pamphlet of Mallet du Pan. We musto (fays out philosopher) " fet fire to the four signatures of Rurape; in that alone is our fafety-Dumourier cannot suit us. I always distrusted Miranda is the general for us; he understands the revolutionary power, has has " courage, lights, &c." Here every things is fairly avowed in plain language. The triumph of philosophy is the universal conflagration of Euope, and the only real diffatisfaction with Dumourier is a fulpicion of his moderation. ... ha this very pamphlet he gives the preference to Miranda, though without being fo explicit, as to all his reasons.

Another great lesson may be taught by this book, and by the fortune of the author, and his party:

I mean a lesson drawn from the consequences of engaging in daring innovations, from an hope that we may be able to limit their mischievous leading the roll bengues whether mischievous operation

rol besiding, know a range of the has drested up has drested up has see the translation of the party of the has drested up has been a garb a se decent a garb a se de operation at our pleasure, and by our policy to secure ourselves against the effect of the evil examples we hold out to the world. This lefton is taught through almost all the important pages of hiltory: but never has it been taught to clearly and fo awfully as at this hour. The revolutionists who have just suffered an ignominious death, under the fentence of the Revolutionary Tribunal (a tribunal composed of those with whom they had triumphed in the total destruction of the ancient government) were by no means ofdinary men, or without very confiderable talents and relources. But with all their talents and refources, and the apparent momentary extent of their power, we see the fate of their projects, their power, and their persons. We see before our eyes the absurdity of thinking to establish order upon principles of confusion, or with the materials and instruments of rebellion, to build up a folid and stable government. haps be the most fit to convey the author's peculiar

Such partisans of a republic amongst us, as may such partisans of a republic amongst us, as may not have the worst intentions, will see, that the principles, the plans, the manners, the morals,

nd

nd

dv

ion

mo

(yf ob

nu sci

he

prig

the

ard

Con

qui

int

tin

and

elf

T

po

ha

m

, D

ali

le.

am-

n is

s of

arly

rifts

ununal

nom

tion

of-

ents

TC-

of heir

our rder

ate-ip a thog

nap

way

the

als,

and

and the whole fystem of France, is altogether as operation at our pleasure, and by our policy to see operation and duration of any raction and duration of any raction and duration of the course of the evil examination as it is to that of a ples we hold out to the world. It is indeed a ples we hold out to the world. It is indeed a taught through almost all the important pages of the revolution of the revolution of the revolution and so and fo awfully as at this bour. The revolution and fo awfully as at this bour.

ignominious death, un The translator has only to fay for himself that he has found some difficulty in this version. priginal author, through haste, perhaps, or through he perturbation of a mind filled with a great and arduous enterprize, is often obscure. some passages too, in which his language requires to be first translated into French, at least into fuch French as the academy would in former times have tolerated. He writes with great force and vivacity; but the language, like every thing else in his country, has undergone a revolution. The translator thought it best to be as literal as possible; conceiving such a translation would perhaps be the most fit to convey the author's peculiar mede of thinking. In this way the translator has p credit for style; but he makes it up in fidelity. ciples, the plans, the manners, the morals,

Indeed the facts and observations are so much more important than the style, that no apology is wanted for producing them in any intelligible manner.

when which can only answer the purpoks of stabum but medde

hat

be ho

mi

on

h

[e] te

on S

ve

ne vil

I

ve

f od

rit

ge

THE subola truth hear play to lay total from the is beginning of the Reve of the Men were afraid erty; that they thould believed it, that lifete! louid diffeourage the properties they thould ! nbarrais the progress of their This gircumection is proper, and level the Petros when has ons owe their falvation or bards that mension to co nticular bodies of man, a becomes facal hen the nation only estimate the nation of faving elf. To conceal grothe acaden as own lituation to nurse its lethargy ' it waste be led to make eat efforts, and to give had their proper direcan without being fully language, a sharfferation & Such is our pretent published and at a according re which has engaged ment over away entirely le vell which hides after or the chuse of our Ustable: convinue then a translation would per-It may, perhaps, be thought that I have been toovere towards many individuals, and to many bodies men. I have told the trush or was my durybas do to, and if I have any caule of regret, it is it at the rapidity with which this work has been ntten and printed, has not permitted me to being ced cether all the circumstances which might be ne-

fary to give a just idea of men and things.

adece the facts and object with heard for much and we inportant than the ftyle, that no apology is mant The Author's Advertisement.

Misade's that with the integrity, the finner the impartiality that was to be expedied from to per delivered a dedocratic settler judgemen

jed 1 54,1

UOI din

12.

37 37

eli

It

19

T.

YS

1111

jou 111

charloso reas at willied white a HE whole truth has never been told from the beginning of the Revolution. Men were afraid berty; that they should dishonour it, that they nould discourage the people, that they should mbarrass the progress of affairs. This circumbection is proper, and even necessary, when nations owe their salvation to particular men, or to articular bodies of men; but it becomes satal then the nation only can be the means of saving self. To conceal from a nation its own situation to nurse its lethargy. It cannot be led to make reat efforts, and to give them their proper directions and the same self-base on without being fully informed of that fituation. Such is our present position, and such the move which has engaged me to tear away entirely e veil which hides from us the cause of our vils.

It may, perhaps, be thought that I have been too vere towards many individuals, and to many bodies men. I have told the truth; it was my duty do fo, and if I have any cause of regret, it is, at the rapidity with which this work has been ritten and printed, has not permitted me to bring gether all the circumstances which might be neflary to give a just idea of men and things.

There is, however, one body to whom I ought here to do justice; it is the Revolutionary Tribunal. I have elsewhere mentioned the mischief done by that body; I must here relate the good they have since done. They conducted themselves in Miranda's trial with the integrity, the simmess, the impartiality that was to be expected from true Republicans. May they persevere in the same spirit, and posterity will pardon the other judgements with which they might justly be reproached.

This homage which I pay to this tribunal, I will pay to all my enemies, when they shall do what is right; for my pen is never carried away; by passion. I am under the dominion but of one passion when I write, the love of liberty. The desire of seeing a Republican Government established in my country, and philosophy triumphant every where, that is the passion of my life; the disappointment of which has sometimes produced that violence of expression of which I am accused.

the Revolution advanced to a point, to which four years ago it would have been folly to imagine it could be carried! How afflicting is it to see that Revolution falling back, while every thing was co-operating for its establishment! After all the experience that has been obtained, shall all be lost to liberty, to other nations, to suture revolutions? No; if the nation can succed in establishing order within her own bosom on that word depends the liberty of the universe, and it is for that alone I write.

ods Paris May 2230 12793, 200 10gir guides vol ture the 2d Year of the contact present above the state of the reader will find it repeated the reader will find it repeated to the reader will find it repeated.

Spaniative,

J. P.

113

110

III

9

. II

1

1

4

1

bet

wif

of

of

th

ai

0

al

10

ri

b

d

2 15

tht ou-

ne

in fs,

ue oi-

its ill

Dy

if-

in pat

en

41

1t

at

as je

ft

5

rd

70

There is, however, one body to whom Lough here to do justice; it is the Revolutionary Tribunal. I have elsewhere mentioned the mischief don by that bo Lo Co Co Co I Ardelat the good the have fince done. They conducted themselves a Miranda's trial with the integrity, the simpartiality that was to be expected from truthe impartiality that was to be expected from truthe impartiality that was to be expected from truth and Los Co Lance of the Same of the single of the same of th

This homage which I pay to this tribunal, I will say to all my esternic, which they shall do which the for your paying a way; by

It is time that our fellow citizens, that foreign nations should judge between us and our adversaries. It is time that it should be seen who the men are who wish to save the Republic, and who the men are who wish to desire it. The evil is at its height; mystery would be but a dangerous palliative.

my country a server of my life; the difference that is the state of my life; the difference of the difference o

HAVE announced from the commencement of the Convention, that there is in France a party of diforganifers, who aimed at the destruction of the Republic, even in its cradle.

The existence of this party has been denied. All sincere sceptics ought now to be convinced. All blues

I now mean to prove, 1st. That this party of anarchists has domineered, and does domineer, -ated over almost all the deliberations of the Convention, and all the operations of the Executive Council.

fole cause of all the evils, as well interior as exterior, which afflet France. to viried the bonder

3d. That the Republic cannot be faved, but by taking rigorous measures to rescue the representatives

B 2

^{*} The translator prefixes the above little note, because his author does so. The reader will find it repeated in the body of the work, P. 14.

representatives of the nation from the despotism of of three years flanding, it was diffications sich, ed deread the abuse of words; rit is this abuse that gives fo much strength to political quacks. It must therefore be our first business rightly to define that anarchy which knaves dexteroully confound with patriotism. It must be defined before I present the hideous picture of its crimes, before I offenthe remedy for our distempers to blood olds welt tadt

The laws without execution; the conflituted authorities impotent and difgraced; ichimes whpunished; property of every kind attacked; personal fafety violated; the morals of the people corrupted; no constitution; no government; no justice. Such are the true features of this anarchy; fuch is precifely the fystem uniformly followed by the party that I have denounced; a system which has appeared to me subversive of all republican government: for that reason, before I enter upon my subject, I must set forth the principles which have guided me, as well as all the other respectable deputies to whom I have the honour of calling inywith it, when they have a he great .bosirb sollar

And was my opinion on coming into the Convention, that fince Royalty was annihilated; fince the Republic was established; since all the powers of government were in the hands of the people, or their representatives, the patriots ought to change the live of their march in confequence of the refpect for the laws, the engithed risht pripageds

blult was my opinion that the infurrectional movements ought to cease; because, where there is no longer any tyramy to demolify there ought no longer to exist any force in a state of insurrection; because, where to build is our bufiners alone, there, nothing is wanted but order and reason. reprefentatives

C

1

t

1

of

at ft

at

h

ne

ie

--

1

h

diwas aware that at the end of an Revolution, of three years standing, it was difficult enough, all at once, to calm the commotions of the people; because their agitation was the natural effect of the force of events to because it was the first time that the people had ever been in the full exercise of their own authority to because a people influemerging from flavery is a child, and that it is quite natural that they also should sometimes break to pieces their own work, that they should rise against the very authorities that they them felves had created mode

But I thought at the same time that if those popular impulses which throw fociety into terrible convultions were continued too long, the people in that cafe would tear themselves to pieces, conceiving they were only destroying their instruthat I have denounced be withem which hatness

It was my opinion, that they would foon come to regret the lethargic tranquillity of their former desiderare bondage wife care was not taken to procure for them a republican tranquillity, because the People withed to be happy; because they more especially wish it, when they have made great and long facrifices; because happiness does not at all confist in the eternal repetition of violent convultions; because if robbers live by seditions, the People live government were used bear bear of the store, yo

My opinion was, that order alone could procure this tranquillity; that order confifted in a religious respect for the laws, the magistrates, property of all kinds, and perfonal fafety; that this order could only refult from the due execution of the laws; that the laws could not be executed, but by invefting all the constituted authorities with power. respect mand considences at blind outstand aluesed careful of wenterbox or deradereastipoliels any egaid;

th

B

al

P

1

I was of opinion, that it was easy to surround them with this power, this respect, this confidence; since, after the victory of the 10th of Ausgust, the patriotic party of necessity became made ters; fince there were some good laws in care iftence; since those that were bad, might be easily repealed, as there no longer remained any opposition; since the ministry, the tribunals, the admittions of the departments, every thing was capable of being, and every things almost every where, actually was of a popular composition.

made to the royalists, and to the aristocrats, who are eternally repeating, that order is incompatible with a Republican Constitution; that this constitution does not suit a vast country, and a popular

tion of 25 millions and the date that ideword I

I was of opinion, that the establishment of that order was the furest means of facilitating a supply of recruits, and provisions for our armies; of low-ering the price of the necessaries of life; of put-ting out manufacturers to work; of keeping up the credit of our assignats; of accelerating the sale of the national estates, and the estates of the emigrants.

revolutionary measure; fince on one fide it tended to confirm our revolution at home; fince on the other pitt gave us powerful means of contending with our enemies abroad; fince, finally, situred; depend that revolution honourable and dear in the eyes of foreign nations, whose effects and affect tion do not side oneitianed.

I conceived that this doctrine was as good and more useful for the citizen who does not possess any thing,

Because the first can live only by his constant shour, and that there is constant safety, both of life and of property, to the rich was a series of series of the property, to the rich was a series of series of the rich was a series of the ri

Reople, vand of the Republic, were the anarchifes, the preachers and of the Republic, were the anarchifest the preachers and an Agrarian daw, the the diffrations of the departments, exactibial are store not but be fatal to the people, and to liberty, fince oit could be directed only against the representatives of the people.

rection must draw after it pillage and massacres, which must weary out and disgust the massacres with the republican form of government.

I thought that the diffolution of this government could only be effected in two ways, asw I VicEither, a that the Convention, fubjugated by the anarchists, should fall into contempt, said should iffue decrees that would prove revolting and destructive to all the departments, they all should demand the renovation of that affembly by an infurrection against the factious; sor, that our external enemies, availing themselves of these conyulfions, might invade the Republic; might share it but among themselves; or might second the attempts of the first ambitious man who should endeakourato re-establish the first Constitution, dor with our enemies abroad: fimitoglably bearing ent ed I confequencly thought that all my efforts dught to be directed against the anarchists; fince they were the most formidable enemies to the establish I conceived that this doctroildungs and doctrom doug useful for the citizen who does not possess any ining.

he

27 ver

not

Con

me

bus

Such is the full om to be has uniformly guide! me in the Conventiona bihave, I therefore and veri ceased to mark out the anarchifts of all fortholidthe the fools who talk of mething but diforgenisibete when it is our bufiness ito organizes wands then knaves it whose fold view is to acquire riches with domigion to themselves; by their revolutionary no power 30 and the aristocrats and the hove libering igli disguise, who coalesce with about in hopthing out ment. I have never ceased to unmalk their mas he of a through diforder, to refferer the ancienti gavern nocuvees; because I saw in them the destain win ought to flow from the eves of all Reputytingful fo

It is in the fame spirit that all those courageous. Line men, have joined me in the conflict who have the fame for the ignominate and there for the been delivered over to ignominate and there to for the conflict of the second confidence of the conflict o

Rolandines, Girondines, &c. &cilif a sin'T some short he had bave we not reason to dread the fatal life a fuence of the anarchists? Take a view of all theto. (co has been done by the Convention, by the Encourse on and Council, by our Armies I You will find this fataldw wh influence every where alike. Sieffog of ingua ou

It is time that Truth should be shown fark nekett It is time that our fellow-citizens, it at not sign of our nations, in hould judge between us paddious ded by Ye verfaries, alteris stime that it should the sequence at who wished to save the Remain has public, and bwho the men are who wished to deriv W stroynitabaThe evil is at its height Mydery mould am and pose the Republic to ruin. For novethe Republic of the be but a dangerous palliative somy for y would as the along can work its own falvations delivered ing the laws, the conflitue design were springed with the conflitue design were springed at the conflitue design with the conflitue design were springed at the conflitue design with the conflitu

workly, refpected; and on the other fide, men

simars

Sai P(II)

19V

DI

.

10

9511

110

911

Far be from me the idea of withing to disparage he Convention; I would flied the last drop of ny blood to fee the Convention honoured and revered univerfally. Alas what miracles would it iot have wrought, had it been left to its own die on only had presided in its deliberations. En but ightened wisdom, patriotism, ardent love of republicanism, incorruptible probity—all these were mited in this body ! Thefe were the characters of a great majority of its members. Some twenty men have palited and degraded it. Tears of blood ought to flow from the eyes of all Republicans. Liberty might fo eafily have found no other boun-daries than these of the world, and now she must for roughly confine herself within the limits of France, Can the folidly establish herself even of there? This is still, and I speak it with grief, this is ftill a problem. And why is it so? Because a so core of anarchists have usurped in the Convention; and over the constituted authorities throughout the whole empire, an influence which reason alone ought to possess.

Cinzens of the departments ! you are confounded annihilated! What twenty men! Yes!

Ye, who fail doubt it, follow me in the enumer in ration of facts. It is with the documents in the Whatever good the Convention has done, the anarchite have found the feeret of rendering of be suit and word. Whatever milchief sit has done in

Pollow the debates, you will there fee on one no band, men always occupied with the care of magu cing the laws, the constituted authorities, private property, respected; and on the other side, men always employed to keep the People in agitation; to diferedit by calumnies the constituted authorities; to protect crimes by impunity, and to relax all the bonds of lociety.

In the midit of this conflict, you will lee the majority of the Convention, pure, lound, attached to principles, incellantly turning their attention towards the law, and incellantly too, fuffering themselves to be led by those who delives it. One verse describes them; but how thocking is this verse!

you will supodorqueroilism osbiV recomment this wife decree, upon the re-iter tree roups) susings Que chiefs

po

W

of of fo

di

y

de

0

je

Y

000

Thus, you will first see them adopt unanimously the principle of a department al force, proposed by Buzot; that principle which would have insured the independence of their deliberations; that principle which would have consecrated the unity and indivisibility of the Republic; that principle which, carried into execution, would have deprived the banditti of that force which they abused, in order to hold the national representation in havery; you will see them, then (affrighted by calumnious infinuations, by the words so often repeated, Pretonian Guards; words which insulted the love of liberty in Frenchmen,) abandon this proposition. From that moment the violation of the treedom of opinion takes its date.

decree, proposed by Buzot, against the instigators of murder; feel the necessity of putting, a stop to incendiary writings, which every day instance the bandisti, and then bury in thence that salutary and then bury in thence that salutary

sperty, respected; and on the other webs withou

SARANIE

on ;

lax

Phe

red ion

S L

fib

OV

ny by ed

nnd h,

he er 20

us d, ye

n.

of 1

a rs

Pdy

neutring the state of the rest of the policy of the spirits to furnously about the spirits to furnously about the policy of the spirits of th Convention from places during fix years, which was proposed by Gentonne—an exclusion which or oved the diffuterestedness of the party accused of aiming at the government; which condemned the ambition of the anarchists to silence; which forced them to give a Constitution; pure and disengaged from all secret and particular viewsyou will fee them afterwards recommit this wife decree, upon the re-iterated instances of the chiefs of the anarchists themselves. For their first object—of their ambition—is Places; their aim is to domineer to-day, and also to domineer tomorrow.

mortow,

"You will see the Convention first moved by the charges of trium virate, of dictatorship, presented against Robelpierre and his accomplices; convinced to distolve the legislative assembly; convinced that they wished to lord it over France, and in consequence welcome the noble and spirited accusation of Louvet against Robespierre and Marat. You will dee them in the next instant after the most milerable julification of Robelpherre, from thefe denunciations, pass to the order of the day, and thus infure the triumph of the anarchiffs, under pretence of bufying themselves no longer about thefestitle undertakers of revolutions, no make ale of the Words of Barrere. Barrere, However, forgo, that not to punish these tritle undertakers is to encourage them, and that being encouraged, they find in their audacity the fecret of forcing the Convention (12)

Convention to be eternally busied about them: the such that proved heard? Thorrand and the such that the field of the Ordans of the views and the stellesthood the proposition party; receive and Buzot, to Banish the whole made by Louver and Buzot, to Banish the whole bourbow family from the land of fiberty. You will feet them afterwards imposed upon by a stage trick, and aftergued by vociferations, sulpend the execution of this falutary decree, and restore their leader to the anarchists; for a leader they were insolved to have: Chabot avowed it on the rolumnming the grant and anarchists.

trated with the holy horror at the malfacres of the trated with an holy horror at the malfacres of the the september.—The malfacres, which were only the eight of the conspiracy, framed for the purpose of dissolving the legislative assembly—and forthwith invest the municipality of Paris, or rather these who lead it, with supreme power.—The massacres (I say) which have made humanity Bullder, fullied for ever the revolution, and alternated foreign nations from us for many a day.

them with indignation the accomplices and apologitis of thole malfacres, who did not bluth loudly to filler these enormities the grand creed of factorial liberty. You will bee them order the profession of those malfacres on the motion of Gentunies and order at the next day after the condensation of Louis, for the purpose of proving to the world, their justice and impartiality. You will result and impartiality. You will result and impartiality. You will result and impartiality and will result and impartiality. You will result and impartiality and will result and impartiality.

* A phrase of Collet d'Herbois to the Jacobins.

Collat.

B

falle

falle terrors, dexternully ipread about respecting the renewal of that St. Barthologowi whom only indicated that proceedings and thus plunge frame and all nations in mourning, burseyer conferring most honourable and the most important emissions in mourning that it is the most honourable and the most important emissions upon these attocomes. September seems who wall covered with blood and with smud, obliged that departments to go as it were on their knees define them.

The most burse was a surveyed by political teasions, by the interest of the nation, by the interest.

You will see them first swayed by political seasons, by the interest of the nation, by the interest of the Convention, by the necessity of paying, at least for once, their homage to the "Sovereignty of the People"—You will see them, I say be incline by a great majority to the plan of referring to the people, the ratification of the sentence of Louis, and then immediately yielding to calumnious introductions, to vociferations, to terrors, to sophisms of versatile men, abandon that party which would have crushed all factions, and deprived the Kings, who were then combined against us, or who at that time kept neuter, of a new pretext for war, and the means of making all their people fanatics against the French Revolution media

pretext for war, and the means of making all their people fanatics against the French Revolution made you will see them (the Convention) presently indignant at the pillage of the 26th of February devised to excite the citizens of Paris against the Convention—and to make it contemptible order the punishment of those flagitious acts, and then religin to oblivion the expirition of a crime, which a private of oblivion the expirition of a crime, which are all the convention.

An epithet of the Pruffian Cloots; a title invented of the pruffian cloots of the mallacres of the mallacres of September.

and abrase of Collet d'Herbois to the Jacobins.

more than any other enable us to appreciate the audacity of the factious, the weakness of the con-fitured authorities, and the depravity both of the people who piliaged, and of the people who furwas the best adapted to raise the hopes of our external enemies, and to augment the furfer of liberty.

You will first see them thoroughly convinced of the impossibility of setting bounds to the intestine diffensions raised in the very bosom of the Convention and to the mutual and perpetual accu-Convention and to the mutual and personal the fations from the two parties, without bringing the nation to decide between them. You will fee them repeatedly receive with transport the motion and the repeated with the tion so often made by Gensonné and Gaudet. You will presently see them repeal these decrees and yield to falle terrors, respecting the troubles the meeting of those assemblies might occasion— Terrors, under which the anatchifts dilguile their fears of the judgement of the People's his heart of the People's his his heart of the People's his heart of the people of the following his heart of the people of the following his heart of the people of rigidly maintain the decree, which pronipited the beneficiary and mark of approbation or calleries from giving any mark of approbation or dilapprobation (and never did the Convention thew a prospect more pleasing to reason and liberty; never did the anarchits policis less influence) You will then see them allow this decrees to the pleasing to the convention of the conve cree to be violated, and this fallutary law to be forn the pieces, by these men who detest tranquility, and

13 %

and dignity of deliberation, because they expose the nakedness of their entire intignificance.

In thort, run over all the laws of the Convention, and you will see the very best decrees, passed upon and you will see the very best decrees, passed upon and you will see the very best decrees, passed upon and you will see the very best decrees, passed upon and you will see the very best decrees.

people who have a crime which is people who had been a find the people of the people of the people of all others is a series of all others. It is a series of all their changes of the people of the competition of the people of the competition greatest part of the bistory of three essemblies. This and occasioned its being adopted.

FEAR fanctified the revision of the Constitution,

4

6

Fear of Republicanism, in the time of the legillative allembly, ranged the Independents on the fide of the Feuillants; and Fear has in a great measure produced all the variations in the Convention.

Fear does not always shew itself under the fame character. Accordingly the anarchifts have the art to vary the form, in order the more effectually to excite it; and through Fear, to mankind along with them.

SCHARO

To men independent by system, and distruction from jealoufy, they pointed out those republicans who were the friends to order, as a party directed by men of deep ambition, who meant to engrols all benefits to themselves. Their talents gave colour to the acculation; their virtues made their crime the more dangerous; order was represented as their malk; the name of the law as their watch word. So that the fear of wearing the livery of that party drove away this class of independents from the cause of order.

To the suspicious men distrustry of good credulous of evil, they negligently dropped certain corruption among the friends of order. They traced back their former connections; they observed upon their connections with ministers, the conformity of their language with their of the Feuillants; And thus the Fear of treason—made them ready to take treason upon trust; and they refused order from Fear of appearing to be in concert with the corrupt, and the tools of ministerial.

power.

To men who defired to framp upon their decifions the characters of principles and of exact justice who would not condemn without hearing. nor without proofs, they faid we are in a flate of revolution; and if they still stood up for justice. they were given to understand, that so much refistance might make themselves suspected of being accomplices. Nam qui deliberant desciverunt. so deliberate is to be guilty of treason; that is the maxim of the anarchists. Fear of suspicion then made them contribute to injuffice; and this is the reason why no body has protested against so many decrees of acculation, the iniquity of which time has demonstrated. Men were afraid of being suspected as accomplices, and that is the reason why men have frood up against the cause of orders after that the anarchists had found out the fecres to render order odious, by translating it into a term fynonymous to Aristocracy.

There is little freedom of opinion where the fear of calumny prevails; there is still less, when that calumny may lead to a physical assignation, as it certainly does lead to moral assistantion. Finders are few men who have strength of mind enough at once to brave (I will not say death) but the incessantly renewed fear of death, and the daily torture

m te

n

ti

torture of unjust reproach. It is with this twoedged weapon that the anarchists have found means to bring under the yoke, and to harness to their triumphant car the aristocrats of property, who dreaded physical assassination, and the pretended independents, who dreaded a moral assassinanation.

A very curious study is—The progress of fear, and the address which it employs in its justification; but a most melancholy study is that of the mischief it has done.

ıL.

Fig

At the outfet of the Convention, almost all the members, diffulted and shocked at the anarchical maxims, and the infolent boldness of men, who made no secret of their resolution to be our masters, received almost unanimously every proposition which tended to humble and crush them. At that time, on arriving from his home, every deputy withed to prove to his conflituents his respect for order, and for the equality of the departments. Intentibly the members begin to go a little about, to hold converse with the terrors of the Paristan name; they hear the blood-thirsty motions of the Jacobin Clib; they learn with horror the unknown details of the maffacre of the 2d of September. They fland in dread of the renewal of it. About ". all, they stand in dread of being themselves the victims; they imagine that in making forme factifices, they may appeale the anarchifts, they are therefore complantant with regard to their maccuracy in accounts, and to the deficit; complatiant to the of urpation of authority; complaifam vo notbery and mulder noon on best soon gluenes is we

The same complaifance, together with the fear that dictates it, brings over the executive council.

ho

ba

-01

tis

mal

m

O

pi

W

ir

th

ot

E

1

the inferior administrations, the tribunals, and the very men who had shewn the greatest borror at the system of the anarchists. Every one says to himself, "if the Convention is obliged to capitulate with "a gang of robbers, how can I have the folly to "think of contending with them?" and have the folly to

They do more; they give the name of patriotism to these acts of weakness dictated by perfonal fear. They deceive themselves. They believe that they have nothing but peace for their object, when their real object is the desire of personal safety—they contend strenuously against those who combat this weakness; and to justify themselves, they begin to suspect the justiness of the judgement of those who are now their adversaries; and they end by calumniating the honesty of their intentions.

behold now, what you have done! behold the abyls into which your fatal lystem of eternal compromise and concession has precipitated us. If we are at this moment the slaves of the anarchists, it is you who have prepared, who have rivetted our chains.

For what has been the fruit of your complaifance to them? The banditti have had the audaciousness to raise their head: from being the accused, they have transformed themselves into the accusers; from silent spectators of our debates, they are become the judges of them. Yesterday at the seet of the Convention—to-day they trample its dignity under their seet; masters of the Convention, through disorder, they would extend their domination over all France, and eternize it by disorder. It is the proceeding of ambitious agitators. Rerum (says Tacitus) potiri volunt; bonores, honores, quos quietà republicà, desperant, perturbata, consequi se posse, arbitrantur.*

Trace their steps with me ! do man add to maily

the

the im-

n to

He

pa-

er-

be-

nal

ho

es,

ley

m-

SCU

e.

be

m-

at ur

17

11-

a-

Co

ne

29,

le

ny

1;

5,

tronort:

These are the men who, making themselves masters of the rostrum, have banished from it all wise and regular discussions, who by concerted motions of order, have incessantly brought on disorder; who have opposed the censorial institutions proposed by Bancal and Mellinet; institutions which, doubtless, would have destroyed all the instruction of clamour and abuse, and have restored the instruction of real information, now condemned to silence.

They are the men who, fullying the rostrum with perpetual denunciations, have reduced men of virtue to the necessity of putting themselves on the desensive; when such only ought to have been accusers; who, afterwards imputing that very desence as a crime, have thrust aside their justification under the pretext of avoiding personalities; because they had exhausted calumny, and dreaded the resultation of it. Thus they every day vented fresh calcurries, and passed to the order of the day, when the time of justification arrived.

They are the men who, perpetual dictators of the committee of the inspectors of the ball, have found out the secret of filling the galleries with creatures of their own, hired to applaud their extravagances, and to hoot their adversaries; who have tolerated and projected, even within its very walls, the sale of the most opprobrious publications against the Convention, under the cloak of the liberty of the ^{*} Translater.] The excellent passage applied by M. Brissot to his adversaries, may with equal propriety be applied to himself. The judicious reader will extend the application as far and as often as he sees it necessary.

blushed to violate; in order to prevent the circulation of republican and anti-anarchical journals through the departments. For has it ever been attempted to reform the abuses which make the circumference of the hall a stage of gladiators, and its environs the lurking places of affassination. Has it been attempted to punish the so frequent imprecations, outrages, and insurrections of the galleries? No! people pretended not to hear them. This distinulation affected to be prudence; quod segmitia erat, sapientia vocabatur, says Pacitus.

They are the men who, having the committee of general fafety in their hands, and always in their hands, after having availed themselves of the error the Affembly fell into upon the affaifination of Pelletier, in order to drive their adverfaries out of that Committee, and to take poffeffion of it themselves; they are the men who, being masters of the Committee, availed themfelves of its resources to conspire against the republicans, friends of order, rather than to Suppress the aristocrats; who protecting the incendiary Pere Duchene and Marat, have haraffed the writers against anarchy by their perfecutions; who multiplying arrefts against them, have never, in spite of the decrees to that effect, given any account of such arrests to the Assembly; who have The buried every thing in mystery, even the denunciation of conspiracies against the Convention And bedicitée continues not only un punished, those addresses, those mestsham bein blossing those noingal the farces, that were successively played at the best bar; whether to intimidate the affembly, to impede them in their progress, to low discord among the members, or to disgrace and dissolve the Convention.

They are the men who stirred up the accusation of the imaginary million and a half which calumny distributed among the members of weight and instructions in the Legislative Assembly; who were the authors of the petitions from the workmen employed on the camp at Paris, stiling themselves the Nation, and wanting to put their own indemnity on a level with that of the deputies; of those insolent petitions against the pretended moderatism of the Assembly, as well as of those humiliating lessons which pretended federalists came so often to read them.

They are the men who, after having extorted millions from the Convention to keep down the price of bread at Paris (that is to fay, after having taxed all France for the benefit of Paris alone) in the name of the sections, never ceased to weary the Convention with petitions to fix the price of all forts of grain; because they knew that this established price would necessarily bring on a famine, and that famine would necessarily produce an insurrection against the Convention, its dissolution, and the restoration of Royalty. It was in the same spirit that Maury wanted the suppression of taxes; and it is not the only similarity between the anarchists and the aristocrats of the Constituent Assembly, and the constit

those addresses, those incendiary petitions, and those addresses, those incendiary petitions, and those infolent deputations, disayowed them, and hypodrically condemned them, when the Convention, absume of the convention, and the convention, and the convention, and the convention, and the convention, arritated ment.

ds

als

le

id

as

-

3

ļS

ia

e

,

e

V

irritated at this conduct, was going to proceed feverely against them; and who carrying their perfidy still farther, imputed them to their adversaries,* as they have always imputed to them the commutions, the pillages, and the burnings, which they themselves advise or execute.

They are the men who have incessantly opposed the decrees for public education, because they knew that the education of the people is the most power erful antidote against revolts, and famine; above all, against the quackery of agitators; and education is annibilated.

They are the men who, for the perpetuation of their own power, finding it necessary to perpetuate diforders, have divided fociety into two classes; those who have fomething, and those who have nothing, the Sans Culottes and the Men of property; who have excited one of these classes against the other; who, in order to ruin the latter class. wanted to have an army composed exclusively of persons, all of the former class, and paid compulsorily by the latter, and this army has been decreed.

They are the men who, in order to effect the dif-Polition of the Convention, have endeavoured to divide it into two parties: while (fetting afide them. felves) the whole Convention has but one spirit; who have invented the distinction of a right hand fide and of a left hand fide; and the denomination of appellants and non-appellants; who have charged the opinions of the former as a crime, and a title for the repreach and hatred of the people; that opinion fo politic, fo falutary, fo honourable to the people; and who have never ceased to raise

^{*} Translator. The practice of the French revolutionists from the beginning against the aristocrats. Is worth

up against their adversaries, addresses, poignards,

and featfolds average only

They are the men who, not being able to fucceed in diffolving the Convention by this line of demarcation between the appellants and the non-appellants, have endeavoured to trench upon the complete and entire state of the national representation, in pointing out TWENTY-TWO of its members whom they feared the most, and loudly called for their expulsion fometimes, and fometimes for their murder; and the Assembly, after having declared the petition against these twenty-two proferibed men to be calumnious, has suffered, has been forced to fuffer, the commonalty, and many fections of Paris, to ordain with still more fury and infolence the compulsory figurature of that petition! The Convention has suffered the vilest means, and the most illegal, to be employed to force the citizens to fign. Would fuch ourrages be still unpunished if the Convention was free, or if it enjoyed that power with which fuch an alfembly ought to be furrounded?

But is it possible to mistake the end, the real end which the anarchists propose to themselves in their cruel earnestness against the twenty-two proscribed perions?

When Cromwell wished to get the command of the long parliament of England, in order to dissolve it afterwards, he ordered also an expulsion of all true republicans; who could not endure either a king or an usurper. Colonel Pride arrested and imprisoned, by Cromwell's order, sixty of the firmest members; he drove away one hundred more, and the remainder, devoted to the persidious Cromwell, were, in his hands, nothing but a machine for making decrees, which he broke presently prefently after, as foon as the machine thought of revolting against the workman who put in in motion.

Well! this is Colonel Pride's purge (as it was called at the time,) which they want to repeat in the Convention; because the chiefs of the anarchules expect from it the same effects; because they see that the dissolution of the Convention would make room for the throne, which is preparing itfelf for an ulurper.

8

If this constant object of domination and of the diffolution of the Convention has been marked out by any events; if there is any event which proves with the highest degree of evidence, on one side, the wickedness and the power of the anarchists; and on the other side, the impotence and the abasement of the Convention, it is the forced, the commanded impunity of the conspiracy of the 10th of March, the impunity of Marat, the impunity of the Commune and of certain sections of Paris; in a word, the impunity of the chiefs of the Jacobins of Paris.

Is there, in fact, one man of reflection, who having brought together into one view all the circumstances of that audacious conspiracy of the oth of March, who after reading and meditating on that eloquent, but too delicate discourse of Vergniaud, that profound publication of Louvet, who must not be convinced that the existence of that compiracy is physically demonstrated? With what art did they, two days before, bring on the question of the permanency of the Convention! It efferted to fine an opportunity to the affassins, to comprehend in a single blow, in a single night, in a single massacre, all the heads of all the Republicans.

Thefe

cd

3

ot

fo

th

d

11

C

ta

t

ti

e

With what art did they drefs out in the colours of patriotifm, the Revolutionary This bendt; that instrument, created by the conspinal tors, either to deter the simple citizens who might otherwise attempt to oppose themselves to their fory, or perhaps to deftroy by the fword of the law these republican deputies, who might escapes the digger of the affaffins! Ferocious men! they would surpass Cromwell himself in crueky; for Cronwell imprisoned the members of parliament who displeased him, but he did not affassinate them by means of the law. With what address did they take care utterly to remove from their odious inflitution all those salutary forms, which are the protection of innocence! They would not admit juries. They feared that they might persuade themselves to entertain a good conscience; and as to the anarchists, confeience is with them but a counter-The affembly, however, revolutionary word. refused to violate its principle. They obtained their end in another manner; --- they infifted that the jurors* should give their respective voices aloud in court!-Aloud in court! When it was known that this tribunal too, would have its galleries under the direction of the confpirators! Aloud in court! When it was known that this mode alone would have enabled the Convention to have chosen the vilest wretches for members of the jury. Is it not faying to the juryman, seither "you thall perish yourfelf, or you shall make them porish whom we shall mark out to you?" Gaudet was not afraid to affert this in the rofteum

If, indeed, they can be called jurors, whom the party accused can neither choose nor reject, and who are perpetual in that office—it is in truth a commission of judges.

E

amidit

(26)

decided an etohnom alog the senivolled adulthing sembly thought as Gaudet thought; it condemned the principle. So irrefutible was the influence of the conspirators, that they made them decree over again, in contradiction to all principle, thatait iurors should be chosen by them, the Convention without doubt that the hatred which this Jaiby nah should heap upon its own head, mig mately return back upon the Convention and The ferutiny at once deceived their hopes. Good men prevailed—they were to compole this dreadful Tribunal. Anarchy, in its rurn trembled for the heads of its chiefs; anarchy was on the point for pallying this Revolutionary Tribunal; but the necessity of giving the suffrage aloud in court i but the terror ipread abroad by the people about the affaitins, drove away the friends of justion and order, who had been just norminated, and they left their places to fuch men. Would you appregiate their value? Read the minutes of they proceedings; their interrogatories; their Judge ments in They make ones hair perfectly fand end : Yes, if It is a tribunal fit to make one regret the Bastiles of Despotism, if it is an inflitution proper for ripening and rapidly bringing back, a counterrevolution in favour of royalty, it is also a tribunal as arbitrary in its forms, as abfurd, as partial in its proofs as iniquitous in fome of its judgements of high was by a fimilar Tribunal that the counterrevolution was haftened in England at the end of the last century of For the anarchits of that time fearing alike the juries, and the ordinary former Ils worth hand or your the reader ought to hike nother which Prencho institution of jaros resembles purd any ismanie and estissificated whom different principles and in some particulars ber reipectable odyr decreed an high court of juffice, which dispatched the victims handed over to it, it a most military market; which spread abload a general constell harron and indignation every where. Such was the Tribunal which was in some measure of 1000 fetyice to Cromwell, and afterwards to Charles the Second! Such was the Tribunal to much election of the long parliament with delight. Trust vision of the long parliament with delight.

明のなる

Hī

L

do

is 36

100

What enlightened Member of the Convention has not clearly feen the fatal confequences of this militution! What member has not feen that it was the work of vengeance and of ambition, especially at the time when Robespierre and Linder perfidiously swelled the list of crimes that were to be subject to its judgement; doubtless in order that hone of the bold writers who had combated their Barry Mound eleape their fury! What member did not revolt at the thirst of slaughter which tan thibugh stheir cruelries planned in cold bloss Pary in the convultions of the face, criminality in the eyes, arrogance in the tone of voice, nons not this the picture of Robeipierre ! The indignation was universal; but the conspirators were ablofundly mafters, and filence became a matter revolution in favour of revally, it is also misself to

Did not their delpotifm display itself with hith more audacity in the nomination of commissioners, whom they tent into many departments? Did not the collipitators divide the departments? Did not the collipitators divide the departments and belief? Did they not violate all the utilial forms in the not musicons in Did they not publicly, exclude all appellants as for many trainers? and infinitely artifully mipped with their readinations of respectable men, who had no participation in Their opinions mortin their crimes was it mat doud for the fake of ampoinged the respectable -part of they departments of and to give some authority and weight so their arbitrary and by rahning dbeillers of Decisions in which the fere frestable onen could bave no influence, fince they were laways andtherminority im every commission going anisad ni Ah hawhati was the subject of the fewomen illions? The shedeflity of imposing a pod the departments im regardato the views of the confpiracionis of ministating them against the deputies vibra friends of border, conjustify the affastination of shore deputies bette was the dame object, awhich add dictated the decree, by which sthe deputies dwore pechibited from writing journals wo They haped to exterminate on render those inactive who remained -midebaheir power; they hoped to frighten allathe inchual writers out of the Convention to Amariow - Edministration of little confpirators! To They knew inot that a revolution, at all times and inpul platics, dbrings, our men of courage, who fear horizo brive -death, in ordento reveal the truth to the beoples not Since every thing concurs to prove to ansimpapartial many that the conspiracy of the out of hos March had been contrived by the anarchifes mulat mitched mo other object, than to fecurented gowernmeritain their own thands by the maffacrobof the ai Republican adeputies gunthat the arRevolutionary Whitemake was only inflittuted owith us ovidento -Arengthen their power bookerons this shelfendwings that thebe choice of the code millioners that stationarpablished the Convention fleidoised to eone. sate gradual it evanisationely find extended done -tainerinded www. before the contraction in The dorined crimes, with the maffacres of the 2d of September.

E 2

(B)

S

sproof soft which was in the chands to fothe Come rention) stand the cauthous to bank which apubliche avbrued abenifelves da Howarean wesevaid. concludinginitary this filence was commanded by the men. nation interest affectibly and who were themselves resident we, should be a spring and the standing the standing the standing to the standing tof the standing to the standing to the standing to the standing to having proposed into the Jacobins, camedithen coldify manowatch over the execution vof die in etherbofand of the Convention to by il those en lo complained bitterly ahato their victims bridge not reiventhemfelves impedomplaifantly atothe place of facrifide to by those, who after having flared the departments among them felves, wanted also to hare the administration ? That administration owbich they would have usurped, had to not been beorgethe orcourageous discourses of elareveiliese Mehanny de hadritenot been forville uttendybreviolence of Bancal of That administration swhich vehelchiefs of the conspirators them affected nordelpiled because seven their own peoples had from throughotheir featet; that administration, which -orage, on encome of church country exchenged - priate to themselves under another formile for adibitions men twift and turn, but never abouden their objects she a word, what conclusion deal be drawn from albehele facts, but that the Con tention of underthe wokerof thefe very confpitators item yran Has not the dast triumph of Marat broughquellis extructive full proofe What ! whis man whendriful liseall kineaded apposed boold and direct that drang the bedifgrace offm the resolution, and off humanity, stwhot pollisting the Convention flydbissphelence, degrading lit every day by his extrefleso has done negord hursito the Eliablishment of the republication sell the ifensign hrmies father man, whater impumished crimes, with the massacres of the 2d of September,

September, have put back the universal revolution of mankind for whole ages; that man, who convicted of having preached up royalty, the dictatorship, the abasement of the convention, the mallacre of the deputies, the counter revolution, that man has remained fix months unpunished, in spite of the remonstrances of all the departments, and for fix months has been daily militing the Convention.

At last this man, after a fitting of twenty-two hours, is decreed to be in a state of acculation, in spite of the horrible imprecations of the banditti, dispersed through the galleries, in spite of innety-two deputies, who did not blush to undertake his defence, and to exhaust all their stratagems to save him; he relists the law; from his hiding place he braves the assembly, and they leave him unpunished! He fixes the day for his trial, presents himself there with audacity, surrounded by his own people, plays the part of an accuser rather than that of a person accused—rather that of a judge than that of an accuser, that of the supreme head of the Convention, and of the nation, than of a judge! Even there he tramples the decrees under his feet, drags the Convention through the mire, and loogs of his crimes.

And the tribunal after a most blameable farce, where they amuse themselves with my trial, instead of Marat's, after a ridiculous interrogatory, after a panegyric upon Marat, pronounced by the public actually in a sudject to a word, after having sported with all forms and even with the decree itself, this tribunal, in a judgement, announced beforehand, acquit Marat, though before and after, they condemn cooks and coachinen to death, for holding aristocratical and coachinen to death, for holding aristocratical and monarchical language: certainly very much to be condemned, which, without doubt deferved purplishment, but which the law never intended to purify with death.

In a condemned of the law never intended to purify with death.

And this man is carried in triumph into the midit of the Convention itself, which he came full farther to outrage. He appears there as a congueror, and Danton called this day of mourning the surface and Danton called this day of mourning the surface and the carried in the carri for virtue and liberty, a beautiful day !- Offelin demanded the infertion of that scandalous judgement in the bulletin of the day! and the alfembly (if we mult always decorate with that name, an hundred members, who, for the most part, were compoled of the protectors of Marat, or of those pro-tected by him, and that assembly) stood dumb, dilmayed, shutting their eyes upon the prevarica-tion, the violation of the law, upon the outrages done to the national representation, bedtings.

I now put it to every man of candour, where i the supreme authority at this moment lodged? Is it in the Convention, or in the revolutionary tri-bunal? Is it in that tribunal, or in Marat? Is it in Marat, or in the factions band which protects him

Oh thame! oh grief! Marat above the Con-vention! What enemy of France has not been intoxicated with this scandalous triumph? What repullican has not been wounded to the loul, and repulican has not been wounded to the lour, and has not delpaired of liberty? What man has not laid to himself, no, the Convention is not free; were it free, it would not have juffered iffelf to have been dishonoured by such enormous crimes were it free, it would nave juffered iffelf to have been dishonoured by such enormous crimes were it free, it would have suppended the court would have suppended the court library by the hard brought the members of it to trial for laying outraged justice, and the representation of the logical suppersonable were producted to the members of it to trial for laying outraged justice, and the representation of the logical suppersonable were producted to the court of the logical suppersonable were producted to the suppersonable were producted to drawn, when we bring to mind all the usurpations of power, all the violations of law, of which the municipality and the sections of Paris have been constantly rendering themselves guilty since the 10th of August, and which have always remained unpunished? For which of the laws is it that they carried into execution?

When the late municipality is seen in the face of the legislative assembly to arrogate the supreme power to itself, to cashier the department, to give a name to the new one, then to take away all power of action from it, to refuse all correspondence with the minister of the interior, to open a correspondence with all the muncipalities, to send about commissioners every where, in order to gather the whole nation round about its car; to disobey the decree which ordered the election of a new municipality, and even to force the assembly to re-commit their decree.

When one fees the fections, participating in this delirium, give their committees a right to arrest the citizens, multiply these arrests to a frightful degree, make laws upon the mode of nomination, and persevere in spite of the decrees in the mode of election, by a poll instead of a ballot.

When one lees the new municipality follow the errors of the old one, in contempt of the fovereignty of the people, arrogate to itself the right of expel ing the members who displeased them, force by a thousand vexations the mayor, whose principles were a restraint upon them, to give in his religiation, and defer the organization of the public force, in spite of ten decrees, because that

shi in a flare of inturrection seginfle the Conwal

Mhen one fees that municipality command the national representation, to facrifice enormous and perpetual sums of money, sometimes to re-limburge letters of credit, dometimes for the supplies of corn and bread, and sometimes for the expense of the police;

When one fees a fingle committee, in spite of the commune, the sections, the Convention, then fuse to account for enormous sums disapidated, and the members of the committee hot only remaining unputified, but even sitting in the bases of the convention, but daring even to accuse the most virtuous ments a silent as traditional in neuronal.

When one fees this municipality indiffice of decrees, that the barriers and the play houses at their pleasure, forbid such or such pleas, such or such journals, order to their bar the slopunes, gonerals, and ministers, enjoin them to dismus sertain subaltern functionaries, and send inquisitorial commissioners to their houses to watch over the execution of their decrees;

When one fees this municipality make laws upon the recruiting fervice, upon the certificates of civism, changing at every moment the form of them, establish them, amount them again, then allow them only to such as had signed the petition against the twenty-two proscribed deputies, or only to such as had the approbation of the popular societies, and thus by their own authority confit-tute these societies in a corporate capacity;

When one fees this municipality at length infolently demand of the Convention, whether it is in a state to preserve the public weal, openly avow the deligh of re-placing the Convention, declare ittell in a state of infurrection against the Convenagains its members, in its own bolom form a central committee for all the municipalities, and call to its afficience troops from different depart-

The leeing this chain of criminal acts, and the impunity of them, fo much audacity on one lide, and formuch weakness on the other, it is impossible that the citizens of the departments, and that all foreigners, should not conclude either that the naor that that commune is superior to it, lince the Convention is neither at liberty to make a decree against the committee, nor has power to enforce the execution of its own decrees.

What do I say? No! it is not in the commonalty of Paris that the exercise of the national sovereignity relides. It resides in a club, or rather in a fcore of those robbers who direct that club who bulige all the authorities that are constituted by the nation, to bend under them.

of the Convention domineer. It is there that the decrees are fabricated which are to come upon them with the force of a command. It is there, that under the title of petitions or addresses, orders are fabricated which are intimated to them. It is in that watchouse of calumny, that they every day diforganize every thing, the ministry, the administration, and the army. It is from thence that the deputies, the ministers, and the generals, are called upon to make their appearance before them. and humbly bend the knee. It is there that they give in their accounts, that they make their anfwers there they pay obedience to the decrees of the club, who expel or condemn their jubalterns. It is there that, occupied in acculing the Girondins of governing every thing, of ulurping every thing, the leaders of the club, drawing to themselves all authority, govern all, carry off all money, bargains, places, commissions, nominations to tribunals, &c. &c.

It is from thence, that the orders go to the revolutionary tribunal, to remove, to condemn, or absolve. It is there that the accorder of this tribunal complains that blood is not. shed in sufficient abundance. It is there that the jurymen of this tribunal promile very foon to bring to the scaffold the heads of those deputies who are enemies to the Jacobins. It is there that they make it a sport to trample the decrees under foot; to outrage the Convention, whole appellant, deputies they make it a point of confcience to encourage themselves in poignarding. It is there, that to engage the mob to massacres, they corrupt the morality of the people; they preach up the necessity of levelling all fortunes and all perious, and to carry every where the fcythe of equality It is from thence that originate the numberless writings which tend to low the fame principles, the fame hatred, the fame leditions in the departments. It is from thence that the emillation who go about preaching the war of the sains. Culottee against the people of property, &c. &c. &c. are commissioned and paid.

Every day, every night, are wimeles of these atrocious enterprises. Every night the liquid of the people is irritated, is exalperated against the Convention. Every night men go to bed with rage in their hearts, fivearing to exterminate the enumies of the Jacobins of Upon their return to their homes, in their family, in their watchoule, in their factions of the fimple and credibus working around him the contagion with which he is himfelf infected. It is thus that the public spirit is successively poiloned, and that the feditious heat themselves upon daily calumnies.

Yer I alk any man who has studied the basis tof republics, can it exist at the side of so active as focus of compirators, who communicate with those of the municipality of sections, and other clubs of the empire? Can there exist a Convention free and independent, a government and justice?

Gaudet has faid, "if two hundred counter-revo"lutionists were to preach the fame maxims in a
"club, at the fide of the Convention, they would "tall foon perish upon the scaffold." What have names to do here? The crime is the same, land that of the Jacobins of Paris remains unpunished."

For in a word, who among them preaching up mutder or pillage, or carrying them into execution, has been denounced, and handed over to the Tribunal? Who among them, openly conspiring against the Convention, has been brought to the scassoid? What do I say a Which among them has any one dared to arrest? No I deviolability is no longer a privilege of the national representation. It is the qualification of that band of robbers who violate this principle every day. Their image resembles the head of Medusa; it petrifies every thing. One trembles at the idea of pursuing a robber, who decorates himself with the name of Jacobin. It is entropy of the state of the service of the service

1

)

ib.

h

.

67.0

0

1

Yes, I declare, from the deep conviction of thy foul, that as long as there exists no power able to repress the orimes of the leaders of the Jacobins, there can exist no Convention, no Covernment! All the powers are necessarily with the class. There is the legislative body; or rather there is the body above the law—above all the constituted authorities. There is the absolute power of France.

the fovereign of the Convention. Since the roth of August it is so of the ministers.—Follow the upon this new scene.

I speak not to you of Danton. Danton was the creature of those factious men; He could not but sacrifice every thing to them.

Bur I will break to you of Roland not that Roland was subdued by the anarchists; he made head against them, even at the moment when with fovereign power they disposed of poignards but his distriction, but the filence of the Convention, who ought to have paid a folema how mage to his courage, to his immense labours, to his irreproachable probity; but the abandonment of all nature, which ought to have been fo tenfible towards that virtuous man; but the perfecutions, the humidiations, lowith which they fill drenoh him, but those insulting seals put with such brutality outhis goods, by abstupid deputy; but that perfidious citation before that v bloody wibunal, before which, many of the jurymen boasted soon to bring down his bead, but that impunity of the false witnesses who denounced him sof calumnia. tor who accused him; but the impossibility that he lies under (after four months, after ten letters,) of obtaining any report upon his accounts, in which to the last penny every thing is rigorously justified; but the impossibility of obtaining even the right to natural of going to breathe the country air; but in a word, that feeter shivering which made almost every individual dread the shipicion of being his friend, or even simply his relation. The power of his enemies, and the despotic empire that they exercised over the Convention ——Over the Convention, forced to facrifice virtue right, forced every day to hear the repetition of invectives against that venerable old man.

(38)

R

His enemies never cease to tell us, that the departments are Rolandized; that they are infected with the moderantism which he preached; that the opinion of the public must be changed must be directed.

Direct the opinion of the public Senfeless people! You know not then what the public opinion is; how it is formed! You know not then murdered by the revolutionary tribunal. Show after the land violent hands upon himself. Thus perished bue of the civil and civil after the land violent hands upon himself. Thus perished bue of the civil after in the revolutionary rebellion.

Translator. The sentence following in the original is so obscure, that I have not attempted to translate it. The author himself, by breaking it thort, these perhaps, outlet to himself, by breaking it thort, these perhaps, outlet to himself, by breaking it thort, these perhaps, outlet to himself, by breaking it thort, these perhaps, outlet to himself, by breaking it thort, these perhaps, outlet to himself, did believed the charges against his friend Roland.—The passage runs thus: "La Convention qu'on pourroit accidet de croire fines de passage qu'on la lunt abbattue contra Roland, "griefi qui n'est passaisses, qu'il faux dans irrensine These is little lost by its omission.

sadifica fair J. They hat e however triumphed,

aldua

that it is the result of the public conscience, that no power, an enemy to morality and to justice, can for any length of time give it its direction. That it governs itself but by the eternal notions of just and unjust; but by the comparison of facts, of opinions, of discussions, of facts that the cabinet is filent upon; that it governs itself upon the sentiment of enightened men. You know then, that if public opinion can be for a moment abused, can go aftray; its error endures not long; because the error is soon resisted; because public opinion in a free government knows no passion, that is able for any length of time to keep up an error.

Public opinion admired the Jacobins of Paris in 1792, because the law in them only the enemies of despetion, of aristocracy, of feuillantism. The opinion of the public abandoned them, from about the end of 1792 and in 1793; because the law in them nothing but the blind instruments of faction, which aimed at governing France; to level property, and of course to overturn the republican form of government. It is thus, we explain the inexplicable dearth of the Jacobin journals from that dates and the abandoning their cause by all patriot formalists, who had so vigorously desended them till then. *noilladay visite indicates and in a rose lequine.

A minister direct public opinion. But have they squandered more money than Montmorin and Deleffart, to revalize and feuillantize France? What inillions have been lavished, and upon writers who were not without address.

Well I has the public opinion been perwerted?
No! Feuillantism has had its faction; but the Translator.] They have, however, triumphed, public public opinion has continued found: and the univerfal congratulations upon the victory of the 10th of August have proved it to And Roland would have done more in three months them other minifters would have done indiffree years." Roland would with thirty thousand livies have done what Montmorin and Deteffart would nothere done with millions. If these principles had obtained to many partifans, if they had obtained the fuffrage of almost all France, they would have been indebted for it to Truth alone, and not to money, and not to supposed hired journals. For he preached up hatred to those who had committed the massacres, and all France execrated those who had been guilty of them. He preached up respect to the law, and all France knows that without that refpectiono Republic can exist. Roland preached truth with energy and constancy. That was his feorer, that was his fystem of corruption, which he employed with the journalists, not one of whom was hared by him. For the Patriot Journaliffs had too hinch pride to receive money, and Roland had too much vurue to pay any. total to be seed to men

Roland is no more!* The journals have not changed their principles. Who then continues their pay? All the treasures are at the disposal of the men they attack.

Certainly one might find among the anarchifts, forne, who, whether they touch foreign funds, whether they enriched themselves by pillage, or by other culpable means, have fquandered money to make profelytes to anarchy, and to pervent the public opinion. I have they succeeded? Not in

+ See note of the author in the Appendix.

^{*} Translator.] Roland, he meant to say, had absconded; for he had not then, nor till long after, killed himself.

fpite of all the efforts of that hundred commissioners from the Mountain dispersed through the departments, in spite of the circulated notes public and private, in spite of the journals and placards, the public opinion remained attached to order, because public opinion is incorruptible; because she considers of no Mountain, and that she neither does nor can see any thing but the truth under a free government.

I return to the ministers, who, since I must be plain, have been, and are rather the ministers of the Jacobins of Paris than those of the nation, and I put Garat at the head of these enslaved ministers. Garat, whose paeific character, and whose opinions, laid down in his journal (during the constituent assembly) made the friends of order hope, that under his administration, the law would at last be respected. What has he done? Scarce was he installed, when he openly shewed his complaisance for the anarchites in a perplexed memoir upon the massacres of the 2d of September; a memoir in which he falfely paints those masfacres as the consequence of the revolution of the 10th of August; * in which he absolves, he even honours the criminal authors.

A decree expels the Bourbons; and Garat, when the law itself forbad him to give an opinion, pays his court to the factious partisans of Orleans, by a turn of phrase which discovered his oppofition to that decree.

Translator.] No impartial man can with Monf. Briffot deny, that all the subsequent massacres were the consequence of the first massacre of the 10th of August, which was planned and executed by Brissot and his friends; nor will any man, but the authors of such acts, affect to make distinctions between the same crime perpetrated at different times.

The law ordered him to profesure the incendiary writers, and he was filent.

The law orders him to profecute those who had perpetrated the massacres of the 2d of September, and a culpable faintheartedness characterifes that profecution. Yet he was not ignorant, he, a member of the council, was not ignorant, that if there was any thing that could reconcile for reign nations to us, it was the rigorous profecution of those massacres. I know he will cite to me certain letters written to the public accuser, and some depositions that were collected. But it is by no means, by fuch apish tricks, that a debt facred to humanity and the revolution is to be acquitted.

I know, too, that he will quote to me his fear of exposing virtuous men, even Petion, in that process. False and perfidious managements! Petion could not be exposed but by that wickedness, which would make the inactivity it had condemned him to, a crime in him. Petion would have got out of that absurd accusation in triumph. Petion and his friends proudly rejected all managements on that head, Let us speak out-Garat's real object was to wrest from that prosecution, other men who stood charged in the proceedings, Robetpierre, Danton, and Marat. Accordingly we must attribute the suspension of that procedure to their influence. What did Garat do besides to find out the authors of the pillage on the 26th of February, and to bring them to punishment? Where are the profecutions which he has ordered ? Has he even ever given in his account of them, although many decrees have ordered him to do fo?

amino

properties being countries part

The conspiracy of the 10th of March breaks out. What did he do to prevent it? He, who if he could not precifely fix the place for the litting of the committee of infurrection, knew at least by a multitude of reports and proofs, that a formidable conspiracy was on foot against the lives of many deputies, against the liberty and safety of the whole Convention! and when that confpiracy had been discovered, what miserable fophisms did he not imploy to perfuade the Convention, and all France, that it was nothing but a chimera; that the committee of insurrection was a fable; when at the fame time the journals of the Jacobins announced to all the world, that the plot was actually on foot in the very heart of their fociety; at the very time that even the guilty avowed themselves. No! never was a conspiracy more evidently proved; never had any conspiracy a more frightful object in view; and yet the minister of justice treated it with an indifference which became the real guilt of an accomplice.*

Garat endeavoured to palliate his inertness by his pacific intentions, by his design of bringing the parties together, and by that means preserving the public weal.

I am willing to believe, that he was guided only by that motive. I am willing even to pardon Garat the outrage he did to good men, whose irreproachable character he is obliged to esteem, in putting them upon the footing of weak men whom he despises, and of profligates whom he detests. But when he saw the impossibility of being able to establish a durable peace between virtue and crime; when he faw that the anarchifts perpetually sported with their promises, and their schemes of reconciliation, which were never followed by any thing but abortive conspiracies; when he saw that the true republicans labour only for two points, provisionary order, and constitution; when he faw that the arnarchists would admit neither order nor constitution, and though the fafety of the republic depended on both : Could he have balanced between the two parties? Ought he not then to have exerted his administration in all its rigour? And if he had not the courage to do this; if the fwords which they sometimes threatened him with, terrified his fluctuating imagination, ought he not to have renounced his place, and have abandoned it to some citizen who might have had firmness enough to make head against the factious?

G 2

^{*} Translator.] This is the conspiracy which afterwards produced the revolution of the 31st of last May.

Instead of following that line which the public good prescribed to him, Garat quitted the administration of justice; but it was to exchange it for another place, the load of which was heavier. And what has he done in this new ministry, which they had already found too vast for Roland, and which nevertheless Garat alone had the direction of for fix weeks, with the administration of justice; which, from its extent, they found too well adapted to favour the desporism of a fingle man, and which nevertheless they no Jonger chose to divide, when Roland was not the possessor of it? This thoroughly proves, that party principles lean more to persons than things. Mhat, I day, did Garat do ? Always devoted to the will of the anarchifts, he shut his eyes upon the crimes of the administrative body, which they influenced. For has he annulled any of the feditions a writer, deliberations deliberations of the commune of Paris, and of its turbulent bections to No, the bent the knee before them. to obtain a certificate of civilino Did he denounce that department which ranguithe alarm bell upon the question of sublistence ! Did he denounce that formation of the army which the anarchists had commanded in the department of Bouches du Rhone, and which at present may ferve to suppress their projects? Did he profecute the dilapidators of the month of September, who never intended to give in their accounts; all the proofs of which were fent him by the commune of Paris on the 18th of February? Did he annul, or denounce that judgement of the department of the Indre and the Loire, which violated the liberty of the prefs, in permitting them to floo the circulation of this or that journal! &c. Garat carried into the interior administration the same weakness, the same inertness, the same art of the fophist to justify excess, and to dispense with the punishment of criminals. To what then must this conduct be attributed? To a want of spirit; that is to fay, to a want of that vigorous determination of a man resolved to die rather than to deviate from his principles; to that fear, which always offers incense to reigning power; He who dares not brave tyrants, he who has carefled the feuillants, must flatter the anarchists

What does it cost to a man of sensibility to judge so harshly of one of his fellow citizens, with whom that sweet fraternity which exists among men of letters, what skind of new sense, which is well understood by philosophers only; ought to unite him? There are no liwed:

How hard it is to be under the necessity of realnecessing a minister to pieces, who, as a private man, as a writer. a writer, merits esteem! To speak ill, may be an enjoyment to a calumniator by profession; it is a punishment to good men who would wish to be employed in praifes only, who would wish to fee all men happy and virtuous. But this feverity becomes aduty. To be filent would be treason. It is thus. bknow (I have but too much experience of it) that a man brings burning coals on his own head. But what is true republicanism, if it is not a perpetual facrifice of our own interest, our own taste; to the public weal? from someone of in bar

And fuch is ftill the painful fentiment, which afflicts me in running over the administration of

Pache and Monge. In more who are the bad I stand

The purity of the principles which they professed raised them to be ministers; and fear soon made them the flaves of the anarchists. Frightened at the power of the Jacobins, at their eagerness to denounce all ministers, at the facility with which the public and the Convention received them, they foon atranged themselves on the side of those, who, almost always with fuccess, wielded the poignards of caaged, outraged the (

lumny. Joseph

That lazy abandoning of principle wanted justification. They have fald, they have repeated it, that it was the cause of the people; that the people must be supported. Thus they dishonoured the fair name of the people, to invest with it an handful of ignorant or wicked men, who roated out in the rottrums, or among the mobs. The atfocities, the threats of affaffination, the cries of camibals. were the ordinary enjoyment of this people. They bave juffified them; they have gone the length of regretting with the Prussian Chots, that they bad not sufficiently septemberised: they have had a: aurition 3 the

the befores, as I may say, to deify Marat; and to glory in following his party mulican of memorial

Such is the excels of madness or hypocrify to which the people have been carried by fear They are become cannibals through fear. It is in this sketch you are to recognize Pache. No, I can never confole myfelf for having for fome time given fome thare of my efteem to that man; for having so long kept back those attacks which would have destroyed him in public opinion and in the Convention, from some of my friends who had better penetrated his real fentiments. than I bad ... I shall never confole myself for the fhare I had in the elevation of that man, who is the greatest cheat of all the anarchists, if he is not the greatest fool or the greatest coward amongst them; of this man, whose reputation was made by Roland of this man, who, as the reward of that fervice, would have given up the head of his benefactor to his bloody enemies; of this man, who through complaifance to the factious, diforganifed all our armies; and who for them, disparaged, outraged the Convention, in protecting the feditions decrees of the fections against it.

Ever attentive to the orders of the demagogues, who governed the multitude, Pache received their orders with submission. His offices were filled by those only whom they protected; the places in the army, in the interior, were only possessed by those who call themselves Sans Culottes. The murdeters of September had every where the preference call the bargains were for their advantage; thence proceeded that enormous dilapidation of all the date partments of the war. Pache distributed the fulls to the oreatures of those who commanded the rostium;

ageoff

rostrum; and they had the secret of constantly sololving Pache to the Convention. Pour or five hundred millions were laid out under that voracious minister. Where are the accounts, which the Convention had ordered to be given in every fifteen days? Those accounts which the minister was bound to give in upon quitting his administration? Bournonville, on entering upon bis administration, and after having examined the state of the expences, has declared that there was a fum of 160 millions, [about fix millions flerling] of the expenditure, of which there appeared no particulars. Cambon faid to the committee in the rostrum, that it was impossible to bring the expenditure of that department to light; that a founde must be drawn over it. (I copy his very words;) and Cambon, who has shewn fo much rancour to get a decree against those miserable little pilferargs, to profecute those obscure contractors, Cambon has thut his eyes upon the frightful expenditures of Pache. He has kept, in regard to him, a profound filence, while, in concert with the party under whose banners he continues to serve, he never ceased to declaim against Roland, who has given in his account clear to the last farthing; and while the irreproachable Roland is treated almost as a criminal. Pache has not accounted for an hundred millions which he has touched; Pache holds the first place at Paris, and they give new millions to his disposal! What is then this contusion of all ideas? What is this fecret magic which covers the guilty by punishing the innocent? It's the protection of the anarchists?

Ves, if Roland had committed the thousand a part of all that, with which Packe is to be reproached, Roland would be no more: and Packe

rigator

fleeps in tranquillity. He fleeps, after having palfied and disorganised our forces, and occasioned our external disasters! Do I say, he sleeps? He wakes; but it is that he may preside over a municipality, where they give in their accounts by threatening to thed blood.

Run over the accounts that have been presented to you by the commissaries of different armies; you will every where fee through the whole administration of Pache, that is to fay, the ministry of the anarchists, that he has been the principal cause of all our calamities. You will see every where, at the Pyrenees, at the Alps, on the Rhine, upon the Moselle, in the Belgic, a perfect concert of complaints upon the dearth of cloaths, of arms, of ammunition, of provisions; although the Convention had decreed immente fums for all these articles; although the ridiculous Haffenfrats, who, with his five millions of plebeian generals, is fit company for the madman who talked of 1200 departments, displayed to all comers superb statements in which our armies were swimming in abundance.

You will fee the provisions every where paid for two or three times over, warehouses hired at an excessive price, battalions, though reduced to a third or a sixth, still paid for at their full compliment. And why? Because the undertakers for the markets and the warehouses, the commission the markets and the warehouses, the commission the markets of the anarchists; all profited from the disorder; all enriched themselves under the cover of their masquerade of rough stern virtue, and their continually Theeing and Thoung each other.

Such, too, is the talifman which governs the offices of the marine. It is there, more than even any where elfe, that they have condemned themselves to

H

capies of that inactivity deserved to be examined to came it that Monge has not even yet accured after to will dillog and angle of them ad accurate was a war with the maritime powers was foreteen. The diplomatic committee, and that of the geperal defence, had forewarned Monge; they had put confiderable sums into his disposal; he had promised to keep himself well provided on all the coasts; to have the ships and frigates all repaired; he had promised a fleet of thirty ships of the line for the month of April; he had promised above 50 thips of the line to be ready to put to lea for the month of July; he had promised to cover the feawith frigates, and to protect our commerce; he had promised to send succour to St. Domingo, and to Martinique: an express law of the mouth of October had ordered him to do all this. Behold, what he has done! In the month of March all our privateers are destroyed by the English in the channel; and the minister at that period confessed to the committee that he had not a single advice-boat to protect them. And yet this very minister, who had not a single advice-boat at his diposal in the month of March, had in an impruident and culpable circular letter, published in the beginning of the month of January, of which Pitt well knew how to take his advantage to fire up the people of England against us, this minister had, lay, threatened England to throw hiry thouland ballerty caps with her very bolom of the month of April our trading veriels were taken by English Ligates at the very mouths of our rivers John adanger; and yet we had a fleet there of it, thipperof tremble on their thrones, beat the Durch fielts,

What is become then of that fleet Which Threatened Sardinia and all the Levaht? 39 How came it that Monge has not even yet accured the authors of that maction to which that fleet was condemned for fome months? How comes it that the has not brought this conspiracy to light, by which the arms of France were dishonoured at Caghari Hatoqlib, and oun sonn

f

How will he justify himself for not having sent any competent fuccour to the East Indies! For not having forewarned our colonies at the period of December, when the war with England was apparent ! How will he justify himself for having deferred his fending a fleet to Martinico, when a decree had ordered him to do fo? How will he justify himself for having in the month of March ordered the frigates dispatched for Martinique to cruize in the channel at the feason of the equinox, which occasioned on one hand the failure of that expedition; which, on the other hand, expored that fleet to periff, and actually did force it to return to port? And during all these delays, England, who did not begin to arm till three months after us, feur Admiral Gardiner with seven ships of the line and a number of frigates to the West Indies, and that fleet made itself master of the richest ships of our colonies. Is there then nothing here worse than folly or than negligence? Has not the perfidy of fome difguifed counter-revolutionists in the direction of the marine offices, visibly rendered our maritime forces incapable of activity, and deceived the spirit of those republicans who flattered themselves with the hopes of feeing revived those nines of the English republic, where the celebrated Blake rendered their flag respected, made knugs tremble on their thrones, beat the Durch fiets, H 2 ruined

ruiped their commerce, and kept the colonies in marine to those white people of the colonie yrub night construct the manufacture, sold to street the colonie sold the colonies of the pluow of the poly of the poly of the colonies of the sold the sold

But to what then must this incredible increnes in the department of the marine be attributed for incapacity of Monge plone, an incapacity that he has himself typing times confessed, and which became a crime when he obtained finately persevered to continue minister at a crisis to persons?

It is to be attributed to these leaders of the Jacobins, who directed Monge by means of their creatures placed under him in his lofficely it is to be attributed to those leaders who for a long time had declared that they would have nothing to do with an offenfive war, which they opposed every where in order to force us to rem nounce it; to these leaders who, knowingly or ignorantly were the instruments of foreign powers who were interested to make our forces incapable of activity, and whose agents, whether by bribing, or by flattering their vanity, led those leaders to that lystem; to these leaders who speculating for themselves, or for their creatures upon the jobs in the marine, filled them with negligence on with reguery; to these leaders who diclated their own choice, commanded them to drive away all well informed men, who infelled the offices, the ports, the arienals, with the men whom there prefected, whose ignorance shackled the progress of the navy, or whole wickedness obstructed it is self-obstructed in the Janudit T Wasoil

We will faither attribute this inertness of the marine to those white people of the colonies, wiften crats or independents, who, coalefting with the chiefs of the Jacobins, had ufurped a great influence in the marine offices, had at their own pleafure retarded athe operations with regard to the colonies, or made them frand totally ffill, in order to favour their independence, or their invalion by department of the marine be attiered of

We wish anally attribute it to Perigni, who in every thing directed Monge; whom Monge was felbedrily relolved to preferve as his intimate; although the committee of general defence had denounced that man to him as an aristocrat in difficie, under the form of Sans Culoterie, as an exphoble, The fon of a colonist, interested in the independency of the colonies. Sand connects rieds

These are the causes of the inertness of the minister of the marine; an inertness which has ruined our commerce, ruined our commerce, ruined and homiliated France in all the leas; and inerine st which must in the end deprive us of all provisions, and of all the primary articles which who were interests foreigners warnish. The sales

C

10

Jan S

0

17

T

14

9.0

31

63

N

1

Se

11

Y 11

You who, to keep your places, or throughto dread of dentificiations against you, carets the factious, whole nulliry you despite in your hearts, whose names I do not yet down, but who are ne vertheless the flaves of those profligates; I both your feered in smy Bands 3 you that not escape from inflexible pollerity; even though you should not projected, whose ignorance shackled the sequence

* Translater. This paragraph may be among the causes which shortened the trial of the author before the Revolunonary Tribunal.

Republicans!

Republicans! It is not the habit, but the fool which makes the republican; It is the inflexible man, who purfues crime even in the moment of its triumph, in the very midfl of its poignards; who tramples its favours under his feet. Cato pierced his bosom rather than receive a favour from an usurper, who would have felt himself honoured by being his filend. Cato was as much superior to the Lilliputian creatures of these times, as genius can be to stupidity.—This is the republican!

I am fatisfied that I have fully proved that the anarchifts under the name of the Jacobins of Paris, of the municipality of the fections, have governed, and do govern the Convention, the executive power, and all the administrations, and confequently that they govern the whole empire.

It remains for me to prove, that the lystem of the anarchists is the principal cause of all the evils that we suffer, whether internal or external. What in truth, are the calamities which afflict us internally? The multiplicity of crimes. That multiplicity is produced by impunity; the impunity by the inactivity of the tribunals; the anarchists protect this impunity; they strike all the tribunals with a pally, either by the fear they excite, or by denunciations and accusations of aristocracy.

The repeated acts of violence from every quarter.

The anarchifts of Paris give every day the example, and their immediate emillaries, and their emillaries decorated with the title of commissaries of the Convention, every where preach up this violation of the rights of man. What do I say! They practife that violation every where. For what town has not been witness to these outrages? What town

er publicans

Angudier y mas

has not been witness of these violations. What town has not been in mourning on account of them has not been in mourning on account of them had town have not these aparents formed committees of superintendence, revolutionary committees, who, under pretext of striking at aristocrats, strike at good parriots; because they are zealous for order, and for the relieft due to property.

61

lè

Š

is

is 1 ò

e

-

t

h

e

The dearness of bread—it is produced by the scarcity of the markets, by the want of the circulation of grain. What is it produces this solitude in the markets? What stops this circulation? The eternal declamations of the ananchists against men of property, or against merchants, whom they mark out by the name of monopolizers; the eternal petitions of ignorant men who call for a rate upon grain. The labouring man sears be shall be plundered, or have his throat cut, and he leaves his ricks untouched.

The deficit of the public contributions.—Many individuals pay nothing, because the law has no force; and the law has no force, because the anarchists take away all force from it; many districts of departments pay nothing; because the example of Paris, and of Bouches du-Rhone is seducing; because they fear nothing; neither the ministers, por the council, who dare not break the administrators; nor the Convention, which is obliged to that its eyes upon these acts of federalism; because, in thort, the assignments given for this or that occation, annihilate the return of the revenue to the center of the contributions.

Ocnter of the contributions, view of content of all and they are discredified because they are too numerous; and they are too numerous, and they are too numerous, on one hand, because the expenditure is excessive and uncontrouled; on the other hand, because the sale of the national goods is stopped. and that the fale of the goods of the emigrants is nothing; The influence of the anarchy causes this double effect. It is substantially the anarchists who order, direct, and controul all the expenditures; and on the other fide, acquificions are no longer made, when men of property are incessantly destined to the sword of robbers, when the despotism of anarchy causes an apprehension of the return of the ancient despotism.

8

The failure of the administration almost throughout. The anarchists alone occasion it, by crying out, and by making others who are their trusty friends in the clubs, cry out too, against all administrators, even the popular ones. From the moment that a man is in place, he becomes odious to the anarchists; he seems culpable; he is denounced. It is the way to curry favour by adulation to that multitude whose morals they have corrupted, and which delights in nothing but destruction.

The palfy of the administrations is also owing to those acts of arbitrary authority exercised in almost all the departments by the commissaries of the anarchists, over the administrators, who will not participate in their respect for pillage and masfacre. These acts of despotism have remained unpunished; and then for footh they expect the administrators will put the laws in execution!

Consider the departments which have been able to chain down the fury of these ferocious men. Confider for example the department of the Gironde. Order has prevailed. The people have always been fubmiffive to the law; although they paid as high as ten fols a pound for their bread, numerous battalions well disciplined have been fent to the armies

rions have always been well paid. It is that in that department they have banished the preachers of an Agrarian law; it is that in that department the citizens have bricked up the doors of that club, where they teach the fanguinary doctrines which are every day preached by the Jacobins of Paris. In short, it is, that there, the administrators, men of integrity, of understanding, and of courage, have braved both the poignards of calumny, and the menaces of the commissions, who are at the orders of the Jacobins.*

The troubles of l'Eure, de l'Orne, &c.—Thele have been occasioned by the preachings against the rich, against monopolisers, by the seditions sermons upon the necessity of setting a rate on grain, and all provisions, by force of arms.

Troubles of Orleans.—This town has from the beginning of the revolution lived in the enjoyment of a tranquillity which has not been affected by the troubles excited by the fearcity of corn in other places, although this was a corn country; because the people were made to understand the subject; because the workmen in the manufactories, the most numerous class of people in that town, found a certain substitence; because the sacrifices from men at their ease were considerable. This harmony between the poor and the rich was not among the principles of anarchy; and one of those men, employed to disseminate those principles;

1,

ts.

96

15

-

a

bellion against the Jacobins, the people of Bourdeaux have been most severely punished, and this rich commercial city put under the guardianship of the Sans Culottes.

one of these mens in whom order creates despair whole only object is trouble bestirred himself to hteak that happy concord, and laboured to excite the Saus Culories against men of property s An accidental wrangle brought a few blows upon him. and there is that grand conspiracy which has occahaned a perfectly innocent town to be declared HER State of rebellion. The commissiones day show must be surrounded with respect. Ehd that they could first surround them with wirtues; and that oppressed town still groans under a more tyrannic yoke than that of Algiers or of Constantwople! That town has experienced refinements of cruelty fuch as Tiberius would not have perwitted himself to be guilty of me and a cuoisasifie 19 The troubles of La Vendee They are owing to the aristocracy; but nothing has been of more Service to them, than the diforders and the system of anarchy. For what has more contributed to excite the fanaticism of the country people towards their priests, and their worship, than the cruelties constantly ordained by the anarchists against the refractory priests ? + What has more contributed to gnumerous and of the surface to the children of the unhapy prisoners respected to the houses of the deputies; who amused themfelves with their misery; they obliged these people to drink, the law general they have the law general the law

yd You willt find nothing like this sin the history of Ti-

Asilys even blow vedt vine seide edt gutests Shall I cite the crimes of the commissions of Lyons, Rovere, Bazire, and Legendre; their infolent pride, the implicance of their answers, their namerous Bestlement of their them in the midst of debauches nor even of Briffor's own faction with regard to the fame object.

rabust where established.

for th

SHe

An

HM,

arad

Lay

108;

note

tan-

ents

Bet-

effic

vang

agre

tem

nto

ards

4185

the

d to oners

nem-

rink,

u Ti-

affe

nents

OI Yoof

neber

render the republican form of government shocking to all men of property, and all men who live by their industry, and who want repose, than the preachings again to property and peace? Who has wonit nated that flupid minister of war, the commissions employed to repress those troubles, and those been nerals who are incapable of concerting a good plan for hemiling in the rebels! Was it not the anatchifts? Are not they the men who have palfied the executive council: who have placed it under the guardianship of the committee of public lafety, which they have made up at their own pleafure; of that committee, which allowed itself to be imposed upon by idle tales, and which never adopted efficacious measures? In short, who commanded that fanguinary taw by which every rebel, taken Tiparms, is on the inflant condemned to death? and which Ariking the peafant who has gone aftery, and who was forced, indeed, by his former lord tog make himself the affociate of his crimes; allaw, the effect of which foon runned upon our troops, fince the rebels have not failed to make reprifals; a law, the re-action of which has been still more fatal to our recruiting; as it would have been more wife, more political, to have condemned none but the chiefs to death! In making the law general, they favoured the -countererevolution a dro-have made it particulary by affecting the chiefs only, they would have divided thole chiefs from the good people, whom they had led aftray How eafy too it might have been, to have brought back for ito drave reduced those people; under an active and spirited ministry, funder a wife and respected Convention, with order where established. The I 2

The treason of Dumourier and the other general reflicers, I was fensible of the ambition, of the immorality of Dumourier, of his total indifference to the cause of liberty. He never was sincerely inclined to a republic; he wished for a monarchy, tempered by democratic forms, because that fort of government is more suitable to men of great talents, joined with firong paffions. It is observed, that even in the case of virtue itself joined with great talents, that even uniform virtue does not fix the people, that the man of the purest intentions who has best served his country, is under the republican form exposed to swallow the bemlock draught. What ought they to hope, then, fax they to themselves, who have talents only, and are void of virtue? But I will not be afraid to fay it, the calumnies which followed Dumourier, even in his triumphs, the spirit of disorganization with which the anarchists had infected his army, were the cause that precipitated his treason, and consequently September, must i september, must redminister and september and septembe

If the Convention do not foon pass a law to put a stop to this corrosive system of calumny, which fastens itself on every thing which is great and virtuous; she will soon find neither generals of experience at the head of her armies, nor men of understanding in the guidance of her administra-There is no furer way, not only of condemning honest men to solitude, but of even multiplying deferters and traitors, than these eternal denunciations of imaginary treasons, winvented at pleasure. How can it be imagined, that generals, who have filled their functions with fideby, who every day expose their lives in battle, should not feel indignation at seeing themselves ribat marked

ral

m-

to ny,

art

a-

d,

th

fix

60 an bt.

to

oid

he

is

ch

he

ly

ut

ch

nd

of

of

a-1-

en

fe.

1-

at **?-

S

d

marked out by the most worthless wretches as villains; in feeing all their actions, every difcourse of theirs, all their plans, misrepresented by calumny, and their victories themselves denounced as treasons? At feeing these calumnies greedily gathered up by the multitude, heard without indignation by the Convention, often followed even by suspensions, with orders to appear at the bar, and followed even by decrees? Must not the blood of a general boil in his veins in reading fuch a decree, especially when he recollects the coldness with which justifications are heard; with what cruelty they cavil upon certain miferable pretended proofs; with what favour they receive as truths, fometimes the dreams, fometimes the treacherous report of a discontented soldier; in a word, at feeing the facility with which fuspected generals are transferred to the Abbaye? To the Abbaye !- The very name of which place, in recalling to memory that dreadful day of the 2d of September, must freeze the heart of the boldest and most virtuous man. Citizens! anarchy has already made Anitus's and Cleons shoot up among us. But where is Socrates, where is Phocion? Are they not stifled at their birth? A republic stands on bad ground, where, at its very beginning, the chances of a man's fuccess, are all in favour of crime and against virtue.

I pass now to our exterior calamities, and I shall prove them on the same evidence, that they are all eternal denunciarions owing to the anarchists.

I do not place the war with Austria in this class; here we had no choice, it was forced upon us, we were outraged and threatened. We were under a necessity of beginning that war, marker that we might enfure fuccess in ited That war promised the most happy success; the fall of the house of Austria, the liberty of the Low Countries? ought to have been the infallible confequence of it, if our leaders had had the prudence to avoid a mourning; every man feared to merck smillrain ha Buth war with England, with Holland, and with Spain, has changed the face of affairs, and it has stopped the course of our victories. Then what has occasioned this last war? There are three lution fuffered by the profligacy causes of it: -og ft. The abfurd and impolitic decree of the roth of November which very justly excited unexfiness in foreign cabinets; a decree which men of knows ledge opposed in vain; a decree brought to nothing by the anarchists themselves, who had pushed it on with rage: it was brought to nothing after a fatal experience; but this was done too late, fince themischief had already been produced and agning 116 2d. The massacres of the 2d of September othe impunity of which, commanded by the anarchiffs, has alienated from us all the neutral ma-Fox faid to an Enel tions tanoit ed 3de The death of Louis. was or ham religionist bud have already faid it, and I will never reafe to repeat live fluce they do not cease to attribute the warnish England to me, though Lemployed all my endeavours to avoid it; those maffactes, and shabe and contain to death, have most of all contributed to that warm blear my proofs; which are Read, in thort, the numerossequenced state ni Inwascin England atque vime dalays Thomas Barnessia & aworks topon the point of being publ-

his oder to serve where, and stadmanged to be detected every where, and stadmanged to be served to the servery where the stadmanged to the servery where the stadmand to the servery where the servery the servery where the servery the s

worth

Before

Before that unhappy event, the principles of the French revolution were making a rapid progress; scarcely was the fatal news of these massacres ward rived, but a general change was apparent in the public opinion; all the friends of France were in mourning, every man feared to meet his friends the enemies of the revolution triumphediu and made every place ring with anothemas and criesiof horror against France, and these cries distracted every heart Thus, all France, the whole teves lution fuffered by the profligacy of a few midividuals. I do vain was it faid that those who perished were guilty persons; the answer was, that a prison was as facred as an altar, and that he who could violate a prison, was capable of becraying his country. by the anarchides them elve

Interrogate all the strangers, interrogate our ambassadors at foreign courts, Chauvelin, Bourgoing; they will tell you what an unhappy fenfation that death made upon the minds of all men, while it was utterly useless as to adding the

chilts, has alternate solding and orthogram has ń

a

e

ie

e

11 d

1

re

1

6

re

Fox faid to an Englishman, a friend to our principles and to our revolution: Let them be prevented from passing that sentence of death, and I will be answerable to you that there will be no war, that the opposition will prevail, that the mation will be with it; the enemies of France in the cabinet of St. James's want only that death to tributed to that w.rsw fo noisralpabos suods gnird

Read, in short, the numerous writings, the Gazettes which have appeared fince that time in England, in Germany, in Italy, vin Switzerhad. We are every where painted as cannibals; we are deteffed every where, and that hatred has been

worth

worth armies and treasures to the kings coalesced against us.

❽

I have faid it in the rostrum before the Convention, if you vote the death of the tyrant, without consulting the nation, you must the next day vote a war against England, against Holland, against Spain, who will not only make war upon you, but who will find their advantage in the use they will make of the fanaticism of their people, which this death will occasion.

They would not believe me; and the death of Louis was fearcely known in foreign nations but our ambassadors were affronted and ignominiously driven away. This outrage was either to be submitted to or be resented. Our answer was

fc

it

in

go cu

pe

no

de

of in

are

a declaration of war.

Who, then, has been the author of this war? The anarchists only; and yet they make it a crime in us! It is anarchy which has brought all Europe on our backs; it is anarchy which has alienated every nation from us, which has been the cause of all the reverses of fortune we have suffered; and the anarchists have the infamy to impute that reverse of our fortunes to men who have laboured to put a slop to those extravagances, and to prevent those misfortunes.

If, however, after having for no rational purpose brought all Europe upon our back, they had manifested that spirit which is becoming of twenty-sive millions of republicans, inhabiting a country the most fertile in resources; if, instead of limiting themselves to an ignominious desence, they had conceived, they had executed some of those great expeditions which brought all

all the kings of the earth prostrate before the

What a noble career then opened itself before our eyes!

* At the Pyrenees, Spain offered to us only mountains that were easy to pass over;

At a distance, and beyond our seas, the Spanish establishments are inhabited by a numerous people, who roar while they bite the curb, who wait only for a deliverer.

and the death o

d

t

19

-

yo

au-

e-

bt

Louisiana is a country to which we owe great reparation on account of the cowardice with which we there facrificed our brethren.

In the West Indies, the English colonies which it was so easy to have turned topsy-turvy, simply in putting the finishing stroke, to the purification government of our own colonies; a measure which is not even understood by this council.

In the East Indies it would, perhaps, be difficult to conquer the Dutch colonies; it would be perfectly easy to restore them to liberty.

In Indostan, a prince overcome in battle but not subdued; terrible, like Mithridates, even in his defeats, even in the season of his revole; a prince whose

^{*} Translator.] The reader is acquainted with the licence of the Jacobin ityle, and the injurious and indecent manner in which they treat all other nations. Some of his femilities are suppressed.

whose implacable hatred against the English waits only a season, when some assistance may enable him to attack the English power asresh; and the thread by which the power of England has its hold in India is so slender.

In Europe, Russia and Austria might have been humbled by the Port; Poland might have been preserved by the Port; and your Mediterranean fleet, at that time splendid, could easily have persuaded the Sultan; it could alone, if they had not been stupidly obstinate in losing it on the rocks of Sardinia, have changed the sace of the war in Europe.

Ireland, whose movements towards liberty we were bound to encourage.

England is a country on which we might easily enough have retaliated the terrors which she has at times excited among us, by imaginary projects of invasion.

Throughout the whole commerce of our enemies, great advantages were offered to us for its destruction, without fear of a dangerous return of fimilar evils upon our own commerce.

Such are the great ideas which ought to have been entertained, which ought to have been executed, fince the determination was made to brave all Europe. Such were the projects that men, long familiar with the nature of republicanism, and the great effects of which it was capable, proposed to the committee of general defence, proposed by those men whom they accuse of having been the occasion of declaring the war, and of not having carried it on in a grand stile, when their opposers exerted themselves for the destruction destruction of all their means, or at least for rendering them all impotent. Richelieu, Louvois, Alberoni, had conceived similar projects; and they were men who could carry their projects into execution, only by a few thousand satellites; here the whole nation is in action, to carry her plans into execution.

n

n

n

d

le

le.

ve

ly

as ts

e-

or rn

ve

re-

ve

en,

m, ole,

ce,

of

ar,

ile,

the

ion

But where were these measures to be found? In our courage, in our love of liberty, in the refources of our soil. Questioners, with narrow minds, read the history of the revolution of Holland, and of the long parliament in England: behold the prodigies which have characterised those interesting epochs.* Has England ever been master of such formidable sleets as those which under Blake and Penn sought with Ruyter and Tromp? It was, however, three or sour millions of men who bravely decided in savour of liberty. Here are twenty-sive millions in arms.

And these twenty-five millions found themselves even in the month of January last, possessed of sufficiently efficacious means, and with more money than all the foreign powers; even more than England, proud as she is of her riches. The French have a mass of resources, such as no nation in the world has ever possessed before; + a mass which ^{*} Translator.] M. Briffot had but to look to the naval history of the last naval war, or to the one before it, to have found the English navy more formidable and more successful than in the time when he supposes her to have been at her highest glory.

Translator.] No people but the present French tyranny could perhaps prevail on themselves to boast of public riches, raised by the persect annihilation of all private property. Liberty and property are terms never separated in the K 2 public which would doubtlessly have doubled itself, could order but have been established, for all was contained in our plan; but they not only combated our ideas, but they even coalesced themselves with the anarchists, who ruined all our resources by disorder, in hopes of reigning by their assistance.

reports upon England. Kerfaint had also proved them before me, and an event has proved the fact better than we did. The Spaniards entered the country; the frontier was deferred; the alarm bell was rung in the fouth; and above forty thousand men sprung out of the earth in an instant, uniting themselves together at Perpignan. These are the miracles of liberty. A house has beedde

OWIR

℗

No, never did the Executive Council—What do I fay? No, never did men who decreed the committee in order to cripple it, and who crippled it in order to govern in its stead—No, never did these creatures of mediocrity rise to a conception of the strength of the French nation, nor of the effects of liberty. It was with labour that they skindmed along the ground; they were not sensible that the desensive excites no electricity; that the offensive only could exalt a people who are impetuous, like the French; they saw not, that to form men into a great nation, vast ideas, great objects, sublime and difficult designs, were indispensable.

One only fear feemed to me constantly to possess the council, which was not under the guardianship of free republicans, gof whom the monor of element of the second public expression of English happiness. When men have once lost the idea of private property, it is impossible that the idea of liberty can be preserved to them.

committee

committee of general defende had been at first composed, but who were fallen under the irondrodof their enemies. The council stood in dread of the denunciations, and of the calumnies of the Jacobins; they dreaded decrees of accufation, if fuccefs did not accompany their projects. This is the idea that froze the imagination, and crippled the mental faculties of every one of them. Here is the fole cause of the inertness to which our administration condemned itself. Here is the cause of all our misfortunes, of all our humiliations. It is all owing to the murderous influence of the calumniating anarchists; they stifled all the plans which would have made us triumph over our enemies abroad, and would have established our liberty every where. That influence has reduced us to thut ourselves up within our proper limits, and we have still to fear farther humiliations and defeats.

Thus the Spaniards with whom we might have been beforehand on their own ground; (for from the month of November, the minister Pache had been charged to form a considerable army at the Pyrenees, and to provide it with every thing, which was not done even in the month of March.) These Spaniards, I say, had the presumption to stain the land of liberty, and attack us within our very walls; and in their frigates, protected through that part passage * where the tri-colour stag ought to sly; their frigates intercept our trade ships even in the view of our harbours.

Thus we could, we ought to make the Spaniards, the English, the Dutch, tremble for their colonies; and it is we who are to tremble for our public expression of English happiness. When men have ^{*} Translator.] I do not know whether the author means St. Sebastian's, or what other port.

e

calumnies cease not to accuse, had not by a decree concerning the men of colour, acquired twenty thousand native defenders of St. Domingo, where would that island have been, which was abandoned by the minister? Thus we could have ruined the commerce of our enemies by our numerous privateers, and these privateers of ours are destroyed in a few days, whereas the rich galleons of Spain enter quietly into their own ports.

Thus we might disturb England by exciting fermentation in her bosom, in Ireland which is jealous, in Scotland which is discontented; instead of this, it is England which with success excites and favours rebellion among ourselves.

Thus it was in our power to straiten the subfistence of our enemies by laying waste their commerce, and exciting commotions among them through the scarcity and dearness of provisions; whereas it is we who are threatened with this scarcity by the unskilfulness of those men, who, after having forced us to declare war, have incefsantly shackled all the measures of the republicans, and who have, and who still will have, the infamous cruelty to accuse them to the people for that scarcity which they themselves occasioned.

In short, we, who should no longer know any barrier except the Rhine; we have been obliged to abandon the fields in which we were victorious, and those brothers to whom we have given liberty.

℗

That evacuation of Belgium which has tarnished the lustre of our arms, and obliged the liberty of Europe to lose ground, is still the product of anarchy. This event which holds so great a place in our history deserves to be fathomed.

Three

Three forts of anarchy have ruined our affairs in Belgium.

e

Dhree

The anarchy of the administration of Pache, which has completely diforganised the supply of our armies, who by that diforganization reduced the army of Dumourier to stop in the middle of its conquests; which struck it motionless through the months of November and December; which hindered it from joining Bournonville and Cuffine, and from forcing the Prussians and Austrians to repass the Rhine, and afterwards from putting them? felves in a condition to invade Holland fooner than

To this first state of ministerial anarchy, it is neceffary to join that other anarchy which diforganifed the troops, and occasioned their habits of pillage; and laftly, that anarchy which created the revolutionary power, and forced the union to France of the countries we had invaded, before things were ripe for such a measure. We will design in

Who could, however, doubt the frightful evils that were occasioned in our armies by that doctrine of anarchy which under the Ihadow of equality of right, would establish equality of fact? This is universal equality, the scourge of society, as the other is the support of society. An anarchical doctrine which would level all things, talents, and ignorance, virtues, and vices, places, ufages, and services; a doctrine which begot that fatal project of organizing the army, prefented by Du Bois de Crance, to which it will be indebted for. a compleat diforganisation.

Mark the date of the presentation of the system of this equality of fact, entire equality. It had been projected and decreed even at the very opening of the Dutch campaign. If any project could have have encouraged the want of discipline in the soldiers, any scheme which could disgust and banish good officers, and throw all things into confusion at the moment when order alone could give victory, it is this project in truth so stubbornly defended by the anarchists, and transplanted into their ordinary tactic.

How could they expect that there should exist any discipline, any subordination, when even in the camp they permit motions, censures, denunciations of officers, and of generals? Does not fuch a disorder destroy all the respect that is due to fuperiors, and all the mutual confidence without which success cannot be hoped for? For the spirit of diffrust makes the soldier suspicious, and intimidates the general. The first discerns treason in every danger; the fecond, always placed between the necessity of conquest, and the image of the scaffold, dares not raise himself to bold conception, and those heights of courage which electrify an army, and ensure victory. Turenne, in our time, would have carried his head to the scaffold; for he was fometimes heat: but the reason why he more frequently conquered was, that his discipline was fevere: it was, that his foldiers confiding in his talents, never muttered discontent instead of. fighting.—Without reciprocal confidence between, the foldier and the general, there can be no army, no victory, especially in a free government. Saylon

Is it not to the same system of anarchy, of equalization, and want of subordination, which has been recommended in some clubs, and defended even in the Convention, that we owe the pillages, the murders, the enormities of all kinds which it was difficult for the officers to put a stop to, from the general spirit of insubordination; excesses which have have rendered the French name odious to the Belgians? Again, is it not to this system of anarchy. and of robbery, that we are indebted for the invention of the revolutionary power, which has fo France !

What did enlightened republicans think before the 10th of August, men who wished for liberty, not only for their own country, but for all Europe? They believed that they could generally establish it, by exciting the governed against the governors, in letting the people see the facility and the advantages of such insurrections.

But how can the people be led to that point? By the example of good government established among us; by the example of order; by the care of spreading nothing but moral ideas among them; to respect their properties and their rights; to respect their prejudices, even when we combat them; by difinterestedness in defending the people, by a zeal to extend the spirit of liberty amongst them.

This system was at first followed.* Excellent pamphlets from the pen of Condorcet prepared the people for liberty; the 10th of August, the republican decrees, the battle of Valmy, the retreat of the Pruffians, the victory of Jemappe, all spoke in favour of France; all was rapidly destroyed by the revolutionary power. Without doubt, good intentions made the majority of the affembly adopt it; they would plant the tree of liberty in a foreign soil, under the shade of a people already free. To

abuntual of the library of the colors which ^{*} Translator. The most seditious libels upon all governments, in order to excite insurrection in Spain, Holland, and other countries. Of golf & hill &

the eyes of the people of Belgium it seemed but the mask of a new foreign tyranny. This opinion was groneous; I will suppose it so for a moment; but still this opinion of Belgium deserved to be confidered. In general we have always confidered our own opinions, our own intentions, rather than the people whose cause we defend. We have given those people a will; that is to say, we have more than ever alienated them from libertyoids a nadw wished to force men to

How could the Belgic people believe themselves free, fince we exercise, for them, and over them, the rights of fovereignty; when, without confilting them, we suppress all in a mass their ancient usages, their abuses, their prejudices, those classes of society which without doubt are contrary to the spirit of liberty, but the utility of whose destruction was not as yet proved to them? How could they believe themselves free, and sovereign, when we made them take fucls an oath as we thought fit, as a tell to give them the right of voting? How could they believe themfelves free, when openly defpiling their religious worthip, which religious worthip that fuperftitious people valued beyond their liberty, beyond even their life; when we proferibed their priests; when we banished them from their affemblies, where they were in the practice of feeing them govern; when we feized their revenues, their domains, their riches, to the profit of the nation; when we carried to the very confer those hands which they regarded as profane to Doubtless these operations were founded on principles, but those principles ought to have had the confent of the Belgians, wefore they were carried into practice, MWISHIST their former state to the present state of France ndI otherwise they necessarily became our most cruel the matk of a new foreign tyranny enemies.

Arrived ourselves at the last bounds of liberty and equality, trampling under our feet all human fuperstitions, (after, however, a four years war wich them,) we attempt all at once to raise to the same eminence, men, strangers even to the first eles mentary principles of liberty, and plunged for tife teen hundred years in ignorance and superstition; we wished to force men to see, when a thick cas taract covered their eyes, even before we had removed that cataract; we would force men to fee, whose dulness of character had raised a mist before their eyes, and before that character was albered *sociouford atod hout doubt are con-

8

+

S

d

ij

SI

n

05 et

fe

fe

1-0,

fe

but the utility

Translator. It may not be amis once for all to remark on the style of all the philosophical politicians of France Without any distinction in their several sects and parties, they agree in treating all nations who will not conform their government, laws, manners, and religion, to the new French talhion, as an herd of flaves. They consider the content with which men live under those governments as stupidity, and all attachment to religion, as the effect of the groffest ignorance.

The people of the Netherlands, by their constitution, are as much entitled to be called free, as any nation upon earth. The Austrian government (until some wild attempts the sprperor Joseph made on the French principles, but which have been fince abandoned by the court of Vienna,) has been remarkably mild. No people were more at their ease than the Flemish subjects, particularly the lower classes. It is curious to hear this great oculiff talk of couching the cataroff by which the Netherlands were blinded, and hindered from feeing, in its proper colours, the beautiful vision of the French Republic, which he has himfelf painted with so matterly an hand. That people must needs be dull, blind, and brutalized by fifteen hundred years of fuperflition, (the time elapted have the introduction of Christianity amongst them,) who could prefer their former state to the prefent state of France? The ₿ al Dobyou believe that the doctrine which now prevails in France would have found many partilans among werin 1789 2 No 3 a revolution in the ideas, in the prejudices, his not made with that rapidity; it moves gradually ; it does not Who does not known the fairces of primue, shallsons

Philosophy does not inspire by violence, nor by feduction, nor is it the fword that begets the No; it is not by means which tyrradil to byol

Joseph the Second also borrowed the language of philosophy when he wished to suppress the monks in Belgium, and to feize upon their revemues. There was feen on him a mask only of philosophy, covering the hideous countenance of a greedy despot, and the people ram to arms. Nothing better than another kind of despotism has been feen in the revolutionary power is even

We have feen in the commissioners of the National Convention, nothing but pro-confuls, working the mine of Belgium for the profit of the Brench nation; seeking to conquer it for the fovereign of Paris; either no aggrandize his empire, or to share the burdens of the debts, and funnish a rich prize to the robbers who domineered perfition; the fatal fourt of prieffhood. soner Thail

blucho you believe the Belgians have ever been the dupes of those well-rounded periods, which they wended in the pulpit, in order to familiarise whem to the idea of an union with France Do you believe they were ever imposed upon by those pondence of Dumowner, especially the

The reader will remark, that the only difference between Briffor and his adversaries, is in the mode of bringing other nations into the pale of the French Republic—They would about the order and classes of fociety and all religion at a Briffor would have just the fame thing done, but with more address and management. expenc

votes

votes and refolutions, made by what is called acclamation, for their union, bof which corruption paid one pant, and fear forced the remainder de Who. ativithis time rofe day, sist unacquainted with the springs and wires of their milerable puppet show? Who does not know the farces of primary affermblies, composed of a president, of a secretary, and of some affiftants, whose day work was paid for? No; it is not by means which belong only to thieves and despots that the foundations of liberty can be laid in an enflaved country. It is not by those means, that a new-born republic, a people who knows not yet the elements of republican governments can be united to us. Even flaves do not fuffer themselves to be seduced by such artifices; and if they have not the strength to resist, they have at least the fense to know how to appreciwe have fee tempt an attempt oved aw

If we would attach the Belgians to asis we mutt at least enlighten their minds by good wintings; we must fend to them missionaries and not despotic commissioners. + We ought to give them time to fee a to perceive by themselves the advantages of liberty; the unhappy effects of diperstition; the fatal spirit of priesthood. And whilst we waited for this moral revolution, we fould have accepted the offers which they incellantly respeated, stoo join to the French army, an armylof Go, doo amenti to centertain them at their own

you believe they were ever imposed upon by those * See the correspondence of Dumourier, especially the letter of the 19th of March, and live release and Translator.] They have not as yet proceeded farther with regard to the English dominions. Here we only see as yet the good writings of Payne, and of his learned affociates, and the labours of the missionary clubs, and other zealous instructors. instructors. more addrefs and management. expence;

votes

expense yu to advance to France, wthe specie of flates would preferve the f.been ai booth and nothing

But have we ever feen those fifty thousand foldiers who were to join our army, as foon as the standard of liberty should be displayed in Belgium? Have we ever feen those treasures which they were to count into our hands? Can we either accufe the sterility of their country, or the penury of their treasure, or the coldness of their love for liberty? No! despotism and anarchy, these are the benefits which we have transplanted into their foil. We have acted, we have spoken like masters; and from that time we have found the Flemings nothing but jugglers, who made the grimace of liberty for money; or flaves, who in their hearts cursed their new tyrants. Our commissioners address them in this fort; " you have "hobles and priefts among you, drive them out without delay, or we will neither be your bre-"thren nor your patrons." They answered: give us but time; only leave to us the care of reforming these institutions. Our answer to them was, "No! it must be at the moment; it must be on the spot, or we will treat you as enemies; we "will abandon you to the refentment of the " Auftrians."

What could the difarmed Belgians object to all this, furrounded as they were by seventy thoufand men? They had only to hold their tongues, and to bow down their heads before their mafters! They did hold their tongues, and their filence is received as a fincere and free affent.

Have not the strangest artifices been adopted to prevent that people from retreating, and to conftrain them to an union? It was forefeen, that as buA long as they were unable to affect an union the states would preserve the supreme authority amongs themselves. Under pretence, therefore, of Brelieving the people, and of exercifing the fovereignty in their right, at one ftroke they abob lished all the duties and taxes; they shut up all the treasuries. From that time no more receipts? no more public money; no more means of paying the falaries of any man in office appointed by the states. Thus was anarchy organised amongst the people, that they might be compelled to throw themselves into our arms. It became necessary for those who administered their affairs, under the penalty of being exposed to fedition, and in order to avoid their throats being cut, to have recourse to the treasury of France. What did they find in this treasury? ASSIGNATS. These Asfiguats were advanced at par to Belgium do By this means, on the one hand, they naturalifed this currency, in that country; and on the other, they expected to make a good pecuniary transaction. Thus it is that coverousness cut its throat with its own hands. The Belgians have seen in this forced introduction of assignats, nothing but a double robbery; and they have only the more violently hated the union with France In A **

Recollect the folicitude of the Belgians on that subject. With what carnestness did they conjure you to take off a retro-active effect from these allegants, to prevent them from being applied to the payment of debts that were contracted anterior to the union?

Did not this language energetically enough fignify that they looked upon the affignats as varied profy, and the union as a deadly contagion it must council of the committee of finance. That committee of finance, means of an union. They only builed them elves in making the Belgic provinces subscript to their themselves to their themselves.

od Cambon faid loftily before the Belgians themfelves; the Belgian war costs us hundreds of mil-Their ordinary revenues, and even fome extraordinary taxes, will not answer to our reimbursements; and yet we have occasion for them. The mortgage of our affiguats draws nearlits end What must be done? Sell the church property of Brabant. There is a mortgage of two thousand millions, (eighty millions sterling.) How shall we get possession of them? By an immediate Union. In stantly they decreed this Union. Men's minds were not disposed to it. What does it figuist Let us make them vote by means of money, Without delay, therefore, they fecretly order the minister of foreign affairs to dispose of four or five bundred thousand livres, (20,000), sterling, to make the vagabonds of Bruffels drank, and to buy profelytes to the union in all states of But even thefe means, it was faid, will obtain but a weak minority in our favour. What does that figuify ? Revolutions, faid they, are made only by minorities. It is the minority which has made the revolution of France; it is a minority which has made the put them to the proof. Where are their demurit algord

The Belgic provinces were not fufficient to fatisfy the veracious cravings of this financial fystem. Cambon wanted to unite every thing, that he might sell every thing. Thus he forced the union of Savoy; in the war with Holland, he saw nothing but gold to seize on, and assignate

1 In the original, it is Sanfeeler

to fell at par.* Do not let us diffemble, said he one day to the committee of general defence, in presence even of the patriot deputies of Holland, you have no eccleliaffical goods to offer us for our indemnity---IT IS A REVOLUTION IN THEIR COUNTERS AND IRON CHESTS, that must be made amongst the Dutch. The word was said, and the bankers Abema, and Vanstaphorst understood it.

e

ļŗ

10

14

d.

af

1

et

100

Yet

g

e

q

y

11

k

5

S.

n

be

to

al

g,

d,

to

Do you think that that word has not been worth an army to the Stadtholder, that it has not cooled the ardour of the Dutch patriots, that it has not cooled the ardour of the Dutch patriots, that it has not cooled the ardour of the vigorous defence of William stadt?

Do you believe that the patriots of Amsterdam, when they read the preparatory decree which gave France an execution on their goods; do you believe, that those patriots would not have liked better to have remained under the Stadtholder, who took from them no more than a fixed portion of their property, than to pass under that of a revolutionary power, which would make a complete revolution in their bureaus and strong boxes, and reduce them to wretchedness and rags? A Robbery, and anarchy, instead of encouraging, will always stiffe revolutions.

* Author.] The same thing will happen in Savoy. The persecution of the clergy has sourced people's minds. The Commissioners represent them to us as good Frenchmen. It put them to the proof. Where are their legions? How, thirty thousand Savoyards—Are they not armed to desend, in concert with us, their liberty?

Translator.] Portefeuille—is the word in the original. It lignifies all moveable property which may be represented in bonds, notes, bills, stocks, or any fort of public or private securities. I do not know of a single word in English that answers it; I have therefore substituted that of Iron Chests, as coming nearest to the idea.

In the original, à la Sansculaterie.

But why, they object to me, have not you and your friends chosen to expose these measures in the noftrum of the National Convention? Why have you not opposed yourself to all these to Cambon an overt act of moinuit of an acompo of

There are two answers to make here, one eyes a great crime. He carlouitrad enor, larange

℗

You complain of the filence of honest men! You quite forget then, honest men are the objects of your suspicion. Suspicion, if it does not stain the foul of a courageous man, at least arrests his thoughts in their passage to his lips. The suspicions of a good citizen, freezes those men, whom the calumny of the wicked could not ftop in their progress.

You complain of their filence! You forget then, that you have often established an infulting equality between them and men covered with crimes, and made up of ignominy and anti-

You forget then, that you have twenty times left them covered with opprobrium by your galleries:

You forget then, that you have not thought yourselves sufficiently powerful to impose silence upon these galleries.

politible in the rolfrum. What ought a wife man to do in the midst of these circumstances? He is silent. He wants the moment when the passions give way: he waits till reason shall preside, and till the multiproced interest; becaused when to her voice used; fleresta tesony

What has been the tactic displayed during all these unionsel a Cambon, incapable of political calculation, boafting his ignorance in the deplomatic, flattering the ignorant multitude, lending his named and popularity to the anarchifts, feconded by their vociferations, denounced incessantly as tragedy

counter-

But why, they (bic [8 to) who were defirous, at least, of having things discussed. To oppose the acts of union, appeared to Cambon an overt act of treason. The wish so much as to reflect and to deliberate, was in his eyes a great crime. He calumniated our intensions. The voice of every deputy, especially my voice, would infallibly have been stifled. There were spies on the very monosyllables that escaped our lips.

Well ! who were joined with Cambon in commanding those precipitated Unions? Who stifted all discussion upon them? Who before hand poisoned the intentions of well-meaning men? The anarchists! Acts of union seemed to double their prey. It was adding to the heap of their dilapidations. In their thoughts they devoured the inheritance of the people. They opened their throats against every man who from regard to justice would tear it from them.

In spight of their rage, Gaudet in the comes mittee frequently fet himself in opposition to this fystem. Because the opposition, which was image possible in the rostrum, was, at least, possible at a committee. I myself combated it, in concurrence with him; because these schemes of umon's did not feem to us defirable, but fo far as they were founded upon attachment and upon a reciprocal interest; because in these compulsory acts of union, we faw neither that interest, nor that reciprocal attachment; because we believed, that's before we can effect an union, we ought to make ourselves beloved; to prove ourselves virtuous and humane, and not robbers and murderers; because, in short, we foresaw the denouncement of this tragedy, M 2 counter tragedy . We forefaw that the Belgians would foon be against us, from the moment they did not shew themselves for us, in numbers and with that all being forced, and virals

106.7 42

8

This prediction was verified; and once more I fay, we owe our misfortune to this rever lutionary power, which was but a despotism in disquise, and to the tyranny of commissioners, and to the pillages, and excesses of the foldiers. The fource of all has been in the system and in the preponderating influence of the anarchifts in meno

I do not however mean to diffemble the faults and the treasons of many of our generals, not that I believe they had great part in our mistor-

enemy, how they I know, that in delivering himself too much up to his natural prefumption, hoping, as he did in Belgium, to fupply by fortunate accidents every thing that was wanting to him, Dumoufier did not take all the measures that were necesfary for the execution of his defigns. and rabner or

I know that Miranda had not all the flores which were necessary for bombarding Maestricht; that Dumourier had reckoned too much upon his intelligence with the patriots of that town, fince he wrote to Miranda that the gates would be opened at the third bomb; while five thousand were thrown in vain.

trate their perfidious def I know that Vallence, who commanded the army of observation cantoned at Liege and upon Roer, should have repaired thither fifteen days foomen: that the cantenments should have been broken ung that the camp of observation should have been formed, and prepared to prevent the passage of the Roer; that the generals Langul and Stinsel might before hand have been able to prepare radional accident it Avas that, precifely at that

cpech

another camp behind! Aix Ma Chappelle: and another camp behind! Aix Ma Chappelle: and another have made themselves fure of the Meule. 101 sould man hour themselves for sold mental was the manual to the manual transfer of the Meule.

I know that all being forced, and Liege menaced, it was agreeable to the Clare of affairs to empty it of its wealth, and to burn the magazines there; and that the general Thompshow has, perhaps, given proofs of his treason in letting all fall into the bands of the Austrians.

commissioner inquisitors who were on the spots who ought to have known every thing, the plans for the campaign the situations of the armies, the reports concerning the marches of the enemy, how they came not to be acquainted with the formation and progress of that army of lifty thousand men? How they came not to take the necessary means to obstruct its passage, or to dispute it better, in order to enable us to empty our magazines, to carry away the foreign riches, to render the retreat of the troops less disastrous,

and less humiliating?

In all myfelf, how the commissioners, living in intimacy with Dumourier, the other generals, and their etat major, hearing every day the declarations of Dumourier and of his principal officers against the Convention, how they did not peffetrate their perfidious defigns? How comes vit that they have not endeavoured to prevent their effects roul alk myfelf how it happens, that instead of making them known, they came to the committee and to the follrum of the Convention, to make the eulogy of Dumotrier? How comes in that they declared with wehernence against that fection which demanded a decree against him? I alk myself how it happened, and by what accident it was that, precisely at that epoch,

to

ti

li

V

1

epoch, Roberspiere discontinued his declamate tions against Dumourier? Marat not only gave up his denunciations, but even affirmed, that the fafety of France depended upon Dumourier! On that man who at that very hour was conspiring against the republic! I ask myself how, and by what means those sudden eulogies, inexplicable to us, coincided with the conspiracy of the tenth of March? A conspiracy which also tended to diffolve the Convention, and to change our government? I ask myself how it has happened, that in the midst of all these treasons, the commissioners fulpended only one general, and that general faithful to the Republic, who had refused to enter into the coalition of the counter-revolutionists the general Miranda?

has not given us the key; and it becomes not a republican to ground an accusation upon mere probabilities.

℗

But I will say, that if the commissioners, instead of delivering themselves up to their pleasures, to their intrigues, or to acts of authority, had diligently studied the spirit of the Belgians, if they had given us faithful reports upon their dispositions, if they had freely announced the horror this people selt at the revolutionary power; the Convention, to be sure, would have abandoned that disastrous system of Cambon, which the commissioners chose to softer. They would have preserved more fraternal measures, and have spared many missortunes to France.

The difasters of our finances are in a great degree his work, and I should think myself culpable towards towards the nation, which must be at last enlightened, if I did not here lay open my whole.

thoughts.

Supplying the want of information, by a great activity, by an happy memory, by an imagination, lively, but without regularity, without juliness, without judgement, and without knowledge; carrying into his reasonings upon finance, and into his calculations, the same impetuosity, the fame violence, which he displays in his impalfioned controversies, Cambon has nevertheless acquired a reputation in the finances which he is not entitled to; and he has obtained a preponderancy which is fatal to France. He owes the one to certain statements which it is difficult to attribute to his pen, or to his parts, when they are known; he owes the other to the favour of the patriots, whose esteem he gained by the fervices he did to the revolution in his part of the country.

Supported by this, he arrogated to himself, as well in the legislative assembly as in the Convention, a kind of financial dictatorship; for no one has more strongly declaimed against a dictatorship, and no one has more frequently usurped it than Cambon; no one has better known the fecret of bringing his colleagues into subjection. and of driving away fuch of them as were his superiors in knowledge---His genius confists in one word, to ifue -- and always to ifue affignats He has augmented the mais by above 3,000 millions in eighteen months. But has he thought of any one measure to reduce that mass? Why has he not employed those that were presented by Condorcet, whose natural timidity has always unfortunately kept him at a distance from the rostrum ?

towards

O

roftrum? Why has he not proposed and carried a decree for some of those measures presented by Claviere in 1791, who never ceased from that time to lay before his eyes the cruel diforders into which we must be thrown by the successive issues of assignats, if from the very first issue of them measures were not taken to reduce the quantity? Why did he not propose his loan in affignats, fo eafy at that time, and which would have obtained that reduction? Why did he not press the fale of the national forests, which must have brought back a quantity of affiguats---Forests, whose incalculable waste lessens their value every day? Why, again, did he not adopt the measures that were proposed to induce the purchasers of the national property to anticipate their payments; an anticipation which must have augmented the mass of the paper to be burnt? In a word, why has he disdained fo many other ingenious expedients that were shewn in the memorials of Claviere, that were too little read, of that Claviere from whom he wished to take lessons in 1791, and whom he wished to make his disciple in 1792; whose talents and genius he has incessantly kept dormant and persecuted; because he knew the man's fuperiority over those miserable plagiaries, who lent him their narrow conceptions, by fuggesting to him expedients that were either rumous or illufory.

For instance, wherefore was that prohibition of felling gold, when the national interest obliges the treasury to make a custom of purchasing it; when commerce itself wanted it for its foreign balances?

What was that fanguinary law that was propoled against the fale of gold, but a tacit confestion of the impotence of the law? Wherefore was that interruption of commerce with London, Amfterdam, and all the great towns, when France is obliged to draw so much from abroad, when foreigners are so much indebted to France? Does not the circuit occasioned by this interruption, operate as a tax entirely to the loss of the nation?

C

C

e

r

r

t

But they would profcribe all flock-jobbing. Why, then, did not Cambon thut up the exchange fooner, as Claviere has been inceffantly requiring fince 1791? It was going strait to the very fource of the evil. Why, after having himfelf confessed that thock+jobbing could only be combated by counter stock-jobbing; why, after having confessed that stock-jobbing so prodigioufly raised the price of specie, why did they not grant to the executive council fome millions for the operations of a bank for raising exchange? fince it was proved, that with that facrifice it might, perhaps, have made a faving of more than an hundred millions, uselessly sacrificed in that purchase of money, which is enveloped in fach darkness, although it may be the most cruel and the most burthensome tax for the nation, and with which consequently she ought to be best acquainted. This purchase has often been trusted to the hands of men who had an interest in running counter to the revolution, and to the operations of government.* Anadogsa and of publication of a sidulity of au Why

^{*} Author.] They have without ceasing reproached Cambon that he employed in these purchases aristocratic brokers. He has always kept them; he has trusted considerable operations of this kind to such houses as Bourdieu and Cholet in England; which, after the declaration of war, has made the N

Why again did not Cambon employ himself in means to diminish the use of assignate? and for example, why did not he (who never ceased in the roffrum to denounce the little dilapidators) denounce the first of dilapidations? Why did not he, who from the month of August, 1792, afferted, that the accountant branch of the war office, that gulph which swallows up the wealth of the nation, was in a frightful diforder, why has he not proposed measures to cure that disorder? Why has he left things to continue quietly in the fame state; insomuch that in May, 1793, he, Cambon, still announced, that it was impossible for any man living to draw out a clear account of the state of that department? It is, because, to clean these augean stables courage was wanting boldly to look in the face those anarchists who domineer and peculate with impunity in that department; it is, that it was necessary to have the courage to make them empty their pockets; it is, that Cambon not only never has had that courage, but that he has fince coalefced with the offenders! He who nevertheless had confessed to the committee of general defence that bankruptcy was inevitable if anarchy prevailed, if they did not feverely punish the preachers up of the Agrarian Law, of feditions, &c.

English government seize from them about five millions. They have never given in an account of this loss to the Convention. At this period the treasury, directed by Cambon, had about twenty-five-millions of money purchafed in England, and which was exposed to feizure. What is become of that money no one knows.

What is the flate of this transaction? We know nothing of it. [Translator.] Pollibly the author may have done ininflice to those agents in London. on it is tager bluos ad

At prefent, what is the result of this complaifance of Cambon for the anarchists?* Of this want of skill, and want of forelight with which he has suffered the accumulation both of disbursements and of the mass of the assignats?

The still increasing mass of assignate—depreciation always increasing,—the mortgage security decreasing in value and in quantity,—expenditure always increasing,—public revenue decreating in proportion,—impossibility of being able to maintain the war and to sulfil engagements,—impossibility of drawing materials from abroad.—Fall of manufactures,—distress of the labourers,—excessive rise in the price of provisions,—general misery of the people, sedition, &c. &c.

false calculation, and by the vicious system of finance

* Author.] I should make two observations which have struck me in examining Cambon's conduct.—I observe that immediately the Rostrum affects to flatter the multitude, and every flatterer of the multitude makes me suspect his views.—

I observe that Cambon has never been attacked by the Journalists who attack the most virtuous men, and these managements of calumny increase my suspicions; possibly it is the result of his connections with certain persons who dispose of the pens of Calumniators who are in their pays.

I say nothing of the reports that are spread upon the increase of fortunes. I know nothing of it, and I do not so easily adopt common reports; yet how is his opposition to the law proposed by Buzot explained? Who forces every Deputy to give in the balance of his fortune acquired since the Legislative or Constituent Assembly, and to justify the causes of its increase.—Does Cambon so much feat the light? Mine is ready—The account stands in one word. Nothing—and it is the only answer that I make to the epithet that he has given me—The ally of PITT. If madness has not then turned his head, if he has said it, if he could repeat it in cold blood—Cambon is an infamous calumniator.

e

1-

at

g

that

that Cambon has followed: evils that a man of genius at the head of the finance would infallibly have prevented; always supposing that he had attached himself to a system of order, the only one that is capable of establishing the republican government, and faving France; always supposing he had combated that system of a revolutionary power, which cannot but ruin the republic as well as the finances; evils of which it is still possible to diminish the extent and the confequences; if at length a disposition is found to abandon that fatal system.

I confess I am still to learn, how men hope to establish liberty by despotism, or to repel their enemies, or to disperse the discontented, or even to diminish their number, without establishing order throughout. I me inhount and that foegas

I am again at a loss to know what the anarchifts mean, what they aim at, by the word revolutionary.

when his thop may be offered When we ask an explanation from an anarchift, he is very much embarraffed, which is never the case with his adversary. I wish, says the latter, for order provisionally; and confequently for the execution of the laws. I wish to find a constitution as speedily as possible: because every one wishes to know the social contract under which he must live: because it is in that contract only, that he will find a folid pledge of his happiness, and an incentive to fight with resolution against the enemies of his counfift in that thate of violence, where every. Xt

The anarchist fays, without doubt there must be order, there must be a constitution, but the time for it is not yet come. Well! why not? is the answer. blo ede no beinderlieb arous made

Because, says he, the revolution is not finished, because we have mal-contents within, enemies abroad, and that the revolutionary power is alone able to subdue both the one and the other.

I answer to the anarchists—by what means will you subdue your enemies abroad? Is it not by troops, by money, and by provisions By what means do you propose to have troops? Is it not when your fellow-citizens shall become fincerely attached to your new government? Is it not when they shall be acquainted with it? But if government does not exist, if instead of liberty, nothing shall be seen but acts of despotism; if instead of order, nothing is seen but confusion, how will you find men ready to shed their blood to promote diforder? How can you expect that the labourer can fow the earth, of which he has no affurance that he shall gather the fruits? That the merchant will buy and fell when his shop may be pillaged? How will you get money or affignats while fear makes men hide their money; when diforder reduces the value of affignats, and prevents the purchasing of lands, the produce of which would augment their quently for the execution of the laws. Soulse

0

S

h

-5

nin

id

ht

n-ift

he

is

ſċ,

Let us examine things at home. What is it that increases the number of mal-contents? Is it not the sear that every citizen seels either for his fortune, or for his enjoyments, or for his life? and by what means do you propose to diminish the number of these mal-contents, if you persist in that state of violence, where every day property is violated, or the safety of individuals is attacked? Is it by commissioners, who in one day distribute more thousands of Lettres de Caehets, than were distributed in the old times by all the

the inquifitors? Is it by an enormous creation of affignats, which portend disturbances beyond the power of calculation? Is it in exciting the poor against the rich, that you will make proselytes to your system?*

In short, be persuaded that to continue what you call the "revolutionary power" is to wish the destruction of the revolution. Convulsions in politics as well as physics must have their term: their too long duration is mortal.

In two words, do you wish to have strength sufficient to overcome your enemies abroad? Have order: have a constitution. With a constitution you will have armies. Without a constitution your armies will soon disappear.

Have order, have a good conflitution, and your mal-contents will foon be dispersed.

I go farther,—have order, have a constitution, and the foreign powers will soon ask peace of you. How can you expect, that in this uncertain and wavering state in which you are, foreign powers can consent to treat with a Convention, which is every day dragged through the dirt; because it is the lowest disgrace to treat with an executive power which is without intermission denounced, humiliated, and tottering.

When

It hardly feemed possible to add any thing to the humiliation of that assembly and executive power when the author

^{*} Translator.] Will any one contradict M. Brissot, and affert, that Great Britain might have treated with France in the last sessions, in 1792, when it was proposed in the House of Commons to send ambassadors to Paris for that purpose? Is the time or the people now more fitted for negociation? All these interrogatories have since received one conclusive answer—The Guillotine. This is the resource by which they have hitherto supported that system, by which our author supposes they must be ruined.

When the powers of Europe sent their ambassadors to the long Parliament of England and sought its alliance, that parliament, and the executive council appointed by them, possessed a great force. They caused the laws to be respected; they broke, and without meeting any resistance, the mayor and the aldermen of London, who had refused obedience to their decrees. There was an authority, there was a force! they were sure that the treaty concluded with such a power would be executed.

But foreign powers who would treat with us in the actual state that we stand in, could they entertain a similar hope? No, they say—France is divided by factions. One triumphs to-day. To-morrow it will be the triumph of another. If you treat with one, the other will break the treaty. There is no stability. Let us wait for that stability; and then we will treat. In and botto

I believe more than perhaps any other man does, that we have within ourselves all possible resources for the subjugation of our enemies, provided those resources are well administered. I believe that we ought not to lay down our arms till the honor of our Republic shall be vindicated, and her independence confirmed and acknowledged. But I believe, too, that the object of this war, like the object of all other wars, ought to be peace: and that every good Frenchman ought to look out for the means of accelentating that event, because the most successful war always most cruelly presses upon the indigent class of the people.

author wrote. We, however, see that they can be placed in a situation far more base and degrading, and far more removed from the possibility of any negociation with them.

The end then of the foreign war lies in the end of the domestic anarchy. Have a constitution; have an energetic government which puts the laws in execution, and you will foon have peace. For foreign powers also feel the want of peace: but they want to have it folid and durable. What opposes itself with most force to the perfecting of this constitution, and to the establishment of this government? It is anarchy that does it, which will be satisfied with nothing but a revolutionary power, with nothing but revolutionary measures; and which sulminates an anathema against a constitution, as against an act of treason.*

We have run through the causes of our misfortunes; our actual situation must be looked at, to the end that we may be able to apply the remedy.

Here, then, is our fituation- it the said persist

A nation numerous, active, industrious, fertile in resources, that nature seems physically to have predestined to a republican government, by its facility of interior communication, and by the natural dependencies which the departments have on one another. A nation, the majority of which withes for a republic but would also have order.

.mand

^{*} Translator.] The Anarchists have, fince the author's imprisonment, made a sort of code which they call a constitution. It does not differ substantially from the former delirious contrivance of the same kind. But, whatever its intrinsic merits may be, it is suspended as to its execution, by the Revolutionary Power, the Revolutionary Committees, and the Revolutionary Tribunals; all which are in far greater activity than ever.

Several departments where the best disposition is predominant, which the anarchists could not corrupt, by missionaries of blood, whom they have twice sent for that purpose. Departments who are still to learn that the Convention has neither liberty, nor power to break the force of the factious who hold a dominion over it. And why are the departments thus ignorant? Because the best patriots among the journalists have kept up their error, in order to preserve the confidence of the departments to the Convention which is necessary to her.*

Some departments, inflamed by the fire of a revolt, which our rulers ought to have endeavoured to appeale by instruction, whilst they ought also to have put a stop to it by arms; a revolt that they have certainly inflamed by striking indiscriminately tinctly with the sword of the law, not only the chiefs, but all those unfortunate men who, whether by seduction or by compulsion, follow their banners. A revolt that will not be quelled, but by combining measures gentle, and fit to en-would dispense with the spilling so much blood. For it is the blood of our brethren.

Armis, which wish only to fight for the republic; and who equally detest kings, dictators, and triumvirs, and all spirit of faction, but who are so far removed from the scene that they do

gold that by appropriate the course principal and the course the course of the course

lighten, with that great display of force, which ^{*} Translator.] The author has endeavoured in vain to open their eyes. They know the state of the Convention, yet all the departments whose disposition he commends have submitted by fear or by force, to those whom he, properly enough, calls the anarchists; he has strangely miscalculated the power, or at least the energy, of those whom he supposes sober and orderly republicans.

not see, even in the journals, any thing to enable them to form a right judgement.

where contributed to raise the edifice of liberty, who all wish a republic; but some of whom are missed upon the question of the mode of ensuring a good republican government, by the anarchists who direct the societies of Paris, by their persidious correspondence, by their secret emissaries, and by the long habit that all those societies are in, of looking on that of Paris as the most pure socus of patriotism; in short, by the despotism by which they have driven from those societies, all regular discussion, all men of information, and all the documents which might have enlightened them.

In turning our attention to Paris as a center, there is to be feen a Convention, pure in its majority, but constrained in its movements; wasted in its energy; almost always commanded in its results and determination; reckoning too much upon the chances of what may happen; having no vigour but at sudden jerks; excellent when it pursues its first impression; but liable to suspicions; subject also to be intimidated. This Convention is composed of three elements,—of three parties easily to be distinguished.

*The first the sworn enemy of the anarchists, enlightened, irreproachable, courageous, and determined either to die or to establish liberty by order.

Galleries defignedly familiarized, and for a long selfe, with infolence, diforder, and vociferation, infulting

^{*} Author. They marked this party under the name of the right hand side." The other under the name of "the flat side," and the third has taken the name of "the mountain."

ole

MIG

ry

ty,

ire

he

by ret

ofe

as

by.

om

ot

ght

BL

er,

na-

ted

its ich

ng

1 It

pion-

ree

îts,

erer.

e of

the un-

97

he

The fecond wishing to hold the balance among republicans, friends to both order; comprehending confiderable talents, great probity, real patriotism, but intermingled with many weak men who can do nothing but complain; who believe that to capitulate with crimes is the way to stifle them; put in motion by whitpers of certain artful men who play the part of fpies to the anarchists, and move the springs of terror, of suspicion, of calumny; directed, without daring to own it, by five or fix individuals, who, crying out against the aristocracy of talents, have craftily arranged for themselves a pretty agreeable fort of despotism, which they exercise, by sometimes capitulating and participating with the anarchists, and fometimes by declaiming against them, when they perceive that they are the weakest. there is no be

A third party (the anarchists) few in number, but who well know how to supply the deficiency by management—composed of dupes and rogues—composed of men of good lungs, who have only the faculty of coining phrases, of shouting and bawling, and raising clamours and outcries, directed by certain hypocritical chiefs, who talk continually of Sans Culotterie whilst they are affecting an insolent luxury; whilst they are augmenting every day their own property, who are puppers of the dictatorship rather than dictators; who push France towards royalty, by always talking of a republic, and not being satisfied to establish it;

except upon laws of blood an year facture.

Galleries, where the fovereign massacres domineer, so well painted by the energetic Fauchet. Galleries designedly familiarized, and for a long time, with insolence, disorder, and vociferation, insulting with impunity the deputies whose courage the anarchists are in dread of.

Just at the outside of the hall certain groups of cut-throats, placed there to outrage and menace

the deputies in their passage.

In the gardens and the places about, groups of idlers, who go there as to a shew; and of banditti, who preach the order of the day, issued by the secret directories; and of female bacchanals, who speak nothing but cutting off heads.

Sections where, till the movement given in these latter times, by the recruiting law, honest men dare not shew themselves; where twenty or thirty individuals idle, or in pay, dictated laws. Sections numerously attended at present, and consequently better, but too subject to change, making and unmaking their resolutions, according to the time, and to the humour of the party which happens to be uppermost.

Socialulul

A people more divided in opinion than it appears to be; composed of a great number of aristocrats, who secretly desire the return of the old government; who hate the republicans still more than they do the anarchists; who to make fure of their property, would defend the former: who to gain their beloved object flir up the latter; composed in part of men who live upon their industry; who weary of commotions which give no means of livelihood, let things go on, are willing to fee what will happen, applaud the friends of order in secret, but command even their faces to be mute; composed of men who fincerely wish a republic, but who are not numerous enough to convert the aristocrats, to pure the indifferent of their lethargy, or to conquer conforme, director, and vecileration, conquer the profligacy of three or four thousand robbers dispersed up and down in this city.

A public force which is not organized, which is not armed; to which, however, the justice must be done, to say that they keep up the particular police with care.

A department that is null, or rendered paralitic, when it does not join itself with the anarchifts. Tenoond of the

f

 \mathbf{f}

le

0

n

st

or

S.

1-ng

ne

ch

it

er

of ns

ke

r:

at-

eir

ive

are

the

ven

ho

not

to

to uer

Amunicipality, entirely at their devotion, and in a state of open rebellion against the Convention.

A fociety of Jacobins entirely abandoned by all true patriots, by all well informed men, by all the deputies who deserve any esteem, or who possess any modesty, a society which is delivered up to ambitious and covetous leaders.

An executive council too much discredited to be obeyed, tyed down with cords too numerous to be able to proceed; loaded with all responsibility, though deprived of all power. A council where the minister who holds the most important department, that on which the fafety of France depends, the minister of war, is a weak man even in the opinion of his protectors; who in spight of his weakness, in spight of the disorders in his offices, in spight of the evil he does, is still kept in his place.

A committee of public safety—in the hands of which the whole power is really placed; which holds the ministry under its ferula, disposes of every thing, nominates to every thing, without the least responsibility; which is able to influence the departments and the armies, by its commissioners, and the spirit it inspires into them; which commands the affemblies, by its being the reporter, and by the terror of what they give

p.103

give to be understood, rather than what they express, and by that influence, which so easily transfers itself from things of importance to men, who are themselves of no importance, at all; a committee plainly invented, to usurp under another name, the ministry, which they could not directly usurp, a committee which can ruin or serve France, according to its moral, or its immoral character, the talents, or the folly of its members,—a committee, the nomination of which has been produced by an arrangement between the ambition, the fear, and the jealoufy dictated by the conspirators of the 10th of March, which had all of them their representatives therein; a committee where we look in vain for the extensive views, capable of embracing the immense scene occupied by the French Revolution, and for that decided character which, if it does not make itself master of events, is never mastered by them,—a committee in which there is found among some, rectitude without spirit, among others, a fort of spirit without rectitude, and in short, among a third, those who turn fentences, phrases, and shew a kind of animation, without either spirit or rectitude. A committee where the mediocrity of the doers can alone give us some security against the extent and the abuse of their powers, but where no consolation is found for the evil brought upon us by their folly.

Men of discernment ought to judge of the committee by one sact. If this committee had searched for the cause of our evils they would not have stopped merely, where the fire shewed itself, on the frontiers, and at Vendee—they should have searched higher; they would have found found that cause in the want of a constitution. They should have said to the assembly, the revolt at Vendee, the war abroad, the misery, the exhausted state of the sinances, our intestine divisions, our anarchy, all is there, all is in the one word, "there is no constitution."

Obtain then a constitution, obtain one in a month; in a fortnight; in a week if you can; let it but be accepted, and all your evils will be finished. A constitution is better than arms. A constitution is better than the best missionaries to the rebels, better than the best negociators with foreign powers, better than the best measures for checking the men who come to tyrannize over you, even within your very precincts.—

They tell of savages who cleave their sculls in order to cure themselves of the head-ach. That is the very image of our committee of safety. It dreams only of war, and of laws of blood, yet it speaks to us of negociations---children! whom they amuse! It is madness or imbecility itself to reckon upon a peace, or upon allies, while we are without a constitution. There is no making an alliance, there is no treating with anarchy. To treat with men, who have not the power to arrest the guilty, who insult them at their door, or the women, who in spite of their teeth, exercise the police of their precinct, or the Jacobines who haughtily subscribe their contingent of heads to be cutt off.*

Tyrants

Smin

^{*} Author.] The same tactic always takes place in the environs of the new hall. The banditti and the semale bacchanals have found means to gain possession of it. What can a guard composed of plain citizens do, who are changed every day, and whe

Tyrants are not fo stupid. They treated with Cromwell whom they detested, because he knew how to make himself respected.—Our cause is as good as his was execrable.—Let us make ourselves respected at home; and tyrants will soon be at our feet; that is what the committee of public safety should have said to the Convention ten days after its formation, and without doubt it would have taken a vigorous part.

Such are the individuals, such the bodies who play a part in the republic; who may cause its happiness, or its misery. After such a state of facts, it is our business to see how the republic can be saved. The Convention is, and alone ought to be intrusted with that care; all ought to center in her; all ought to proceed from her bosom. Is it good, is it free? All its measures will be good and will be powerful. Is it mastered? The measures partake of the nature of the men, and of the bodies which obtain the dominion.

The Convention cannot fave France, except by establishing provisional order and in finishing a constitution.

It cannot establish order but in making decrees repressive of anarchy as well as carrying them into execution.

These decrees cannot be made and carried into execution but when the deputies shall be set free from all personal fear.

who have no idea like the former guard of honour, of keeping off a mob from the hall.

A resolution was passed that 400 tickets should be given to the deputies for their brethren of the departments. These women insult and strike all who pass to those places. Do you recollect the outrage done to Bonneville, author of those excellent patriotic writings? has the outrage been punished?

This

This fear will never go off till the Convention is in perfect tranquillity, is surrounded with respect, with confidence, or at least with a sorce capable of making general tranquillity and the liberty of every individual respected.

The deputies never will believe themselves free, but when they shall be calmly listened to, and without being hooted at by the galleries. When they shall be no longer threatened (within their own precincts) to have their throats cut for their opinions. When, in order to repel these threats and provocations, they shall no longer be obliged to come to the Convention armed with swords. pistols, and poignards; for every deputy is still reduced to that sad extremity. When they shall no longer for the sake of their opinions be caluminated, nor profcribed as a mark for the fwords of affaffins, in the clubs, in the municipality, in the fections; when they shall fee the convention, or the tribunals punish or cause to be severely punished, both caluminators, ringleaders, and affaffins.

These are the conditions, without which, perfonal liberty of opinion cannot exist, nor of courfe can the Convention exist.

But, it is impossible to repress the galleries, the assassion, and the calumniation, the daring attacks of the clubs of Jacobins, * and the usurpa-

* Have you not seen in those latter times, Chaumet announce to the municipality of Paris, that he had at last formed the committee of correspondence with the 44,000 municipalities, in spite of the law of the 25th of October? Have you not seen that municipality cause the author of the section of Bon-Counsell to be arrested, because in the name of that section, he came to protest his zeal for maintaining order, and tions of the municipality; because it is with these elements that the leaders of the Jacobins form their army, an army necessarily protected by them; because these leaders are masters of a real power, which not only rivals that of the assembly, but even entirely crushes it. I have cited too many examples.

Guadet has proposed the only fit measures that are suitable to the occasion. They go at once to their object; they apply a caustic to the seat of the evil. At every other time, and in every other body, nothing could appear so simple, so natural.

the independence of the assembly? Has this transgression which reflected on the assembly, been punished?

As to the Jacobins, though there exists a law condemning to death, all instigators to murder, and the dissolution of the Convention; though the prosecution of the conspirators of the 10th of March was ordered, have not the Jacobins at every sitting renewed this conspiracy, and provocations to murder? I will quote an example taken literally from the journal of the sittings of the Jacobins, 12th May, 1793.

——A military man—" Do you wish to save the country? "the way to do it is, to exterminate all the wicked before they "escape; I have studied the Convention, it is partly composed "of wicked men, on whom justice must be bad, and to that end,

" alarm-guns must be fired and the gates shur." (Applauses.)
Bentabole, the deputy president, pretended not to observe this instigation to murder, and paid the soldier some vague compliments.—They cried out that he is a man of moderation and a Feuillant.

moderantin

A citizen of Lyon calling himself deputy of the constituent authorities of this city—" People, you suffer mitery in the midst of blessings which encompass you, and know not how to strike! The mountain cannot save the public weal, because the majority of the Convention is corrupted. We must make every thing that is impure vanish from France. You can never effect a revolution, without bloodshed. You would be mere children without it. The moderate traduce the friends of the people, but there is a method to put yourselves above their calumnies, it is to exterminate the moderate."

amost The Horms

Well! The very reading of Guadet's plan made these timed men shudder; they crusted still to their palliatives!

Yet, (and it is a truth that ought to be inceffantly repeated,) as long as the Convention has not the courage to carry the ideas of Guadet into execution; as long as the Convention dares not to order an end to be put to the fittings of the facobins, of Paris; as long as it will not order their hall to be thut up, and a feal put upon their papers; as long as it declines to order profecution to be carried on against those who instigate men to murder; and to the diffolution of the Convention; as long as it suffers itself to be rendered every day more and more contemptible, every day to be more and more insulted; as long as it leaves the open rebellion of the municipality of Paris unpunished, the Convention will not be free, she will not be any thing. She cannot fettle order in any one place, fince the cannot command it at her own door .---So much for order.

As for the Constitution, there is no hope of settling it, but in putting an end to the quarrels, the hatreds, the suspicions which excite one party of the Assembly against the other; but by finding the secret to hinder the scenes of turnult made by the men who are averse to all constitutions, the secret to have our debates calm, undisguised, and mature. But is this possible? Men who love peace, imagine they always see it. Such men are but too ready completely to forget the storm when they are out of danger. One or two calm sittings restore their hope, till another violent tempest again blows it away. It is thus that they shoat in perpetual uncertainty, yielding, during the storm, and adding strength to the error of the departments, from the delutive hopes they derive from every momentary calm. Every one fays to himself, reason has had a trib umph to day; anarchy has had the worst of it; let us then have patience! They do not fee that the anarchists have always the upper hand in the conduct of affairs, and in important decisions: and it is of these men whose passions you would filence, in order to perfect fuccess in your mission! Of those men, who have tworn to eternize the discussion of the constitution, in order to eternize their own power! Of those men, who know the fecret of their own ftrength, fince they have an hundred times found that twenty of their people, by dint of noise, and clamour, and howling, have, after a five or fix hours obstinate debate, dictated to three or four hundred men, fuch decrees as they chose! No, that fort of dispute would have no end, especially if you add to the calculation on passions, the chances of events, which rapidly succeed each other, and which will almost always draw the attention of the Affembly.

X

In short, as to the force with which it will be necessary to encompass either the Convention or the authorities, to whom the execution of the law is committed, it can be but of two kinds, moral or physical.

The moral force will be null, while there exists with impunity, whether in the municipality, or in the clubs, schools of defamation against the constituted authorities.

Every necessary distinction is to be here made. Undoubtedly the Convention continues to hold the confidence of the departments; and this truth deserves to be well thought upon, especially by

*Q" - it is the passions of these menthat you should silence

ftrangers, who are but too ready to calculate the fall of the Convention, upon the local degradation that the fuffers, in the opinion of those strangers who foolishly consider this local degradation as a national degradation. No, this last does not exist, and there lies the fafety of France.* For the confidence which the Convention is in possession of throughout France, is sufficient to ensure execution of the laws, and respect to the members.

Perhaps it may be concluded, through another mistake, that the Convention having the confidence of the departments, must have that moral force which is necessary to her for fulfilling the duties of her mission. That confidence is not sufficient to that purpose; she must also join to it in particular the confidence of that great city which the inhabits.

I am very ready to believe with Petion, who has well studied the spirit of Paris, that if all her inhabitants were united in the fections, and were interrogated upon their opinions in regard to the affembly, they would almost all of them vote in her favour. How is it then that addresses, petitions, arrefts, are every day iffuing from that town, announcing to the Convention, that the has lost the confidence of Paris? It is that honest men abandon the place to the anarchists.+ What is the refult?—That in appearance the Convention

* Translator. All the world has feen how well these departments have provided for their supply. The Jacobins of Paris have triumphed every where: and the author and his friends, members of the Convention, have been abandoned.

⁺ Author. | Quid expettas? One might fay with Cicero, who apostrophiled the same inertness of that class of men, during the feditions of Cataline. Quid ergo in vastations fore? emnium tuas possessiones, sacro sanctas future putas?

are that force? The is at war with Paris, and has not her confidence-From the moment then that this war has existence, wherein libels, placards, addresses, take off from the Assembly that moral force which ought to furround her, where, in fact, the is annibilated by usurpation, and the rivalship for power, which is fet up by the clubs, the fections, and the municipality, it is evident, that the Convention no longer possesses the smallest moral force, although the does posses, in appearance, all of that force with which the eighty-four departments can furround her. The reason is evident : this last acts only from a distance; acts only by addresses, which are laughed at, which never aims a blow at the robbers, and is to them no better than a vain phantom.

To supply this moral force, the physical force, the force of arms, must be called in to make the Assembly respected, and her decrees executed.

Physical force! cry the anarchists! You are then tyrants: they only want that force: make your-felves beloved by the people, and the people will ferve you for a guard.

what people do you mean to speak of? By the people of France? The Convention is in possible festion of their considence. Of the people of Paris? The Convention believe themselves to be in possible of it. Is it by that people of robbers who surround ther inclosure, commit outrage in the collectes, in the clubs, in the deserted sections? The Convention would consider herself as degraded, it she possessed the love of that class of speople; and it is against them, and not against the real people, that she calls for actual force.

But how is she to procure that force? The whole of regular military force which Paris can supply, is disposed of in the different armies. The Parisian guard which stays there, and which is honoured by that name, is too much in a state of dependence, from its want of daily bread, and from their individual opinions, and from the relation it holds with the men who put the mobinto action, and from a thousand other incumbrances which will not allow the Convention to rely always upon the service of that guard in her defence.

Will you call for this force from the departments? The anarchifts will bawl out—a counter-revolution! Federalism! This departmental guard might be, perhaps, at present, a pretext for discord in Paris, or might be shortly debauched from the Convention.

Nevertheless it is impossible for the Convention to fave France without being free in making her decrees, and without fully inforcing their execution. If the cannot infure that liberty, that faculty, except through public confidence, or by force; if the confidence of the eighty-five departments is made null by the robbers who intest Paris; if no force is on foot able to reprefs them; if by the concurrence of these circumstances the Convention is under the yoke of a faction which governs her, and who by her means, expects to govern France in making her a mill for decrees (as Isnard expressed it) we must either consent to defroy the republic in allowing the prefent Convention of to day to die of a confumption in the mire, or a prompt and vigorous part most be taken to traw her out, in order to give France a representation that shall carry with it dignity, liberty, and power. Many Many methods have been proposed—we will rapidly run them over the state of the line I

Iff. To transfer the Convention to Verfailles, or to forme other place. But this translation will not remove our passions, nor our divisions from us, nor will it efface the degradation that we lie under. But the body of the people does not pronounce between the parties. Besides, is this translation in other respects practicable?

To convoke our suppleants (those who are choien to succeed on vacancies) to another town. They are not fufficient in number; and belides, the fense of the people is not taken by this meafure.

®

3.3d. To augment the Convention by a third of its members. It is the way to double the tumult; to fill the empty feats of every party, without annihilating the parties. This increase of a third of the members, would neither produce in their favour more liberty nor more force. We have members enough, who wish well to liberty; but there are still more who apprehend violence.

4th. To present, all at once, to the primary assemblies a plan of a committee of constitution; to engage them to accept it; and to name another legiflature.

This would be the best way if we had the firength of mind to raise ourselves above little pathons, and wisdom to look for nothing in this plan of constitution, but a measure presed upon us by a regard for general fafety, rather than a plan requiring minute care to make all its parts perfect. Without doubt it has defects, but it offers eafy means of reform when we shall have peace.

I will not cease to repeat it. Let us have a constitution, and we shall have a respected legislature, laws that will be obeyed, physical force to enfure the execution of them, an executive power respected and independent of the legislature, with which foreign powers may treat. Let us have constitution and we shall be delivered both from that committee of public fafety, which is a difgustful monster, which annihilates all responsibility, monopolizes all power. We shall be delivered by the fame means from thefe commissioners or despots distributed through the departments. and the armies who can answer no purpose but that of disorganizing every thing, of driving away men of talents from the public fervice, and of making republicanism odious: besides, there cannot be a constitution ready, except by this fourth measure. If we attempt feebly to discuss it now, we shall not have it in readiness these two

The fifth method is preferable, provided the fourth is not adopted; it confifts in immediately convoking the primary affemblies to proceed to the election of a new Convention, with a recommendation to them not to elect the prefent deputies.

This plan of Gensonné differs from that of Lafource; the result of whose proposition would have been a nullity, because if it were practicable to make an expurgatory scrutiny of five or

N. B. They have fince this publication disposed of the general by their guillotine.

fix

^{*} Author.] Does not what has just happened in Custine's case, offer proof? Is it not disgustful to make a general (who has done important service, and given proof of genius in the military art) subordinate to men who have no military knowledge or talents.

❽

It's an appeal to the caule the evil is prefix million of men upon thirty deputies, who are all well known, at is impossible that it should reach forty or fifty obscure deputies who distinguish themfelves only by the howlings and vociferations they make in chorus. - These men are, perhaps, more dangerous than the graters; for it is they who fatigue the affembly by their cries, and carry the decrees by force; one of these two confequences would follow: either the recommendation to exclude all the present members would be adopted, and then the new legislature would be delivered from the tyranny of those turbulent meins or, if that general recommendation should not be attended to, they are too well known by their excesses in their departments not to be excluded an at new election.

and This project of Gensonné is much better than that of Condorcet; because its execution is immediate. Condorcet does not convoke the primary affemblies till the month of November Either we are found, or we are diffempered if we are found, we do not want the remedy a if we are diftempered, it will not come in time, not nive to

I look for the motive which could dictate Condorcet's project. Could be imagine it a cure for the maladies which afflict the Convention? This a would be to lead the nation into a pernicious error. The Convention might perfect a cure, if the were free. Is the fo ? Surely Condorcer will mot affirm it. Will the be more fo in the month of November? Who will dare to play with the fafety of the nation upon this chance? It is howeven what they do, who will not take a measure that is prompt and decisive.

I like the menture of Genfonne. It earries his stamp. It applies an instant remedy, because

cause the evil is pressing. It is an appeal to the French people; to the people who doght in the end to pronounce between us, and our advertaries, who ought to pronounce between order and thare chy; her voice alone can completely crush the anarchifts. The people too of themtelves can adopt this measure, whenever they see the evil at fatigatevathe aftermilled demonstrates of the their aftering at

The meafure interrupts no bufinefs will eath remain at our posts. We continue the discussion of the plan of the constitution, we watch over affairs at home and abroad and home iberquis

The new Convention brings a change of ment and that is what we feek. Those who compose the prefent Convention hate one another too inuch not to fight with an eternal rancour, and no public good is done in the midft of that fierce battlemin

The new Convention will either ochange the place of her fitting without any convultions, for even if the returns to Paris, the will come furrounded with a force from the departments, capable of making herfelf respected, and will take the direction of the police and of the public force into her own hands and and and and in the barogenest

Genfonné proposed some time ago this measure of putting the police into the hands of the Convention. It was treated as a tyrannical measure. It was not even put to the vote. Time has shewn the wistom of this rejection may no dod The rior

The national representation must have the police of the place where the firs, or the mever can Con November hawhbard will dare to play sighed

Wo To decide the place where the legislative body must reside is a great question. For herwitborry,

Yet an accumulation of all power is the yery description of despotism. ner framp. It applico an ₿ her independences is the only security for the goodness of her decrees, and for the equality of What would that Congress say stromtrees by

b This question was long discussed in the America can Congress, and the experience of fifteen years has proved that whatever they could do, the disposition of the spot where the Congress resided; had always more influence upon its deliberations than any of the other states. This experiment was often made in Pennsylvania, in serfey, at New York ; it has always given this fame refult. Hence it is, that there were eternal discussions between the different states; hence it is that they at length resolved to build a federal town distant from great cities; upon a ground belonging to the Congress only, where she alone might exu ercife the rights of government. solution out tadi

The Congress besides experienced another in convenience not less confiderable by residing in a great town. It was in perpetual disputes with the constituted authorities either of the town itself, tors of the particular state. They would have a rivalthip with the Congress; but there (in America) as reason presides in their heads; it is not violence that supports these rivalships; they shew themselves only in altercations, in punctilios always vexatious, always too apt to alter that confidence which englitto furround the legislative body. Mo

At the end of the war a great number of foldiers presented themselves to the Congress to demand indemnities. The petition was infolent The Congress called upon the government of Philadel phia for forces to repress the seditions soldiers. The government hewed no earnest ness; and the Congress adjourned itself immediately into the Jerseys,

(117)

goodness of her decrees, and for the equiplinisgs

What would that Congress say africal resolution of the French Convention of the French Convention of Would it not justly blame the republic for continuing in a town where its deliberations have not freey where its sauthority is overy days trampled under solo by inferior authorities, where its deputies are inflicted and managed kind.

of peace, and when the confliction shall be shall roughly settled, circumstances, physical and possible tical, will not demand that the legislative power may be fixed in Paris. Without doubt, it is not impossible to establish the independency of the Terri gislative body in that great city. But I maintain that the measures which can establish that independence of the legislative body in any town whatever, ought to be prescribed by the constitution, to the end that they may not be always countered acted. He I maintain that the Convention has not at this time in Paris, the liberty which is need for taking her measures, nor the force for case rying them into execution.

There is nothing on which to hefitate. The the new Convention must have a provision at meeting of somewhere else; to enable her to deliberate. Such as well as a such as well as a such as well as a such as a

But the professive of Paris !—but the happiness of the people !—What will become of them, will be the cryo! I answer, that without doubt, Parishas in done immense dervices to the revolution; but it is will be paying non dear for her services, if we facrified the liberty of France as an acknowledge and mental That will be betraying the desires of Parish herfelf, and yestelleman that beautops should

The

erievs

The republic ought to employ her care for the happiness of Paris; it is a sacred debt; she will discharge it with honour. A crowd of measures present themselves to restore the ancient prosperity of that city, or rather to bestow on her a prosperity built upon a more folid and more honourable founchings! That its the heogies who with the woiteb

But the first, the most efficacious of these meafures is, the restoration of order and of law, For it is a matter of demonstration, that order will never be established in Paris as long as the Convention is ruled by the robbers who usurp the name of its inhabitants, as a difgnife to decorate their fanguinary decrees. This people of robbers, who distract Paris, and outrage the Convention, must be exter-

And it is to these rabbers, whom they call the people, the fovereign, that our anarchists would Subject all France.

8

72

Do you believe them, (I say as Cicero said to the Cataline of his day,) do you believe that the people of France is only a compound of those mercenaries, hired to beliege the fenate, to infult the magistrates, to stimulate to pillages and to conflagrations, and to call for murders without end? What a fine picture of the dignity of the French people, of that people, who, even in the midft of their advertity, are able to make kings tremble, together with their people of flaves.* Is this troop of banditti who daily furround the denate; is this the French people? The true speople of France are they, who filled our towns,

Translator.] This description of the unhappy people of france is not surely written for any other people than heads fruck off on the feaffold amidf the cries of Hoff la order whique ' Who has attempted to revenge this?

who are occupied in making our manufactures flourifh; employed in our fields in fertilizing our fails employed in our armies in defence of their country against foreign tyrants. There, there is the people of France whom we wish to serve, whole interest ought to prevail with us above all things! That is the people who wish that their reprefentatives should be free, in order that they may give them falutary laws! There is the people who fay to the robbers, " I will facrifice von all, if "the blood of a fingle individual of my reprefenta-"tives is fpilt!*" There is the people from whom it is our duty not to conceal the truth; to whom we owe the truth naked, whole, and entire! Well, it is to that people that I fay the Convention is not free at Paris. The present Convention cannot fave you, another must be called, it must fit somewhere else; otherwise you will have neither constitution nor government. Beidul

What an happiness it will be for me, if I am deceived in holding this opinion, but I cannot impole upon my conscience. I know the anarchists too well: I am too well instructed in what has paffed, to allow myfelf to be abused by a few moments of perfidious calm, by a few fittings, where reafon prevailed it to entire or the bary roll reafon relation

Departments, listen to me! Here is my thermometer: it ought to be your's. When they tell you that the Convention is free and obeyed, ask if the municipality is diffolved, if those who instigated murders, and the diffolution of the Convention, have left their heads upon the scaffold hare they unpunished? Do they with the same auda-

^{*} Translator.] Mark the event: twenty-two of their heads struck off on the scaffold amidst the cries of Vive la Republique! Who has attempted to revenge this?

B

city every day renew their excesses? Say that the Convention is not free, and consequently cannot save you. Whoever affirms the contrary is mistaken, or imposes upon you. Either have force, or fly from hence. This is my last word.

Anarchists, robbers! You may now strike; I have done my duty; I have told truths which will survive me; truths which will at least efface the disgrace with which you would wish to cover my name; truths that will prove to all France that good men have constantly exerted their whole whole strength to open the eyes of France, and to preserve her liberty.

Moniforment pught, to cake, its sets entireme when we recollect the dilapidations of the course of further, the factor has bargains which were made to that the player of the first on the millions given to the millions are the sense of the which appears; the because course of which appears; the because course of the green to the sense of the green to the green we have a specimine.

The second secon

The Carlotte of the contract the contract the contract

beads Arack of an she leaded anyth the cries of Fitch is Republicant Wilders attempted to screening this?

Convention is not free, and consequently cannot every day renew their excesses? Say that the

This is now life word.

laken, or Xpdedro I and The courtary is this taken, or Xpdedro I and And And bave force.

or fly from Herrie

The following note of the Author should have been inserted in page 40, where it has by chance been omitted. But the teader will perhaps not be sorry to see it.

bound Rew files to it fleat with the next which beyond

ON a view of the immense sums expended by the anarchists, it is often asked, where is the source of their wealth? Our astonishment ought to cease, in my opinion, when we recollect the disapidations of the comité de surveillance, the lucrative bargains which were made by Pache, the mayor of Paris, in savour of his friends; the deficit of his accounts; the millions given to the municipality of Paris; no application of which appears; the secret sunds granted to the executive council.

What I will any one venture to affirm, that the inconceivable robbery of the crown jewels has not its share in feeding this perennial spring of corruption? I observe, that Thurist had drawn into his hands the management of that business; that he pursued it with a singular earnestness; that he afterwards consigned it to oblivion; that Fabre d'Eglantine revived it three months after, and without any apparent motive; that he revived it at a time when the facts were forgotten; when Roland appeared to be abandoned; when those whom he protected were ruined by supporting him; when the saction pressed Restout to make a deposition against him, at a time when they pressed Beauvoir, Kolly and his wife, who were their prisoners, to make a deposition against this same Roland; when they employed careffes, promifes, menaces, to obtain this deposition, which, joined to that of the false witness Gauthier, might have put Roland's head in danger! I observe, that this infinuation of Fabre was made the day before the setting fire to the Hall of Justice. A fire which their emissaries raised a cry upon against the Rolandins, as having been the cause of it, in order to make away with the testimonies that were on record in the inquiry into the robbery!

₿

It is the constant manœuvre of the anarchists to accuse their adverfaries of having laid schemes for sedition, massacre, robbery :- Return them their loan, and you never will be guilty of calumny against them. a view of the immen

Translator. With all the author's earnestness to clear his friend Roland of this foul robbery and breach of truft, his friend is by no means acquitted in public opinion.-Nor does his own character escape from censure: as far as can be judged from pamphlets, (which are however certainly not to be admitted as proofs,) the public voice feems to suppose, that Briffot shared the guilt of Roland in this foul transaction. about ton

suche us a Auserdales and movement to affirm, that the inconcernable comments have not select, but not its their in fraung into aid Ditto se correspond I obleve, that There is had stans of the Peers on the management of that busines; that store with a Character of N I T The store of the store of i lesiver enines of beside I to

ndr ferhein beseene zon enedies basekiette interational and क रोक्स है विकेश्वास के मुन्ति है में किया कार्य के हिन्दी कर्य है कि में विकास है कि में विकास की में Kaband appropriate abandoned a velocu thotographous he pronorther the media paint gaing again Made model to before went a ret, mid . firthing and West is a dead of the winter

The rate a deposition activities for lane Relays:

Tenonia State of the Color of the Solar was the Solar who was aknell's Hillory on seen

LIST OF BOOKS

oblerve, that this infingor darring was made the day be fine the leating fire to the Hall of Tolling. A fire which the Guardion in have put Roland's head in danger!

JOHN STOCKDALE, PICCADILLY.

advertaries of haven't la deletines for fedition, maffacte

record in the hanness that the robberry

ad like reven they been recol trade many Sells for bound unless otherwise expressed. BERCROMBIE's Hot-house Gardener, royal 8vo. 0 7 - Ditto, plates, coloured, - Kitchen Gardener, 12mo. - Gardener's Calendar, 12mo. - 200500 Vade Mecum, 18mo. Adventures of Numa Pompilius, 2 vols. Ælop's Fables, with 112 Plates, from Barlow's Deligns, vols, elephant 8vo. boards, Ancient and Modern Universal History, 60 vols, boards, 15 10 0 calf, lettered, 18 0 0 rts, fewed, — 0 6 0 Anderson on India, complete in two Parts, sewed, Andrews's Anecdotes, ancient and modern, 8vo. Plans of Cities, 42 plates, with descriptions, 4to. half-bound, - Ditto, with coloured plates, half-bound, Arms of the Peers and Peereffes of Great Britain, &c. -Arms of the Baronets of Great Britain, Arnold's Church Music, folio, half-bound, Arrowsmith's Chart of the World on Mercator's Scale, on rollers, Articles against Hastings, and his Answer, Svo. boards Ayscough's Index to Shakspeare, 8vo. Bayley on Music, Poetry, and Oratory, 8vo. Beauties of the British Senate, 2 vols, 8vo. Berquin's Children's Friend, 6 vols. with 46 copper-plates, - Ditto, 4 vols. 12mo. - Select Stories, 12mo. Bicknell's History of England, 12mo. Bonnet's Philosophical Inquiries, new edition, 8vo.

	£	. 5.	d
Bonnet on Christianity, 12mo.	0	3	0
Boothby's (Sir Brooke) Observations on Burke and Paine,
ofewed, Antwood and connect which are	0	5	0
Ditto, on a superfine wove paper,	*	,
boards,	0	6	0
Boscawen's Horace, 8vo. boards,		7	6
Brissot's Address on the State of France, with Notes, and		1	-
Draface by the Translator found	_		6
Broome's Elucidation of Hastings's Trial, 8vo. boards,	0	2
Broome's Elucidation of Flattings's 1 rial, 8vo. boards,	0	5	0
Burke's Charges, and Hastings's Answer, 8vo. boards,	0	10	6
Cavendish's State of Ireland, 8vo. boards,		10	6
Chalmers's Collection of Treaties between Great Britain
and other Powers, 2 vols.8vo.	0	18
- Ditto, on fine paper, boards,	0	18	•
Estimate of the Comparative Strength of Great	3-
Britain, 8vo. fewed,	0	3	6
Life of Ruddiman, 8vo. boards,	0	6
Life of De Foe, 8vo. fewed,	0	2	6
Champion on the American Commerce, 8vo. boards,			(
Collection of Tracts on the Regency, 2 vols. 8vo. boards,			0
Companion to the London and Royal Calendar for 1794			6
Cooke's Voyage, 12mo. new edition, with plates,	0	4	(
Dalrymple's Practice of Modern Cookery, 8vo.	O	(£Q
Davis's Historical Tracts, with his Life, 8vo. by George	0.0	illa
Chalmers, F. R. S. S. A.	0	0	0
Day's Dying Negro, new edition, 8vo. with a frontispiece			A.
by Metz and Neagle, boards,	.0	10.3	(
History of Sandford and Merton, 3 vols.	0	10	(
Tracts, including the Dying Negro, 8vo. boards,	30	13	(
Tracts, including the Dying Negro, 8vo. boards, Children's Mifcellany,	0	3	(
History of Sandford and Merton, 2 vols. (French,)		7	(
Debates in Parliament, (Stockdale's) from 1784 to 1793	i com	4
inclusive, 22 volst8vo. half-bound, uncut, ham A-			( 23985	10	(
Ditto, royal 4to, boards,	200
Dobson's Petrarch's View of Human Life, 8vo.			-
Divon's Vource round the World to boards
Dixon's Voyage round the World, 4to. boards,		111.
- Ditto, large fine paper, Natural Haltory coloured,
	I	10	(
Edwards's History of the West Indies, 2 vols. 4to	2	8	(
- Ditto, fine paper, boards, -	2	12	(
Ferguson's Roman History, 3 vols. 4to. boards,			•
Fielding's New Peerage of England, Scotland, and Ireland,	87	DIO.
bounds, della contact of the contact			. (
Filfon's History of Kentucky, with a large Map, 19 in-	iill	Phi
sr sches by f7, .abi - a solution woold addition -	0	2
Fleurieu's Voyages and Discoveries of the French, 4to.	1	4
Gay's Fables, (Stockdale's edition) z vols. elephant 8vo.			3 8
with 70 plates, boards, and buts to some			-
Godwin's Lives of the Bishops, with 70 head and tail	200	Marketon pieces, folio, boards, PICTOR ADMINISTRATION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE P

à

0

0000

D

0.0

10

43

0

Sells	for	ba	imd,	unles
				effed.

17.70 alter artus	Sells for boin otherwise e.	nd, und
	£.
Gordon's (Sir Adam) Contraft, 2 vols. 12mo	D. 10.
Selection of Pfalms, fewed,
Haftings's Answer to the Charges, 8vo. board		SOM
Hawkins's History of the Ottoman Empire,	vols — I	6
Hawtayne's Sermons, 8vo. boards, -		-
Hill's Travels, through Sicily and Calabria in	791, royal	Roff
History of the Regency, 8vo. boards,	0	10
History of New Holland, 8vo. with maps, bo	ards, - o	6
Hunter's Voyages, in the South Seas, with	17 plates,	11000
4to. boards,	thair on the bat	11
Ditto, fine paper, boards,	- 2	12
	oards, — o	7
Jackson's Constitution of the American States	, 8vo o	7
Jefferson's History of Virginia, 8vo. boards,
Indian Vocabulary, boards, — —		3
Johnson's Works, vol. 12 and 13, containing l	nis Debates	-41
in Parliament, with a Preface by G.	Chalmers,	20 m an.
F. R. S. S. A		14
vol. 14, 8vo.	o to to	670
Latrobe's Anecdotes of the King of Prussia, 8	o. bds o	6
History of Struenzee and Brandt,		5
Law on the Rifing Resources of India, royal	Bvo.	17
Life of Dante and Petrarch, boards, - List of Militia Officers, with the Dates of their
flons, &c. fewed,		2
London Calender Complete for 1794, bound	0	9
in morocco extr	a with gilt
edges — — —	a with gilt
edges. — — —	a with gilt	2
edges, — — fingle, — and Almanack,	a with gilt	2 1
edges, — — fingle, — and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo.	a with gilt 0 boards, - 0	2 1 7
Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma	a with gilt	2 1
Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma fine paper, bo	a with gilt 0 0 boards, - 0 ards, - 0	2 1 7
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma fine paper, bo Ditto, abridged	a with gilt 0 0 boards, - 0 ards, - 0	2 1 7 7 8
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma fine paper, bo Ditto, abridged	boards, — o ards, — o with eight	2 7 7 8 3
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma fine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches	boards, — o ards, — o with eight d, — o	2 2 1 7 7 8 3 2
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Mafine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitched Nares on Government, stitched;	a with gilt	2 2 1 7 7 8 3 2 2
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Mafine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched; New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts,	a with gilt 0 boards, - 0 ards, - 0 with eight d, - 0	2 2 7 7 8 3 2 2 7 .
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma fine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched; New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts, in 1 vol. 12mo, 32 cuts,	a with gilt	2 2 1 7 7 8 3 2 2
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma fine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched, New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, abridged, in 1 vol. 1	a with gilt	2 2 7 7 8 3 2 2 7 .
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma fine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched; New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, cuts, cuts,	a with gilt	2 2 7 7 8 3 2 2 7 .
edges, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Mafine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched; New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, cuts, Oldys's Life of Pain, with vignette, stitched,	a with gilt	2 2 7 7 8 3 2 2 7 .
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma- fine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched, New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, cuts, Oldys's Life of Pain, with vignette, stitched, Parliamentary Guide, 8vo.	a with gilt	2 2 7 7 8 3 2 2 7 4 2 2
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Mafine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched; New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, cuts, Oldys's Life of Pain, with vignette, stitched, Parliamentary Guide, 8vo. Phillip's Voyage to Botany Bay, with 55 plate	a with gilt	2 2 7 7 7 8 3 2 2 7 4
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma fine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched; New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, abridged, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, Cuts, Oldys's Life of Pain, with vignette, stitched, Parliamentary Guide, 8vo. Phillip's Voyage to Botany Bay, with 55 plate with coloured plates, boards,	a with gilt	2 2 7 7 7 8 3 2 2 7 4
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma fine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched; New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, abridged, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, Cuts, Oldys's Life of Pain, with vignette, stitched, Parliamentary Guide, 8vo. Phillip's Voyage to Botany Bay, with 55 plate with coloured plates, boards, third edition, 8vo. with 20	a with gilt	2 2 7 7 7 8 3 2 2 7 4 4 2 2 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1
edges, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Ma fine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched, New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, abridged, in 1 vol. 12 cuts, Oldys's Life of Pain, with vignette, stitched, Parliamentary Guide, 8vo. Phillip's Voyage to Botany Bay, with 55 plate with coloured plates, boards, third edition, 8vo. with 20 Playsair on the Division of France, with Gene	a with gilt	2 2 7 7 8 3 2 2 7 4 11 12 10
edges, fingle, and Almanack, Minutes of the Evidence against Hastings, 8vo. Morse's American Geography, 8vo. with Mafine paper, bo Ditto, abridged plates Muncaster (Lord) on the Slave Trade, stitches Nares on Government, stitched; New Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. 12mo. 32 cuts, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, abridged, in 1 vol. 12mo. 32 cuts, Cuts, Oldys's Life of Pain, with vignette, stitched, Parliamentary Guide, 8vo. Phillip's Voyage to Botany Bay, with 55 plate with coloured plates, boards, third edition, 8vo. with 20	a with gilt	2 2 7 7 7 8 3 2 2 7 4 4 2 2 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1

constant of the contract of th
$B = A \sum_{i=1}^{n} A_i $. 5.
Portlock's Voyage to the North West Coast of America,	O A	111111	7.62
2 4to. boards,	1	5	•
Pye's Commentary of Aristotle, royal 4to.		10	B
Poems, on various subjects, 2 vols. 8vo.		14	box
Paetic of Aristotle,	0	5	0
Spectre, a Novel, 2 vols.	0	7	0
Amusement, stitched,	O	2	6
Observations on Hunting, with a Frontispiece and Vignette, by Stothard and Heath,	0	7	0
Price's India Tracts, 4 vols. bound,	1	8	0
Ramfay's History of the American War, 2 vols. 8vo. new			1
CHEIOLIS	ride or glade	14	0
ditto, fine paper, boards,	0	14	•
Boards: Svo.	0		1
그림 그는 내가 이 집에 가지 않는데 그리고 있다면 하는데 되었다. 그는데 그렇게 되었다면 하는데 그리고 있다면 하는데 하는데 하는데 하는데 하는데 되었다면 생각하다.	0	12	0
Ranby's Observations on the Slave Trade, 8vo. sewed,	0	4	0
Robinson Crusoe, 2 vols. Demy Octavo, with 17 plates	0.19	-0
Rouse on the landed Property of Bengal, Svo. boards,		18	0
Sayer's Lindor and Adelaide, 12mo.	0 0	2 10	0
Scott's (Captain) History of the Mogul Empire, stitched,	11	3	0
Seally's Geographical Dictionary, 2 vols. 4to. half	0	3	U
bound, , — — — — — — — —			6
Sermon by the Bishop of Nova Scotia, preached at Hali-	alv	971	H
fax, on Sunday, April 7, 1793,	0	olud	db
Short Review of the British Government in India, fewed,	0	2	6
Simpkin's Humourous and Satirical Letters, complete,	e in	olan	05
8vo. 01 31 14 150 150 150 150 150 150 150 150 150 150	0	8	•
	0	4	0
Sketch of Universal History, with 36 Heads of Kings,		and the second	provide.
o slewed, sure o serial exolution	0	1	-
Smith on the Human Species, 8vo. stitched,		Land Post	6
Stockdale's Trial for a supposed Libel, royal 8vo. boards,			6
The Goldsmith's Repository, 8vo. (by Aldridge)	0		6
Whitaker's History of Arianism, royal 8vo.	0	12
Wray's Refolves of the Cloureflet Committee Syn	No	240.5	18
Zelia in the Defert, or the Female Robinson Crusoe,	0	3	0
Day's History of Little Jack, with 23 cuts,	0	T	0
Berquin's Honest Farmer, with frontilpiece,	0
Hiftory of Little Guandinon,	0	da	0
Gordon's (Sir Adam) affectionate Advice.	0	III.	0
The History of a Schoolboy, with cuts,		I
plates coloured beards,			.0
Works (Beaumarchais's Edition) yo vols. with	8 9.	HELL	O.A.
Alfo a small number of the following Articles	PPP	oa adle	TXY
Travels, through Flanders, Gemany, France	3	ilkei	W
Ancient Tracts on landed Property, 8vo. boards, vo	10	IE &	0
Beaumont's Travels over the Alps, boards, o would and	HER	ZITA.	6
Bepousky's Travels, 2 vols. boards,	2	2
		-

The thirty and of the residual for the second secon	otherwise expressed.
Daniel and Stifferent District Land	5. s. d.
Berrington's History of Henry II. 4to. boards,	Spuriory a result of
Bever's Roman Laws, 4to. boards, Biographia Britannica, folio, vol. 5,	o Lant. Company
Biographia Britannica, 10110, vol. 5,	Bin (mm 2) 20 0
Brand's History of Newcastle, 2 vols. 4to. calf, gil	t, 2 12 6
Ditto, boards,
Bruce's Travels, 5 vols. 4to. boards,	10 m 6050 5 Q
ditto, calf, gilt,	- 6 6 0
Buck's Antiquities, 3 vols. folio, bound,	- 2100 0
Button's Natural History, in French, 43 vols. 121	ao. with a v
coloured plates, calf, gilt,	16 16 19
Camden's Britannia, 3 vols. folio, calf, lettered, calf, gilt, Ruffia, Cartwright's Journal, 3 vols. 4to, boards,	11 17 0
calf, gilt,	-12 0 0
Ruffia,	13 0 00
Cartwright's Journal, 3 vols. 4to. boards,
fine paper, boards,
Chambers's Dictionary, 5 vols, folio, boards,	-11 0 6
Ditto, calf, gilt,	12 12/00
Clavigero's History of Mexico, 2 vols. 4to. boards	- 22 2
Enfield's Natural Philosophy, 4to. boards,	- 0.16/6
Fenn's Original Letters, vols. 3 and 4, 4to. board	2 400
Gardner's Views on the Rhine, 4to. boards,	- 1 17 06
Grey's Debates, 10 vols. 8vo, boards, very little m	ildewed a lad &
colf gilt clean	indewed, 2 12 30
Calf, gilt, clean,
Hervey's Letters, 3 vols. boards,	11 377 (20003130
Johnson's Poets, 75 vols. calf, gilt, triple pieced,	15:15 O
Johnson and Steevens's Shakspeare, 15 vols. 8vo.	10 TO 10 50 3000
Johnson and Steevens's Snakipeare, 15 vols. 8vo.	Doards, D. 15 10
Lives of the Poets, 4 vols. with Bell's l
boards, north a second of the call	3 3 9
Ditto, calf, lettered,	12 17 16
and Piozzi's Letters, 2 vols. 8vo. boards,	- 00012 Q
Ireland's Tour on the Thames, 2 vols. boards,	auH od t 2 12 m4
Kimber's Baronetage, 3 vols. 8vo. boards,
Kippis's Life of Cooke, 4to. boards,	of he Geldlunith's !
Lylon's Environs of London, 4to. boards, A	aviation of the
Page's Voyages and Travels, 3 vols. 8vo.	AVITTED LESSING
Parkinfon's Voyage, boards,
Robertson's Bath Roads, vol. 1, 8vo. boards,	Davis Hillery of !
Speechly on the Vine, 4to, boards,	deraure lenett
Swinburne's Sicily, vol. 2, 4to boards, sin + 0	WIO THE I
Tarleton's Campaigns in America, 4to hoards
Tour through the South of England and Wale	se &countill ad T
1791, plates coloured, boards, -	- 0.14 Q
Voltaire's Works (Beaumarchais's Edition) 70 v
Walbeck's Fables, ancient and modern,	5 0/1K 28 0 9
	France
Walker's Travels through Flanders, Gemany
and Italy, 8vo. boards,	no spend on significant Warrington's History of Wales, 4to. boards,
2 Vols Control of the	sepoulky's Lievel

- The Course of Hannibal over the Alps ascertained. By John Whitaker, B. D. in two vols. 8vo.
- * The History of the principal Republics in the World, compared with the English Constitution. By John Adams, L. L. D. in three vols. 8vo. Embellished with a Portrait of the Authorpainted by Copley, and engraved by Hall.
- 3 Thomson's Seasons, with his Life. Notes by Percival Stockdale. In a pocket volume, and embellished with fourteen plates' designed by Stothard.
- A The American Geography. By Jedidiah Morse, A. M. in one large vol. 420. with new maps.
- 5 A New general Dictionary of the English Language, with an introductory Preface. By William Perry. In a pocket volume.
- 6 Historical Plates for the History of England, confisting of One Hundred Engravings, with letter Press, descriptive of each Subject; designed by Metz and Stothard, in fixteen numbers, at 5s. each.
- 7 The Standard French and English pronouncing Dictionary, in two parts. By William Perry.
- A Philosophical and Political History of the French Revolution, from the Accession of Louis XVI. to the present Time. By William Playsair. In two large volumes 8vo.
- Characters of the Kings of England, and a concile History of the Kingdom, with historical Notes, by John Holt. In one volume 12mo. embellished with an elegant frontispiece designed by Metz, and engraved by Bromley.
- FORTY MILES round MANCHESTER. By J. Aikin, M. D. Illustrated with fifty Maps, Plans, and Views, in one large vol. 4to.

affiled when the lett be seen to a court time, shediclette the safe

Westerness state became grants at another the William William of the company to the conserved of the conserved the

A CATALOGUE

CATALOGUE

Course of Monahal over the Pips affectained by John

Langaro Buove O and Ougod King of S, to confide the

CANTER OF THE PRINTED FOR BUILDING AND BLOWSING

494 de Franklich Confession. By John Adams, L. L. D. m

JOHN STOCKDALE,

PICCADILLY, LONDON.

 All the Books in this Catalogue are to be confidered as being in Boards, unless otherwise expressed, and may be had on the shortest Notice from any of the Booksellers in Great Britain.

December, 1793.

History of the Country round Manchester.

JOHN STOCKDALE respectfully informs the Gentlemen of Manchester, and its neighbourhood, that the Description of the Country from thirty to forty miles round Manchester,

By J. AIKIN, M. D.

is in confiderable forwardness, and will be put to press in March next; he will therefore most thankfully receive any information relating to the Towns, Villages, Parishes, &c. within the space to be described.

†‡† That the Public may form some Idea of the above Work, Mr, STOCKDALE assures them it will cost him upwards of 2500l. This is stated for no other Reason excepting that of shewing to those who may wish to encourage such a Work, that it is not a hasty, or will be a trisling Performance. No Money is taken in Advance, nor will any Subscriber be desired to take the Book unless it fully answers his expectation.

PROPOSALS for the Work, and Catalogues of Books printed for Mr. Stockdale, may be had gratis of the Booksellers in Manchester, Liverpool, York, Derby, Lancaster, Chester, Warrington, Knutsford, Leeds, Halifax, Chestersield, Newcastle-under-Line, Shessield, Wakefield, Stassord, Macclessield, Shrewsbury, Hudderssield, Nottingham, Manssield, Stockport, Ormskirk, Wigan, Ashborne, Preston, Leek, Knaresborough, Rochdale, Stone, Clithero, Wrexham, Altringham, Congleton, Burslem, Nantwich, Ashton-under-Line, and Mottram in Longdendale, &c.

In One large Volume 4to, Price 11. 11s. 6d. in Boards, or to Non-Subscribers 21, 28, illustrated with a large Two Sheet Map of the Country thirty to forty Miles round Manchester; on which will be accurately laid down all the Noblemen's and Gentlemen's Seats, Parks, Towns, Villages, Public Buildings, Manufactories; old and new Turnpike and Crofs Roads, made or making, Rivers, Lakes, Bridges, and Canals, made, making, or in Agitation; and embellished with fifty Copperplates of Views of Towns, Romantic Scenes, New and Ancient Build ings, &c. taken on the Spot by E. DAYES, and five feparate Maps the Counties of CHESHIRE, LANCASHIRE, DERBYSHIRE, STAI FORDSHIRE, and YORKSHIRE.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE COUNTRY

From Thirty to Forty Miles round Manchester;

CONTAINING

I. A full Account of its Geography, both Civil and Natural, and of its principal Productions.

II. Accounts of its Towns and chief Villages; their History, Population, Commerce, and Manufactures.

III. Remains of Antiquity, Nocices of distinguished Families and Perfons, and other Miscellaneous Objects curious and interesting.

THE MATERIALS TO BE ARRANGED, AND THE WORK COMPOSED,

By J. AIKIN, M. D. Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

The following Places, amongst many others, will be noticed; Congleton Knutsford Mottram in Long-Preston Altringham Burflem Bury Afhborne Cromford Leeds dendale Rochdale Duckenfield Leek Nantwich Ashton under Buxton Sandbach Eccleston Leigh Newton Line Castleton Sheffield Chapel in the Fairfield Liverpcol Rakewell Newcastle under Stockport Barnfley Frith Frodiham Tarportey Longnor Line Chester Macclesfield Northwich Betley Gloffop Tidfwell Blackburn Chesterfield Halifax Malpas Oldham . Wakefield Haflingden Bolton Chorley Matleck Ormskirk Warrington Bradford Clithera Huddersfield Middlewich Poulton Wigan Kirkham Coln Prescot Burnley

Mr. STOCKDALE has already fixed on as many Plates to be engraved as he possibly can afford, without advancing the Price; but, should any Gentleman be indrawing and engraving any particular View or Building, it will be thankfully received by the Publisher, and acknowledged in the Work.

The following is a List of the PLATES now engraving for this Work, exclusive of the Six Maps above-mentioned

	the Bix triups above-mentioned	the late of the effective particles and the second
VIEWS OF	VIEWS OF	VIEWS OF
1. Manchester	16. Stayley Bridge	31 Booth's Hall
2. Stockport	17. Barton Bridge	32. Duckenfield Hall
3. Ashton under Line	18. Old Church, Manches	ter 33. Royton Hall
4. Mottram in Longdendale		34. Dunham
5. Liverpool	20. Mottram Church	35. Heaton
6. Macclesfield	21. Rowe Crofs	36. Poynton
7. Leek	22. Chatfworth	37. Ancoats
S. Athborne	23. Duckenfield Lodge	38. Jailor's Chapel
6. Buxton	24. Stayley Hall	AND PLANS OF
To- Matlock Bath	25. Old Hall, Ashton	39. Manchester
11. Castleton	26. Hyde Hall	40. Liverpool
12. Hartshead Pike	27. Harden Hall	41. Buckton Castle
13. Scout Mill	28. Lime Hall	42. Castleshaw
14. Broadbottom Bridge	29. Tatten Hall	43. Caftle Croft
Ic. Fairfield	30. Chadderton Hall	44. Caftle Steads, &c
* A LIST of the	30. Chadderton Hall SUBSCRIBERS will be PRIN	TED, and the Books will delivered as nearly as politible	in the Order they are fubscril	bed for. But as the Editio cuanta bassassas abar CuA and 1

be will be very large, the Difference between the first and last Impressions of the Plates must, of courie be very great.

A Splendid Edition of BARLOW's ASOP's FABLES.

This Day is published,

IN TWO VOLUMES,

ELEGANTLY PRINTED ON A SUPERFINE WOVE ELEPHANT OCTAVO, (11 Inches by 7)

And embellished with One Hundred and Twelve-beautiful Copper Pla from BARLOW's celebrated Designs,

THE CHARDES CEA DESIDE HERTER AND

HALL, A. SMITH, BROWLEY, LANDSEER, EASTGATE, GRAINGER, WILSON, AUDINET, MEDIAND, CHAPMAN, &c.

Price Two Guineas and an Half in Boards,

THE FABLES OF ÆSOP.

To which is prefixed a LIFE of the AUTHOR.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

A SPLENDID EDITION OF GAY'S FABLES.

This Day is published,

IN TWO VOLUMES,

SLEGANTLY PRINTED ON A SUPERFINE WOVE ELEPHANT OCTAVO, (II INCHES by 7)

And embellished with Seventy Copper Plates,

Engraved by GRAINGER, AUDINET, MAZELL, LOVEGROVE, WILSON, See

Price One Pound Eleven Shillings and Sixpence in Boards,

FABLES,

By JOHN GAY.

To which is prefixed a LIFE of the AUTHOR.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

The above Works have been carefully hot-pressed, and will be delivered in Boards, with filver Paper betwixt each Plate and the Letter-press, to prevent the one from injuring the Beauty of the other: they are printed uniform, on the same Type and Paper.

The Public are defired to observe, that the above two Editions of ÆSOP's and GAY's FABLES are to be distinguished from any others by their size, as described, (11 inches long by 7 wide) with only one subject engraved on each plate, and they are without exception the two most beautiful and splendid Editions ever given of these pleasing and valuable Authors.

By Authority.

This Day is published, in one large Volume Quarto, embellished with Fifty-five Copper-plates, second Edition, Price 11. 115.6d. in Boards,

THE VOYAGE OF

Governor Phillip to Botany Bay;

With an Account of the Establishment of the Colonies at PORT JACKSON AND NORFOLK ISLAND: Compiled from authentic Papers, which have been received from the several Departments.

TO WHICH ARE ADDED,

The Journals of Lieut. SHORTLAND of the Alexander; Lieut. WATTS of the Penrhyn; Lieut. BALL of the Supply; and Capt. MARSHALL of the Scarborough; with an Account of their new Discoveries.

The Maps and Charts taken from actual Surveys, and the Plans and Views drawn on the Spot, by Capt. Hunter, Lieut. Shortland, Lieut. Watts, Lieut. Dawes, Lieut. Bradley, Capt. Marshall, &c.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

The following is a List of the Engravings which are in this Work.

I Head of Governor Phillip, from a Painting in the Possession of Mr. Nepean, by F. Wheatley; engraved by

2 Head of Lieut. Shortland, engraved by Sherwin, from a Painting of Shelley's

3 Head of Lieut. King, from a Painting by Wright

4 View of Botany Bay, with the Supply and Sirius at Anchor, and the Transports coming in

5 A large Chart of Port Jackson

A View in Port Jackson, with the Natives in their Canoes trouling

View of the Natives in Botany Bay 8 Map of Lord Howe Island, and

View of ditto 9 Head of Lieut. Watts, drawn by Shelley, and engraved by Sherwin 10 View of Natives and a Hot in New South Wales

II View of New South Wales

12 A large Plan of the Establishment at Sydney Cove, Port Jackson

13 A large Chart of Norfolk Island 14 View of Ball's Pyramid

15 Chart of Lieut. Shortland's New Discoveries

16 Track of the Alexander from Port Jackson to Batavia

27 Chart of Caprain Marshall's New Discoveries

18 View of the Natives in their failing Canoe at Mulgrave Islands

19 View of Curtis's Island

20 View of Macauley's Island

21 Caspian Tern

22 The Kanguroo 23 The Spotted Opossum

24 Vulpine Opossum

25 Norfolk Island Flying Squirrel

26 Blue-bellied Parrot

27 Tabuan Parrot

28 Pennanthian Parrot

29 Pacific Parrot

30 Sacred King's Fisher

31 Superb Warbler, male

32 Superb Warbler, female

33 Norfolk Island Petrel

34 Bronze-winged Pigeon

White-fronted Hern 35

36 Wattled Bec-eater

37 Psittaceous Hornbill

38 Martin Cat

39 Kanguroo Rat

40 A Dog of New South Wales

41 The Black Cuckatoo

42 Red-shouldered Paraquet

43 Watt's Shark

44 The Laced Lizard

45 New Holland Goat Sucker

46 White Gallinule

47 New Holland Caffowary 48 Port Jackson Shark

49 Yellow Gum Plant

50 Axe, Bafket, and Sword

51 Bag-throated Balistes

52 Fish of New South Wales

53 Great Brown King's Fisher
54 Black Flying Opossum
55 Skeleton of the Head of a Kanguro

and Vulpine Opoffum

N. B. A few of the first Edition, with fine Impressions of the Plates, and the Natural History, be autifully coloured, may be had of Mr. Stockdale, price 21, 125. 6d. boards.

The History of the West-Indies.

DEDICATED BY PERMISSION TO

HIS MAJESTY.

This Day is Published, illustrated with a large Two Sheet Map of the West-Indies,

IN TWO VOLUMES QUARTO,

Price 21. 2s. in Boards;

THE

HISTORY,

CIVIL AND COMMERCIAL,

OF THE

British Colonies in the West-Indies:

CONTAINING

A political and topographical Survey of the feveral English SUGAR ISLANDS;

A comprehensive Account of their ancient and present Inhabitants, Agriculture, and Productions, Laws, Government, Constitutions, and Commerce;

AN

HISTORICAL REVIEW of the SLAVE TRADE;

Including some Observations on the Character, Genius, Dispositions, and Situation of the enslaved Africans.

TOGETHER WITH

Several incidental Disquisitions, illustrative of the Value and Importance of these

COLONIES,

And their Relation towards the feveral Great Interests, the Manufactures, Navigation, Revenues, and Lands of GREAT BRITAIN.

By BRYAN EDWARDS, Efq.

OF THE ISLAND OF JAMAICA.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

 A few Copies are printed on a Superfine Wove Medi um, Price 21, 12s. 6d

This Day is published, in One Volume, Royal Quarto,

Confifting of Six Hundred Pages of close Letter Press, Price 11. 11s. 6d. in Boards,

Illustrated with Seventeen Maps, Charts, Views, and other Embellishments, drawn on the Spot, by Captains HUNTER and BRADLEY, and Lieut. DAWES,

AN HISTORICAL JOURNAL

OF THE

TRANSACTIONS AT PORT JACKSON AND NOR-FOLK ISLAND,

With the Discoveries which have been made in NEW SOUTH WALES and in the Southern Ocean, fince the publication of PHILLIP's VOYAGE, compiled from the Official Papers;

Including the Journals of Governors PHILLIP and KING, and of Lieut. BALL, and the Voyages from the first failing of the Sirius in 1787, to the Return of that Ship's Company to England in 1792.

By JOHN HUNTER, Efq. POST CAPTAIN IN HIS MAJESTY'S NAVY.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE,

A List of the PLATES in the above WORK.

z. A Portrait of Captain Hunter. 2. Vignette on the Title Page of a native Woman and Child in Distress. 3. A large Map of New South Wales, shewing the River Hawkesbury and every Part of that Country hitherto explored, by Lieutenant Dawes.

4. A large Chart of Botany Bay, Port Jackson, and Broken Bay, with the intermediate Coast and Soundings, surveyed by Capt. Hunter.

5. The Southern Hemisphere, shewing the Track of the Sirius. 6. A new Plan of Norfolk Island, by Captain Bradley.

7. Track of the Waakfamheyd Transport.

8. A View of the Settlement on Sydney Cove, Port Jackson. 8. A View of the Settlement at Rose Hill, little state of By Captain Hunter, II. A Man of Lord Howe's Groupe. I add no surrotinu be Airq and J2. Canoes of the Duke of York's Island.

13. A Man of the Duke of York's Island benjet me andu I on I

14. A Family of New South Wales, by Governor King.

15. Non-Descript Shells of New South Wales, Plate I.

16. Ditto

one fubject the Plate III the top of the control in the two months are the two months are the top of the control in the top of the control in the two months are the control in the contro 17. Ditto mouiba bibn

* * A few Copies of the above Work may be had printed on a Super fine Wove Royal, Price 21. 2s. in Boards.

SHAKSPEARE, WITH A COMPLETE INDEX,

HIS MAJESTY,

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES.

This Day is published,
IN ONE LARGE VOLUME OCTAVO,

Containing near 1700 Pages, beautifully printed upon a fine Royal Paper, and embellished with a Head of the Author, from the Original Folio Edition, Price 11. 115. 6d. in Boards,

SHAKSPEARE,

The Whole of his Dramatic Works;

With Explanatory Notes, compiled from various Commentators.

To which is added,

A Copious INDEX to all the remarkable Passages and Words.

By the Rev. SAMUEL AYSCOUGH, F.S.A.

And Assistant Librarian to the British Museum.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

* The Want of an INDEX to all the beautiful and remarkable Paffages in SHAKSPEARE has long been regretted; but the Difficulty of the Undertaking has hitherto prevented every Attempt. Mr. STOCKDALE has already experienced a liberal Encouragement from the Public for his Edition of SHAKSPEARE, in one Volume, 8vo. and to whom he begs Leave to return his grateful Acknowledgements.

† † For the Convenience of Ladies and Gentlemen who may think this Volume too large, a fecond Volume Title is printed, and a Title to the Index; so that the Purchaser may either bind the above Work in One, Two, or Three Volumes.

A Splendid Edition of Robinson Crusoe.

This Day is published,

In Two handsome Volumes, Octavo, Price 18s. in Boards, And Embellished with FIFTEEN ORIGINAL ENGRAVINGS, And Two elegant VIGNETTES,

The whole defigned by STOTHARD, and engraved by MEDLAND,

THE LIFE AND STRANGE SURPRISING ADVENTURES OF

ROBINSON CRUSOE,

THE LIFE OF DANIEL DE FOE,

By GEORGE CHALMERS, F. R. S. S. A. Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

N. B. The Public will please to order that printed for Mr. STOCK-DALE, as the Plates alone are worth more than the Price of the whole Book.

Thoughts on Hunting.

This Day is published,

In One Volume, Octavo, embellished with a beautiful Frontispiece and Vignette, designed by STOTHARD, and engraved by HEATH, Price 6s. in Boards,

CYNEGETICA;

A OR,

ESSAYS ON SPORTING:

CONSISTING OF DESIGNATION

OBSERVATIONS

HARE NTING:

CONTAINING

An Account of the Hare Hunting and Coursing of the Ancients, from Xenophon and Arrian: --- A Philosophical Inquiry into the Nature and Properties of the Scent: --- Remarks on the different Kinds of Hounds, with the Manner of training them: --- Directions for the Choice of a Hunter: --- The Qualifications requisite for a Huntsman: --- And other general Rules to be observed in every Contingency incident to the Chace.

By HENRY JAMES PYE, Efq.

Together with

An Account of the Vizier's Manner of Hunting in the Mogul Empire.

By WILLIAM BLANE, Efq.

To which is added.

THE CHACE: A POEM.

By WILLIAM SOMMERVILE, Efq.

Ούτω δε έπιχαρι ές ι το θηριόν, ως ε έδες ός ις ούκ αν ίδων Ιχνευόμενον, εύρισποιενον, με αθεόμενον, αλισκόμενον επιλάθοι? αν είτα έρωη.

XENOPH. Cyneg.

My hounds are bred out of the Spartan kind. So flew'd, so fanded, and their heads are hung With ears that sweep away the morning dew; Crook-knee'd, and dew-lap'd, like Thessaian bulls; Slow in pursuit, but match'd in mouth like bells, Was never halloo'd to, nor cheer'd with horn. SHAKEPEARE'S Midfummer Night's Dream.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

Life of Ruddiman.

This Day is published, in One Volume Octavo, price 6s. in boards, embellished with a Head of RUDDIMAN, from an original Painting, engraved by BARTOLOZZI,

THE LIFE

OF

dednin ever O from hittened it

THOMAS RUDDIMAN, A. M.

THE KEEPER, for almost Fifty Years,

OF THE

LIBRARY

BELONGING TO THE

Faculty of Advocates at Edinburgh:

To which are subjoined

NEW ANECDOTES OF

BUCHANAN,

By GEORGE CHALMERS, F. R. S. S. A. Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

History of the principal Republics in the World,
Compared with the English Constitution.

In the Press, and in January next will be published,

Embellished with a Portrait of the AUTHOR, painted by Cor-LEY, and engraved by HALL, price One Guinea in boards,

A DEFENCE OF THE

CONSTITUTIONS OF GOVERNMENT

OF THE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

AGAINST THE

ATTACK of M. TURGOT in his LETTER to Dr. PRICE, Dated the 22d of March, 1778.

By TOHN ADAMS, LL. D.

Member of the Academy of Arts and Sciences at Boston, and Vice-President of the United States of America.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE,

N. B. A few Copies will be printed on a superfine Wove Paper, with

HAMMED FOR HUMBY STUCKED AND HAMMED

A Beautiful Edition of Thomson's Seasons.

In the Press, and in January next will be published,

Elegantly printed on a new Type, and superfine Wove Paper, in a neat Pocket Volume, Price 7s. 6d. in boards, 8s. 6d. calf gilt, or in morocco extra, with gilt back and edges 10s. 6d.

Embellished with fourteen beautiful Engravings, designed by STOTHARD, and engraved by HEATH, NEAGLE, AUDINET, BROMLLEY, &c.

THE SEASONS.

JAMES THOMSON,

WITH HIS LIFE.

By PERCIVAL STOCKDALE.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

History of the French Revolution.

Speedily will be published, in two Volumes Octave,

A PHILOSOPHICAL AND POLITICAL

HISTORY

FRENCH REVOLUTION,

PROM THE

ACCESSION OF LOUIS XVI.

TO THE

PRESENT TIME.

By WILLIAM PLAYFAIR.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

This Day is published,

with the abstract the Corrected to the 25th Sept. 1793,

A LIST

MILITIA OFFICERS,

who were the national true budged.

DATES OF THEIR COMMISSION:

more independent at House of the Country than all the

A List of the Officers of the Independent Companies;

a country of the BIST OF THE CAN Sunda

OFFICERS of the FENCIBLE REGIMENTS.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

Morse's American Geography.

THIS DAY IS PUBLISHED.

In One large Volume Octavo, illustrated with Maps, a New Edition. Price 6s. 6d. in Boards, or on a Superfine Wove Medium, 89. 6d. with the Maps coloured, of The American

VIEW OF THE PRESENT SITUATION

OF THE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

CONTAINING

Astronomical Geography.—Geographical Definitions, Discovery, and General Description of

AMERICA AND THE UNITED STATES:

Of their Boundaries; Mountains; Lakes; Bays and Rivers; Natural History; Productions; Population; Government; Agriculture; Commerce; Manufactures; and History .count of the War and of the important Events which have succeeded.

WITH A PARTICULAR DESCRIPTION OF

KENTUCKY, THE WESTERN TERRITORY, AND VERMONT: Of their Extent; Civil Divisions; Chief Towns; Climates; Soils, Trade; Character; Constitutions; Courts of Justice; Colleges; Academies; Religion; Islands; Indies; Literary and Humane Societies; Springs; Curiosities; Histories; &c.

TO WHICH IS ADDED,

An Abridgement of the Geography of the BRITISH, SPANISH, FRENCH, AND DUTCH DOMINIONS in AMERICA AND THE WEST-INDIES; ALSO OF EUROPE, ASIA, and AFRICA.

FEDIDIAH MORSE, A.M.

Mlustrated with two Sheet Maps, one of the Southern, the other of the Northern States, from the latest Surveys.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

 The Reader will also find in the above Book, a true and pleasing History of every other Part of America, the Author having been affished by the most intelligent Gentlemen in the different States.

 The following Account of MORSE's GEOGRAPHY is extracted from DE WARVILLE'S TRAVELS through AMERICA.

Perhaps no Work that is not systematically false, contains more Errors than the Geographical Grammar published under the Name of William Guthrie; I speak only of that Part which respects the United To those who wish to be informed on this Subject, I would recommend Morse's AMERICAN GEOGRAPHY, published in America, and now re-printed for STOCKDALE in London.

Le contains more Information relative to that Country than all the Books ever written in Europe.'

For other favourable Accounts of Morfe's Geography, fee the Analytical Review for Oct. 1790, and the Monthly Review for Aug. 1791. * The above Work is now publishing in Six weekly Numbers,

The same abridged, with eight Plates, Price 3s. 6d. bound.

Dr. Arnold and Mr. Callcott's New Church Music,

Confissing of near Two Hundred Psalm Tunes, many of which are composed for three and four Voices, expressly for Parochial Churches, and may be used with or without an Organ.

This Day is published,

In One Volume Folio, containing 250 Pages,

With an elegant Frontispiece and Vignette, defigned by STOTHARD, and engraved by MEDLAND and WILSON,

Price vl. 6s. half-bound, YARROLA

THE

PSALMS OF DAVID,

FOR THE USE OF

PARISH CHURCHES.

The Words felected by

The Rev. Sir ADAM GORDON, Bart. M. A.

The Music selected, adapted, and composed, by

Dr. ARNOLD bestern vilation ...

Organist and Composer to his Majesty,

Affisted by

J. W. CALLCOTT, M. B.

Organist of St. Paul, Covent Garden.

The above Work confifts of Eighty Old Tunes, in two Parts; Seventyfour New Tunes, composed on Purpose, in three and sour Parts, by Dr. Arnold and Mr. Callcott; and Forty-three ditto, compiled from Handel, Jomelli, Steffani, Graun, Pleydel, Arne, Boyce, Hasse, Pergolesi, &c. in three and four Parts; making one of the most elegant and complete Collections of Church Music ever published in this Kingdom.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

Extrap and English Pronouncing Dictionary

by the Rev. Sir ADAM GORDON, may be had separate, Price 18.6d.

HISTORICAL PLATES FOR THE HISTORY

Consisting of One Hundred Engravings, with Letter-Press, descriptive of each Subject,

To be completed in Sixteen Numbers, Royal Octavo,

Speedily will be published, No. L. Price cs.

CONSITING OF

SIX ELEGANT ENGRAVINGS,

Designed by METZ and STOTHARD, and engraved by NEAGLE, HALL, SMITH, BROMLEY, AUDINET, THORNTHWAITE, GRAINGER, MURRAY, ROTHWELL, WILSON, CHAPMAN, &c.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE, Piccadilly.

- * A small Number of Proof Impressions on Quarto Paper may be had, Price 78. 6d. each Number.
- A considerable Number of the Plates are already engraved, and in a few Days may be seen at the Publisher's.

DING THE PARTY OF THE PARTY OF THE

Perry's New English Dictionary.

In the Prefs, and in February next will be published, Beautifully printed upon a superfine wove Paper, with a new Type cast on Purpose for the Work, in a small Pocket Volume, Price only 3s. 6d. bound,

A

NEW GENERAL DICTIONARY

OF THE

ENGLISH LANGUAGE,

Di Arnold and Mr. CNA HTIMER Forty three dates coulpi

INTRODUCTORY GRAMMAR.

By WILLIAM PERRY, mobgain

Author of the Royal Standard English Dictionary, and the Standard French and English Pronouncing Dictionary.

* A. SELECTION of the PSALMS, with an Introduction to the L. ALAGNOOTS, MHOL TO be bring of Hannibal's Tour.

 $^{\odot}$

In the Press, and in February next will be published,

In Two Volumes, octavo,

The Course of Hannibal over the Alps ascertained.

By JOHN WHITAKER, B. D.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

A New French and English Dictionary.

In the Prefs, and speedily will be published,

Price Four Shillings bound,

William THE Water and

STANDARD FRENCH AND ENGLISH

PRONOUNCING DICTIONARY.

IN TWO PARTS:

I. FRENCH AND ENGLISH.

II. ENGLISH AND FRENCH.

Containing

Many Thousand Words not to be met with in any of the Quarto or Octavo Dictionaries now extant, and a greater Number of Syno-NYMA than are to be found in any Work printed on the same Size.

The Words, besides being properly accented in both Parts, are divided into Syllables, and the various Sounds of the Vowels, (not hitherto correctly analysed) and different Powers of the Consonants, (by which the true Pronunciation of the Word is ascertained) is pointed out by characteristical Types, illustrated by Keys to each Part, in both French and English, adapted to common Capacity, which Keys have Reference to the Native Language wherein Similarity of Sounds are represented.

DE THOTHER BY WILLIAM PERRY MATE

Author of the ROYAL STANDARD ENGLISH DICTIONARY.

Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE,

A few Copies of the above Book will be printed on a superfine wove Medium.

TACKTOUTH MEDIT TO: Lot us

Morfe's American Geography in Quarto, With confiderable Additions.

In Twa Valueras

In the Press, and speedily will be published, in one large Volume Quarto, illustrated with Maps, a new and much enlarged Edition, with the Author's last Corrections,

OF THE

American Geography;

OR, A

VIEW OF THE

PRESENT SITUATION

OF THE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

CONTAINING

Astronomical Geography.—Geographical Definitions, Discovery, and General Description of

AMERICA AND THE UNITED STATES:

Of their Boundaries; Mountains; Lakes; Bays and Rivers; Natural History; Productions; Population; Government; Agriculture; Commerce; Manufactures; and History.—A Concise Account of the War, and of the important Events which have succeeded.

WITH A PARTICULAR DESCRIPTION OF

KENTUCKY, THE WESTERN TERRITORY, and VERMONT:

Of their Extent; Civil Divisions; Chief Towns; Climates; Soils; Trade; Character; Constitutions; Courts of Justice; Colleges; Academies; Religion; Islands; Indians; Literary and Humane Societies; Springs; Curiosities; Histories; &c.

TO WHICH IS ADDED.

An Abridgement of the Geography of the BRITISH, SPANISH, FRENCH, AND DUTCH DOMINIONS in AMERICA AND THE WEST-INDIES:

ALSO OF

EUROPE, ASIA, and AFRICA.

By JEDIDIAH MORSE, A.M. Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

This Day is published, Price only 2s.

Illustrated with a large whole Sheet Map * * of Kentucky, from actual Surveys, nineteen Inches by seventeen, and a Plan, with a Description of the RAPIDS in the RIVER OHIO, by Captain THOMAS HUTCHINS, Geographer to the Congress,

THE

DISCOVERY, SETTLEMENT,

AND

PRESENT STATE OF KENTUCKY;

ANT

An INTRODUCTION to the TOPOGRAPHY and NATURAL HISTORY of that rich and important Country:

ALSO

Colonel DANIEL BOON'S NARRATIVE of the WARS of KEN-TUCKY: An Account of the Indian Nations within the Limits of the United States; their Manners, Customs, Religion, and their Origin; and the Stages and Distances between Philadelphia and the FALLS of the OHIO, from Pittsburgh to Pensacola, and several other Places.

By JOHN FILSON.

London: Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE,

The following Advertisement is prefixed to the Work.

THE Editor assures the reader, that the strictest reliance may be placed on the authenticity of the following pages. The original was printed at Wilmington in 1784, and is now re-published with confidenable additions, which have just been received from one of the most accurate writers in America, and it may with propriety be considered as a Supplement to the American Geography, by the Rev. Jedidlah Morse, whose work deservedly stands so high in the estimation of the public, and who has shewn to the world how little reliance is to be placed on any of the histories relating to that country hisberto published.

20th November, 1793.

* This work is now publishing in fix weekly numbers, at One Shilling each, for the convenience of those who may prefer this mode of purchase; but the books being already printed, may be had complete, price Six Shillings.

An Abridgement of the same with Eight Plates, price Three Shillings and Six-people bound.

Map of Kentucky, the Publisher affures them, that it would be cheap at 25. 6d. exclusive of the History of Kentucky, which makes sixty pages of close letter-press, nearly similar to Morse's Geography.

Printed for John Stocke

Books Printed for JOHN STOCKDALE.

QUARTO.

COMMENTARY on the POETIC of ARISTOTLE; in which the real Foundation of his Criticisms is examined, and the general Truth of his Precepts illustrated, by Examples from the modern Poets. By HENRY JAMES PYE, Efq. neatly printed on a superfine wove paper, in one large volume royal quarto, Price 11 6s

DISCOVERIES of the FRENCH on the SOUTH-EAST of NEW GUI-To which is prefixed, an historical Abridgment of the VOYAGES and DISCOVERIES of the SPANIARDS in the same SEAS. By CAP-TAIN FLEURIEU, late Minister of the French Navy. Translated from his corrected Copy, in one large volume quarto, beautifully printed upon superfine wove royal paper, and embellished with twelve large maps, charts, &c. Price il is

The HISTORY of the Union between England and Scotland; with a Collection of the Original Papers relating thereto, by the celebrated DANIEL DE FOE. With an Introduction, in which the Consequences and Probability of a like Union between this Country and Ireland are considered, by JOHN LEWIS DE LOLME, Author of the Work on the Constitution of England. To which is prefixed the Life of the Author, by GEORGE CHALMERS, F. R. S. S. A. and a copious Index. In one large volume quarto, containing one thousand pages, with an elegant engraving of the Author, Price 11 10s

N. B. A few Copies are printed on royal paper, 11 158

The Union between England and Scotland, being an extremely interesting Event, has led the Publisher to imagine, that a new Edition of this Work of DE FOE, which is grown very scarce, would be acceptable to the Public, especially at the present Time, when the Situation of Affairs in Ireland induces many Persons to wish that a fimilar Union between Great Britain and that Kingdom may take Place; as it may cause such an Union, if not to be affected, at least to be proposed, and to become, for a Time, the Subject of Debate in both Countries.

A COLLECTION of PLANS of the CAPITAL CITIES in EUROPE, and some remarkable Cities in Asia, Africa, and America; with a Description of their most remarkable Buildings, Trade, Situation, Extent, &c. &c. selected from the best Authorities. By Mr. JOHN Andrews, in one volume 4to, illustrated with forty-two copper-plates, Price 11 is half-bound and lettered, or coloured, 21 28 A TREATISE on the CULTURE of the VINE, exhibiting new and advantageous Methods of propagating, cultivating, and training that Plant, fo as to render it abundantly fruitful; together with new Hints on the Formation of Vineyards in England. By WILLIAM SPECHLY, Gardener to the DUKE of PORTLAND, in one volume 4to, Price 11 58

A VOYAGE round the WORLD, but more particularly to the NORTH-WEST COAST OF AMERICA, performed in 1785, 1786, 1787 and 1788, in the King George and Queen Charlotte. By CAPTAIN NATHANIEL PORTLOCK, and CAPTAIN GEORGE DIXON, in 2 vols. 4to, embellished with forty-two charts, views, &c. price, il 45

N. B. A few Copies of the above, printed on a large fine paper, with the Natural History coloured, 21 28

A Complete GEOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY, OF UNIVERSAL GA-ZETTEER, of ANCIENT and MODERN GEOGRAPHY: containing a full, particular, and accurate Description of the known World, in Europe, Alia, Africa, and America: comprizing a complete System of Geography, illustrated with correct Maps and beautiful Views of principal Cities, &c. and Chronological Tables of the Sovereigns of Europe. By John Sealty, A. M. and Israel Lyons of Cambridge. In 2 vols. 4to. price, il 115 6d half-bound.

Godwin's Lives of the Bishops, by Richardson, with a Head of the Author, and near seventy copper-plates, solio, only 8s 6d in boards, or elegantly bound in Russia. Price 11 18

The COMMERCIAL and POLITICAL ATLAS, which represents at a fingle View, by Means of Copper-plate Charts, the most important Public Accounts of Revenues, Expenditures, Debts, and Commerce of England, and Ireland. By WILLIAM PLAYFAIR. Illustrated with forty copper-plates, in one volume 4to. Price 11 15

The HISTORY of the PROGRESS and TERMINATION of the ROMAN

REPUBLIC. By ADAM FERGUSON, L. L. D. Professor of Moral Philosophy in the University of Edinburgh, in 3 vols. 4to, illustrated with maps. Price 3l 3s.

OCTAVO.

RAVELS through SICILY and CALABRIA, in the Year 1791, with a Postscript, containing some Account of the Ceremonies of the last Holy Week at Rome, and of a short Excursion to Tivoli. By the REV. BRIAN HILL, A. M. late of Queen's College, Oxford, and Chaplain to the EARL of LEVEN and MELVILL; neatly printed on a superfine wove royal, in one volume octavo, and illustrated with a whole sheet Map of Sicily and Calabria, neatly coloured. Price 78 6d

ANCIENT AND MODERN UNIVERSAL HISTORY, 60 vols. 8ve. in boards. Price 151

Ditto, calf, lettered. Price 181

Ditto, calf, gilt, triple pieced, and the contents of each volume, lettered

on the back, 211

THE ODES, EPODES, and CARMEN SECULARE OF HORACE, translated into English Verse, by WILLIAM BOSCAWEN, Esq. neatly printed on a superfine wove paper, in one volume, octavo. Price 78 6d

A COLLECTION of TREATIES between GREAT BRITAIN and OTHER POWERS; collated with the Originals in the Paper-office. By GEORGE CHALMERS, F. R. S. S. A. In two large volumes 8vo. Price

35s in boards, or on a superfine wove medium, 18s

STOCKDALE'S DEBATES IN PARLIAMENT,					£.	5.	d.
-	·		3 Vols.	8vo.	1784		I
			3 Vols.	8vo.	1785	. 1	I	0
	-		3 Vols.			1	1	0
			3 Vols.				1
			3 Vols.				1
		· · · · · ·	3 Vols.			1	1	0
			I Vol.			0	10	6
			r Vol.				18	1000
			I Vol.				.15
			I Vol.				15
			Last Last				-

In all 22 Vols. 1784 to 1793, half-bound and lettered. 9 4 6
THE ORIGIN OF ARIANISM DISCLOSED. By JOHN WHITAKER, B.D. the Author of the History of Manchester, and the Vindication of Mary Queen of Scors. Elegantly printed in one large volume 8vo. upon a superfine paper. Price 10s 6d

An ESTIMATE of the COMPARATIVE STRENGTH of GREAT BRITAIN during the present and four preceding Reigns, and of the losses of her Trade from every War since the Revolution. By GEORGE

CHALMERS, F. R. S. S. A. in one volume 8vo. Price 38 6d

ANECDOTES, &c. ANCIENT and MODERN, with Observations. By JAMES PETTIT ANDREWS, F. A. S. A new Edition, corrected and much enlarged. In one large volume 8vo. embellished with an emblematical frontispiece. Price 786d

THE DYING NEGRO, a Poem. By the late THOMAS DAY and JOHN BICKNELL, Esqrs. embellished with a beautiful Frontispiece, designed by Metz, and engraved by Neagle. Price 3s

JOHN STOCKDALE, Piccadilly.

STOCKDALE'S PARLIAMENTARY GUIDE, or MEMBER'S and ELEC-TOR'S COMPLETE COMPANION: shewing the Right of Election for the feveral Cities, Counties, and Boroughs, in Great Britain, and the Number of Voters at each Place. 8vo. Price 7s

N. B. This Work is absolutely necessary for every Gentleman concerned in Elections.

THE HISTORY of VIRGINIA. By THOMAS JEFFERSON, Elq. Illustrated with a large map, including the States of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, and Pennsylvania. One volume 8vo. Price 78

THE HISTORY of the REVOI UTION of SOUTH CAROLINA, from a British Province to an independent State. By DAVID RAMSAY, M. D.

In two volumes 8vo. with maps. Price 12s

THE HISTORY of the AMERICAN REVOLUTION. By DAVID RAMSAY, M. D. In two volumes 8vo. Price 12s in boards, or on a superfine wove medium, 14s

THE CONSTITUTIONS of the AMERICAN STATES; with an Introduction. By the Rev. WILLIAM JACKSON. In one volume 8vo.

THE HISTORY OF GREENLAND. By DAVID CRANTZ. In two

volumes 8vo. Price 10s

THE WORKS of the late Dr. JOHN JEBB. By JOHN DISNEY, D. D.

F. S. A. In three volumes 8vo. Price 11 18

A TREATISE on the ALLIANCE of Music, POETRY, and ORATO-RY. By ANSELM BAYLEY, L. L. D. In one volume 8vo. Price 6s

THE HISTORY of the TURKISH OF OTTOMAN EMPIRE, from its Foundation in 1300. By A. HAWKINS, Efq. In four volumes, 8vo. Price 11 6s

DEBATES in PARLIAMENT, containing the HISTORY and PRO-CEEDINGS during the Administration of Sir Robert Walpole. By Dr. SAMUEL JOHNSON. In two volumes 8vo. Price 128

THE WORKS of Dr. SAMUEL JOHNSON, vol. xiv. 8vo. N. B. Those Gentlemen who have not completed this great Author's Works, are humbly requested to do it while they have it in their Power. Considerations on Commerce. By Richard Champion, Efq.

8vo. Price 58

BEAUTIES of the BRITISH SENATE, containing a Selection of the most remarkable Speeches from the Time of Sir Robert Walpole to the present. In two volumes 8vo. Price 10s 6d

SERMONS on various Subjects. By the Rev. PERCIVAL STOCK-

DALE, with a Head of the Author, 8vo. Price 6s

An Essay on the Causes of the Variety of Complexion and FIGURES in the HUMAN SPECIES. By the Rev. SAMUEL STAN-HOPE SMITH, D. D. Price 28 6d

TRACTS on various Subjects. By Thomas Day, Efq. Price

RESOLVES of the GLOUCESTERSHIRE COMMITTEE. By Sir

CECIL WRAY, Bart. In one volume, 8vo. Price 4s
THE LIFE OF DANIEL DE FOE. By George Chalmers, F. R. S. S. A. Price 25 6d

THE GOLDSMITH'S REPOSITORY. By W. J. ALLDRIDGE. Price 75 6d

DUODECIMO.

INDOR and ADELAIDE, a Moral Tale; in which are exhibited the Effects of the late Revolution in the Peafantry of France, By EDWARD SAYER, Efq. Price 386d

MEMOIRS of the MOGUL EMPIRE. By Captain JONATHAN SCOTT.

Price 4s

THE CONTRAST, or an Antidote against the pernicious Principles diffeminated in the Letters of the late Earl of Chesterfield, being the Correspondence of an eminent Person deceased with the Editor, during a Course of Years; to which are added, Anniversary Addresses from a Father to his Son. By the Rev. Sir Adam Gordon, Bart, Rector of Hinxworth, Herts. In two volumes, 12mo. Price 6s

AUTHENTIC ELUCIDATION of the HISTORY of COUNTS STRU-ENSEE and BRANDT, and of the Revolution in Denmark, in the Year 1772. Printed privately, but not published. By a personage principally interested. Translated from the German. By B. H. LATROBE. Price 4s This Work contains a faithful Account of the tragical Event and Fate of the late Queen of Denmark.

A SKETCH of the LIVES and WRITINGS of DANTE and PETRARCH; with some Account of Italian and Latin Literature in the fourteenth Century. By a Young Gentleman of Oxford. Elegantly printed on a fine wove paper. Price 28 6d

THE SPECTRE, a Novel. By HENRY JAMES PYE, Efq. In two volumes 12mo. Price 6s

INDIAN VOCABULARY. Price 38 6d

N. B. This Book will be found of great Utility to Gentlemen going to the East Indies, or reading East India Publications

THE UNIVERSAL GARDENER'S CALENDAR, and SYSTEM of PRACTICAL GARDENING, displaying the completest general Directions for performing all the various practical Works and Operations necessary in every Month of the Year, agreeable to the present most improved successful Method; with a comprehensive Display of the general System of Gardening in all its different Branches. Comprehending the Kitchen-Garden, Fruit-Garden, Pleasure-Ground, Flower-Garden, Shrubbery, Plantations and Nursery, Green-House, Hot-House, and Forcing-Houses, &c. By John Abercrombie, upwards of forty Years Practical Gardener, and Author of every Man his own Gardener.

Price 5s bound

THE COMPLETE KITCHEN GARDENER, and HOT-BED FORCER; with the thorough practical Management of Hot-Houses, Fire-Walls, and Forcing-Houses, and the improved modern Culture of the Pinery-Stoves and Pine-Apples, being a thorough practical Display of these most capital Branches of Gardening in their general Culture, and agreeable to the present greatly improved modern Process, whereby that most importantly useful District the Kitchen-Garden, and all its Appurtenances of Hot-Beds, Hot-Houses, Hot-Walls, Forcing-Houses, Pinery-Stoves, &c. and the Culture of their several various Productions in superior Perfection and greatest Abundance, are fully explained, in a Manner never before done, for general Instruction, as requiring a particular distinct Explanation; and now first completely accomplished, from the Result of above Forty Years daily practical Experience and Observation. By John Abercrombie. One vol. Price 58 bound The Garden Vade-Mecum, or, Compendium of General.

GARDENING, &c. By John ABERCROMBIE, 12100. Price 4s bound EDEN VALE, a Novel. By Mrs. Catharine Parry. In two volumes. Price 6s

THE RING, a Novel. In three volumes. Price 78 6d

ZELIA in the DESERT, or the FEMALE CRUSOE. Price 28 6d

THE VISION of COLUMBUS, a Poem. By JOEL BARLOW, Efq. Price 28 6d

FIELDING'S new PEERAGE for England, Scotland, and Ireland. Pr. 6s.
A HISTORY OF ENGLAND and the BRITISH EMPIRE, embellished with eight Maps. By ALEXANDER BICKNELL. Price 3s 6d bound

THE LONDON CALENDAR, for 1794; a new Edition, corrected to November 20th 1793. Price 2s bound, or, with an Almanack, 2s 10d; or complete, with all the Appendixes, including a List of the Militia Officers, Independent Companies, and Fencible Regiments. Price 9s bound; or in Morocco extra, with gift Edges, 14s

JOHN STOCKDALE, Piccadilly.

PETRARCH'S VIEW of HUMAN LIFE. By Mrs. Dobson, Author of the Life of Petrarch. In one volume 8vo. Price 6s

A STATEMENT of the Public Accounts of Ireland. By the Rt. Hon. Sir Henry Cavendish, Bart. One vol. 8vo. Price 108 6d
An Historical Journal of the Transactions at Port Jackson and Norfolk Island, with an abridged Account of the new Discoveries in the South Seas. By John Hunter, Esq. Post Captain in his Majesty's Navy. To which is prefixed, the Life of the Author, illustrated with a Map of the Country, (by Lieut. Dawes,) and other embellishments. In one large volume 8vo. Price 78 6d Philosophical and Critical Inouries concerning Captain

PHILOSOPHICAL and CRITICAL INQUIRIES concerning CHRISTI-ANITY. By M. CHARLES BONNET, of Geneva, F. R. S. Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences of Paris, &c. translated by John

Lewis Boissier, Esq. with a Portrait of the Author. Price 6s

OBSERVATIONS on the APPEAL from the NEW to the OLD WHIGS, and on Mr. Pain's Rights of Man. In two parts. By Sir BROOK BOOTHBY, Bart. Price 5s or fine paper 5s. 6d.

DISSERTATIONS concerning the LANDED PROPERTY of BENGAL. By Sir Charles William Boughton Rouse, Bart, neatly printed in one volume royal 8vo. upon a superfine wove paper.

A SKETCH of some LATE ARRANGEMENTS, and a VIEW of the RISING RESOURCES in BENGAL. By THOMAS LAW, Esq. late a Member of the Council of Revenue in Fort William. In one volume

royal 8vo. Price 6s

A GENERAL VIEW of the VARIATIONS which have been made in the Affairs of the East India Company, from the Conclusion of the War in India, in 1784, to the Commencement of the present Hostilities. By George Anderson, A. M. Accountant to the Rt. Hon. the Commissioners for the Affairs of India. Price 6s

A SHORT REVIEW of the BRITISH GOVERNMENT in INDIA, and of the STATE of the Country before the Company acquired the

GRANT of DEWANNY. Price 38 6d

THE LETTERS of SIMKIN the SECOND, Poetic Recorder of all the Proceedings upon the Trial of Warren Hastings, Esq. in Westminster Hall. A new Edition, complete. In one volume 8vo. Price 7s

A COLLECTION of ORIGINAL ROYAL LETTERS, written by KING CHARLES the First and Second, KING JAMES the Second, and the KING and QUEEN of Bohemia; together with ORIGINAL LET-TERS written by PRINCE RUPERT, CHARLES LOUIS COUNT PALA-TIME, the DUCHESS of HANOVER, and feveral other distinguished Persons, from the year 1619 to 1665; illustrated with elegant Engravings of the Queen of Bohemia, Prince Rupert, Emanuel Scrope Howe, and Ruperta, Natural Daughter of Prince Rupert, &c. engraved by Sherwin from the Paintings of Cooper, Sir Peter Lely, Honthorst, and a Plate of Autographs and Seals. In one volume 8vo. Price 10s 6d in boards, or elegantly bound in Morocco 16s

N. B. The Plates may be had separate, price 6s

CHARGES against Mr. HASTINGS. By EDMUND BURKE, Esq.—Answer to the above Charges by Warren Hastings, Esq. 105 6d ARTICLES against Mr. HASTINGS, with Mr. HASTINGS'S Answer, Svo. Price 6s 6d

MINUTES of the EVIDENCE on the CHARGES against Mr. HAST-

INGS, 8vo. Price 786d

SIR ELIJAH IMPEY'S DEFENCE before the House of Commons. Price 6s

A COLLECTION of TRACTS on East India Affairs. By Captain Joseph Price. Four volumes 8vo. Price 11 8s bound

A COLLECTION of TRACTS on the proposed REGENCY, chiefly written by the first Noblemen and Gentlemen in the Kingdom. In two large volumes 8vo. Price 11 10s royal octavo, embellished with twenty copper-plates. Price 10s 6d HISTORICAL TRACTS. By Sir John Davies, Attorney-General, and Speaker of the House of Commons in Ireland; consisting of, 1. A Discovery of the true Cause why Ireland was never brought under Obedience to the Crown of England. 2. A Letter to the Earl of Salisbury, on the State of Ireland in 1607. 3. A Letter to the Earl of Salisbury in 1610, giving an Account of the Plantation in Ulster.

4. A Speech to the Lord Deputy in 1613, tracing the ancient Constitution of Ireland. To which is prefixed, a new Life of the Author, from authentic Documents. By GEORGE CHALMERS, F. R. S. S. A. In one volume 8vo. Price 58

* The above Work is spoken of by Mr. De Lolme, in the highest Terms, in his Essay on the Union with Ireland.

THE HISTORY and PROCEEDINGS of the LORDS and COMMONS of GREAT BRITAIN and IRELAND in Parliament, with regard to the Regency, containing the Speeches on the proposed Regency Bill, from November 20th 1788, to March 10th 1789, when his Majesty's happy Recovery took place, and put a stop to all further Proceedings on that Subject. To which are added, the three Reports of the Physicians, &c. In one large volume 8vo. Price 10s 6d

The whole Proceedings on the TRIAL of an Information exhibited Ex Officio by the King's Attorney-General, against JOHN STOCKDALE, for a supposed Liber on the House of Commons, tried in the Court of King's Bench, Westminster, on Wednesday, the 9th of December, 1789, before the Rt. Hon. LLOYD LORD KENYON, Chief Justice of England. Taken in Short-hand by Joseph Gurney. To which is subjoined, An ARGUMENT IN SUPPORT OF THE RIGHTS of JURIES. By the Hon.

THOMAS ERSKINE. In one volume, royal octavo. Price 58

THE HISTORY of NEW HOLLAND, from its first Discovery in 1616, to the present Time; with a particular Account of its Produce and Inhabitants, and a Description of Botany Bay: Also a List of the Naval, Marine, military and civil Establishment. To which is prefixed, an Marine, military and civil Establishment. To which is prefixed, an introductory Discourse on Banishment. By the Rt. Hon. LORD AUCK-LAND. Illustrated with a map of New Holland, a chart of Botany Bay, and a general chart from England to Botany Bay. In one volume 8vo. Price 6s

POEMS on various Subjects. By Henry James Pye, Efq. Two volumes 8vo. with plates. Price 128

THE HOT-HOUSE GARDENER, or the general Culture of the Pine-Apple and Methods of forcing early Grapes, Peaches, Nectarines, and other choice Fruits, in Hot-Houses, Vineries, Fruit-Houses, Hot-Walls, &c. with Directions for raising Melons, and early Strawberries. By JOHN ABERCROMBIE. Illustrated with five copper-plates, repre-fenting the Pine-Apple, Grapes, Peaches, Nectarines, Cherries, Melon, and Strawberries, 8vo. Price 6s, or with the plates coloured, CHARACTERISTIC ANECDOTES and MISCELLANEOUS AUTHEN-TIC PAPERS, tending to illustrate the Character of Frederic II. late King of Prussia; with explanatory Notes and Observations. By B. H.

ATROBE, Syo. Price 6s

JOHN STOCKDALE, Piccadilly.

BOOKS PRINTED FOR THE INSTRUCTION AND ENTERTAINMENT OF YOUTH.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND. By M. BERQUIN. In fix volumes, embellished with forty-four copper-plates. Price il is bound

THE HISTORY of LITTLE GRANDISON. By M. BERQUIN, Author of the Children's Friend. Confifting of 175 Pages. Price only 18

bound, embellished with a frontispiece

THE HISTORY of LITTLE JACK (who was found by accident and nursed by a goat.) By Thomas Day, Esq. Author of Sandford and Merton, Ornamented with twenty-three beautiful cuts. Price only 18 bound

THE HISTORY of a SCHOOL BOY: in which is also included— Courage inspired by Friendship; the Duel, or the Man of true Courage; interesting Anecdotes; and an Epistle to a Friend, on his return from the Army. Price 18 bound

AFFECTIONATE ADVICE from a MINISTER of the ESTABLISHED CHURCH to his PARISHIONERS, upon the most plain and positive Duties of Religion. With some cautions against the prevailing Spirit of Innovation. By the Rev. SIR ADAM GORDON, Bart. M. A. Rector of Hinxworth, Herts. Price is bound

A SKETCH of UNIVERSAL HISTORY; to which is added, a brief Chronology of the most remarkable Events in the History of England. embellished with thirty-six Heads of the Kings, from Egbert to George

III. inclusive. Price 18 6d

THE HISTORY of the three BROTHERS; to which are added, Gray's Elegy in a Country Church-yard; Pope's universal Prayer; and the History of John Gilpin. Embellished with five beautiful cuts. Price 6d.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND, translated from the French of M. Berquin; complete in four volumes, and ornamented with four beautiful frontispieces. Price only 10s bound

L'AMI DES ENFANS, par M. Berquin; complete in four volumes, with frontispieces. Price only 128 bound

SELECT STORIES, for the Instruction and Entertainment of Children. By M. BERQUIN. Inscribed to Mr. Raikes. Neatly printed in one volume, containing 300 pages of letter-press, illustrated with four copper-plates. Price only 38 bound

THE HISTORY of SANDFORD and MERTON. By THOMAS DAY,

Esq. In three volumes, with frontispieces. Price 10s 6d bound

SANDFORD et MERTON, traduction libre de l'Anglois, par M. Berquin. Embelli de frontispieces. In two volumes. Price 78 bound

THE ADVENTURES OF NUMA POMPILIUS, Second King of Rome.

In two volumes. Price 6s in boards

THE NEW ROBINSON CRUSOE; an instructive and entertaining History for the Use of Children of both Sexes. Translated from the French. Embellished with thirty-two beautiful cuts, each cut the size of the page. In two volumes 12mo. Price only 7s bound

The above Work is printed complete, in a small letter, in one volume. Price only 4s bound

The fame Work abridged. Price 28 6d bound

THE CHILDREN'S MISCELLANY: in which is included the History of Little Jack. By THOMAS DAY, Esq. Author of the History of Sandford and Merton. New Edition, embellished with twenty-nine cuts and a frontipiece. Price 38 6d bound.

THE HONEST FARMER. By M. BERQUIN. Price is bound

EPUTY J. BRISSOT'S ADDRESS to his CONSTITUENTS upon the Situation of the National Convention; -upon the Influence of the Anarchists, and the Evils which they have been the cause of; upon the Necessity of doing away that Influence in order to fave the Republic. With a Preface and Notes by the Translator. Price 28 6d

REFLECTIONS on the Propriety of an immediate Conclusion of Peace. Price 28 6d

THOUGHTS ON LIBERTY and EQUALITY. By SIR LAURENCE Parsons, Bart. Price is 6d

STATE of the NATION for 1792; or, A BRIEF EXAMINATION into the Increase of the Revenue, Commerce, and Navigation of GREAT BRITAIN fince the Conclusion of the Peace in 1783. The fourth Edition, with confiderable Additions. Price is

VARIOUS OPINIONS of the PHILOSOPHICAL REFORMERS Confidered; particularly Pain's Rights of Man. By CHARLES HAWTREY,

M. A. Vicar of Bampton, Oxfordshire. Price 38

THE LIFE of THOMAS PAIN, with a Review of his Writings, particularly of Rights of Man, parts first and second, By FRANCIS OLDYS, A. M. The fifth Edition, corrected and cularged. Price 28 6d

PRINCIPLES of GOVERNMENT deduced from Reason, supported by English Experience, and opposed to French Errors. By the Rev. R. NARES, A. M. Price as 6d

THOUGHTS upon the WAR. By GEORGE DALLAS, Efq. Price 25

OBSERVATIONS on the SLAVE TRADE. Price 48

HISTORICAL SKETCH of the SLAVE TRADE, and of its Exfects in AMERICA. Addressed to the People of Great Britain. By the Rt. Hon. LORD MUNCASTER. Price 28

THOUGHTS on the PRESENT STATE of FRENCH POLITICS, and the Necessity and Policy of diminishing FRANCE, for her internal Peace, and to fecure the Tranquillity of EUROPE. By WILLIAM PEAYFAIR.

The French Democrats will be like other Madmen; they have begun by infulting and attacking all the Neighbours, and will finish their Career in a ftrait Waistcoat

" Indemnity for the part, and Security for the future." Mr. PITT's Speech To which is added, that inestimable TREATISE on the DEFENCE of ENGLAND. By the late GENERAL LLOYD. Illustrated with a Chart of the opposite Coasts of France and England, Flanders, and Holland; and a Map of France, shewing its former Boundaries, and the Subdivisions which are necessary to be made in that Country, nearly coloured. In one volume 8vo. Price 5s in boards

Alfo, by WILLIAM PLAYFAIR, INEVITABLE CONSEQUENCES of a REFORM in PARLIAMENT. Price is BETTER PROSPECTS to the MERCHANTS and MANUFACTURERS

of GREAT BRITAIN. Price 186d

ACCOUNT of the REVOLT and MASSACRE which took Place in Paris on the 10th of August 1792; with a Variety of Facts relating to Transactions previous to that Date, which throw Light on the real Infligators of those horrid and premeditated Crimes. Price is

A GENERAL VIEW of the ACTUAL FORCE and RESOURCES of FRANCE, in January, 1793. To which is added, a Table shewing the Depreciation of Assignats, arising from their Increase in Quantity.

Price 1s 6d

*Few Gentlemen of the present Age, are better informed, or more accurate in their Calculations than Mr. Playfair: this Affection cannot be more fully verified, than in his Statement of the value and fall of Assignats. Nine Months have proved the truth of his predictions, as may be feen in the Table of the above Pamphlet. His Residence in that distracted Country for five Years past, has given him a general Knowledge of the French Finances, as well as the Principles and Objects of that infatuated People.

A few Copies of his COMMERCIAL and POLITICAL ATLAS, with forty-four Plates. In one volume 4to. Price 11 1s. may be had of

Mr. STOCKDALE,